THE CAMPUS

THERE often comes to every Pennsylvania graduate the desire to once more view the ivy-covered walls of his old Alma Mater. During their undergraduate days few college students appreciate the beauty and grandeur of the ancient traditions of Pennsylvania. Only after one has gone into the outer world does he realize the hold that his old surroundings had on him. What loyal Pennsylvania graduate can ever forget The Dorms, Logan Hall, College Hall, and the other famous points of interest on our campus?

In spite of having our campus located in the midst of a very large city, it is one of the oldest and finest in this country. It is a campus that Pennsylvania men can always be proud of, because it has not been affected by the rapid growth of Philadelphia, except in a beneficial manner.

The old "grad" lives in memories of his never-to-be-forgotten college days, those few short years that are the best of our lives, and to make these memories dearer, he returns from time to time to this campus. Truly, the campus is the most concrete remembrance of our college lives, and therefore:

All Hail to The Pennsylvania Campus, May It
Ever Grow More Dear to The Heart of Every Loyal Alumnus.

To the Members of the Class of 1930 Greetings:

HEARTY congratulations on the completion of your course at the University of Pennsylvania! You will always look back to the days spent here as among the most interesting and profitable of your lives. The associations formed at an educational institution are usually lasting, and your class organization will, I hope, maintain close touch with the members of the class, so that by frequent reunions you will refresh your recollections of college days, and plan for an important part to be taken by the class in the development of educational opportunities for others in the future. The best advertisement of an institution is a group of successful and loyal graduates, who are ready at all times to sing its praises for what it has done for them, to put forward helpful and constructive suggestions wherever these seem to them to be needed, and then to work in order that the University may be able to put into effect plans that develop as time goes on. Graduates must always remember that Universities are dynamic and not static; that the curriculum needs frequently to be revised to meet new conditions; that faculties need replacements to fill vacancies occasioned by death or other causes. Libraries need to be kept up-to-date, in order that the institution may possess not merely a record of the past, but a record of current thought and of the best thought dealing with future problems. There is no graduate who will not be able to do something for the institution, and the united support of graduates is a source of strength. As a class you have my best wishes, and I hope that every individual who receives a degree from the University of Pennsylvania will be a living example to the world of the value of a university course.

Class Message

FOR four years we have lived, hoped, and strived for Commencement Day. At last, we have realized our ambitions.

To our Alma Mater we are deeply indebted, for during that very important period in a man's life, between youth and manhood, Pennsylvania has cared for us, stimulated us with knowledge, taught us the truths and realisms of life, and thus prepared us to appreciate the years before us more fully, and to leave our Alma Mater inspired with the ideals of which the University is representative.

It is now our obligation to appreciate the training which we have received. It is our duty to stand for those ideals of our University, and to make the most of the advantages we have enjoyed. Commencement Day is merely the beginning of that more important obligation which we owe ourselves and Pennsylvania.

So with regrets we leave our Alma Mater, trusting that our future record shall reflect the inspirations that have become so much a part of us as undergraduates. Farewell, Pennsylvania!

HISTORY

IT seems but yesterday that the Class of '30 came to Pennsylvania. We were welcomed to her campus in the fall of '26, a short four years ago. We entered our college life with a week's stay at Green Lane where we learned the songs and cheers of Pennsylvania as well as our own war cry of, "Mess 'em up, Get 'em dirty, Pennsylvania! Nineteen-thirty!" Once embarked on the campus we soon became a more compact unit, even though we were spared the torture of the then traditional Field Welcome.

In the first election for temporary officers we elected John H. Ware, 3d, as President, and Donald S. Cooper as Secretary. Under their guidance we were organized for the Flour Fight, and although we lost by a small margin, we showed some of the spirit that was to be displayed on many occasions in the future. Another outstanding event in this first year was the wonderful response to the Christian Association's Memorial Hall drive. The quota of $12,000 was oversubscribed by more than four thousand dollars.

At the end of our first term we elected our first permanent class officers. Those elected were: President, John H. Ware, 3d; Vice-President, Albert H. Kindler; Secretary, Robert H. Bolton; Treasurer, Donald S. Cooper; Historian, John E. Gilman, Jr.

In the spring we saw our first Rowbottom and several of our members can recall happy, but disastrous results of this conflict. Hey Day was soon upon us. We were happy to be relieved of Regulations, but for a while felt out of place in the new life that opened up as a result of the new attire. Shortly after this we parted for the summer to all parts of the world, sorry to leave, but imbued with the spirit of loyal Pennsylvanians.

In the fall we returned to see the faces of the old friends we had left a short time before. It was with a new feeling that we returned. We were now a part of this great University, and not newcomers.

In the days that came we learned more of our traditions and of the glory of Pennsylvania. In this year, as Sophomores, we instructed the Class of '31 in the rules and regulations becoming those of so little importance in the school. Our feeling toward them was cordial, but the Vigilance Committee, under the leadership of Donald Cooper, meted out discipline with ability and more than mediocre punishment.

Many of the members of the Class turned out for athletic teams, and the coaches soon found in them ability which was later to help lead Pennsylvania to the athletic heights that have been attained in the past few years.

Our Sophomore elections placed the responsibility of the Class upon the able shoulders of John H. Ware, 3d, for the second successive year. He was ably assisted by Edwin F. Koetsch, Vice-President; Harry S. Carhart, Secretary; Philip D. Hartley, Treasurer; and Herman W. Fischer, Historian.

A great realization seemed to dawn upon us as we progressed toward our second summer vacation. We felt that the Class of '30 was destined to be the leader of the campus. We longed for the day when we would be able to have our classmates as leaders of the University in all lines of activities.

At this time many men were elected to the various boards of the publications. The assistant managements also proved the metal of all those who entered into the competitions for them. As we look back on the managers, we see that our hopes were not unfounded.

Following this summer the dwindling number returned to assume the place of Upper-Classmen in the affairs of University life.

Class officers engaged the major part of our interest in the fall. After a spirited campaign for all the various offices, we elected the following men to guide us throughout the year and the most delightful Junior Week we could have desired: Duncan S. Briggs, President; Donald S. Cooper, Vice-President; Mervin Drewes, Treasurer; Morton Wilner, Secretary; and Harvey W. Redington, Historian. With Robert Barnes as General Chairman, well-laid plans brought us a splendid Junior Week. On Monday, November the 24th, we had our Cane March with Irvine Auditorium as our objective. There Provost Penniman addressed us and started the Week. The days that followed will long be remembered. The Smoker, the Banquet, and the Prom, added to the wonderful victory over Cornell on Thanksgiving, gave us many events that will always have a place in our minds. Many a fair heart throbbed as we administered this drubbing to the lads from Ithaca.

In the spring we began planning for the election of the men to guide us through our last and most glorious year at Pennsylvania.

First the Undergraduate Council elections were held and the following men were elected to serve in this capacity: President Robert H. Barnes, Charles L. Campbell, James B. Diven, S. Eugene Kuen, Edwin H. Schadt, Charles P. Walker, Charles W. Bohmer, Robert R. Creighton, William Flinn, Harvey W. Redington, Charles S. Simmons, Howard B. Norman and Seward H. French. At this time the election of Senior Class President was held, and Robert H. Barnes was unanimously chosen to guide the destiny of the greatest class in Pennsylvania to the time of graduation.

For work and service rendered the University and the student body, the following men were elected to Friars Senior Society: Robert H. Barnes, Robert J. Callaghan, Mervin S. Drewes, John W. Easton, Guert W. Ensign, Herman W. Fischer, Charles H. Fisher, Ralph A. Fossey, Richard B. Haynes, Oliver Horne, Thomas G. Jordan, S. Eugene Kuen, Walter W. Magai, George M. Neil, H. Benjamin Normand, Joseph P. Olexy, Williard D. Pendleton, Harvey W. Redington, Edwin R. Schadt, Charles E. S. Simmons, W. Edwin Taeffner, E. Adrian Teaf, Harry L. Warren, Richard B. Wells and Morton Wilner; and the following men to Sphinx Senior Society: Charles P. Walker, Jr., William L. Day, John N. Ball, J. Alexander Bliedung, Robert H. Bolton, Duncan S. Briggs, Albert B. Brodbeck, Monroe V. Dill, Albert C. Fisher, Seward H. French, Lemuel A. Geyer, John N. Gish, Sydney A. Gervin, William C. Kastler, Francis J. Kelly, Jr., Charles E. Krampf, Harrington A. Leedom, A. Edward Lobley, John K. Luther, William P. Lytle, George B. Milnor, Edward P. O'Reilly, Warren A. Pine, John L. Utz, Andre C. Vauclain and John H. Ware, 3d.

Now our last summer has passed and we are back for our last year at Pennsylvania. In the fall the following were elected to the class offices yet unfilled: William Spates, Vice-President; Joseph Rosenblith, Secretary; William Spencer, Treasurer; and John L. Hansell, Historian.

The election of Honor men disclosed four men worthy of the honor, in every sense of the word, which their Class placed upon them. The Honor men are: Morton Wilner, Spoon Man; Robert H. Barnes, Bowl Man; Duncan S. Briggs, Cane Man, and Lemuel Geyer, Spade Man.

For our Class Day we elected Lemuel Geyer, Valedictorian; Adrian Teaf, Class Prophet; Horace E. Crandall, Ivy Orator; John Beddoe, Ivy Ode; and Warren Van Elmendorf, Class Poet.

Now our four years are passed. Happy days have come and gone, and the achievements of our Class will long be remembered. May our many victories be a foretaste of all the victories of the future, and may the Class of 1930 always honor and revere the name of Pennsylvania.

University Contemplates Move to Camden

Due to the crowded conditions at Valley Forge, Provost Geyer has appointed a committee of the trustees to investigate the possibilities of moving to Camden near Philadelphia and near beer.

Ed Lobley has offered a Camden "sight" to the University. Mr. Lobley is a prominent basket manufacturer. Wm. Day, the inventor of steel-less skyscrapers, has offered to build the new College Hall, and John Ware the THIRD has offered his shingles for roofing the building.

Chairman Donald Angell called a meeting of his committee, composed of Robt. Bolton, Phil Gabriel, Roger Hough, Tiney Thrasher and Ronald MacKenzie in Camden tomorrow night to "drink" over the matter. We should hear more of this committee before long.

New Crusader Head

Ralph Fossey was named president of the Crusaders to succeed Connie Vauclain who served nobly for twenty years. ("Served what?" asked Doc. Ebling.)

Defeated by Vote of 8 to 4

U. S. Appoints Census Taker

Charles Fisher, due to his past experience with Record work, has been appointed Chief Census Taker of the University, by President John Luther, Coolidge's only rival. "Senses" taking at the University is a real task due to the lack of material.

Interfraternity Dis- agreement

Vice-Provost Charles Walker has agreed to disagree with any agreement submitted by the six interfraternity groups at the University. Dutch Voehringer representing the non-fraternity stated his satisfaction with the present system of rushing as presented by Dixie Gervin to replace the more speedy method used by Bill Kastler. Any one having suggestions please place them in the Houston Hall box so they can be easily burned.

Oliver Spencer Acquitted

After a heated debate on an indictment brought by S. H. French against Oliver Spencer, prominent politician of the 27th ward, which charged him with persuading Broadway Well's Bevy of Beauties to break their contracts and go with Jack Easton's Broadway Stars. Mayor Barnes and his counsel, Dunk Briggs, Ed. Schadt, Ben Normand, Charlie Campbell, Walt. Magai, Harvey Redington, and Charles Simmons voted in favor of acquittal.

In this connection a meeting of the "Stude" Welfare Committee was held. The following were present: Sam Kuen, Charles Bohner and George Kunzler. Absent: Phil Hofmann, Jim Slatterly, Herman Fischer, Al Cassel, John Beddoe, Bud Trowbridge, John Ball, Bill Lytle, and George Zeugschmidt. Chairman Brodbeck reported the committee stated progress.

Oh, memories of college days! from us they'll never part,
 For they have twined their dewy tendril tightly round each heart,
 The ivy often greener grows that clammers 'round the mould,
 So shall these memories grow greener as the years unfold.
 Today these fond ideal years spread consecrated scenes
 Upon mind's canvas, tinting it with gold and purple sheens;
 And as these fitful magic charms sweep past the laughing eye
 Like airy spirits, they recall our college days gone by.
 Oh, shrine so dear! forever mayest thou echo holy songs,
 And spread influence among thy gathering throngs;
 Through all the unborn ages may thy sacred truths be told,
 To teach young manhood lofty aims as in the days of old.
 The tourist's dreamy days must close; today we face the strand
 Of Future's main, while Alma Mater tightly clasps our hand,
 And, peering o'er the desert of the waves afar, we spy
 Like demons weltering on the deep the billows chafe the sky.
 Beyond our voyage tends. Beside the pier our ships of life
 Are moored, toyed with by wave, awaiting now midocean's strife.
 With restless steps we face the strand; behind our pleasant past
 We view before, naught but the sea and sky with clouds o'ercast.
 Thus may we rove, perchance afar, where'er shall fall our lots;
 Perchance, may leave our dearest ties, and youth's familiar spots;
 But when long years shall frost our brows and wither manhood's bloom,
 For dear old Pennsylvania our hearts shall still have room.
 Farewell, then, cherished years with thee, thy students glad and gay;
 Farewell, our classmate bonds we break; farewell ye towers gray;
 Farewell, ideal days of Penn; farewell, old ivied walls;
 Farewell, you dearest friends and true; farewell, beloved Halls!

WARREN VAN ELMENDORF

Ivy—your fame has held us throughout our undergraduate days—a mirage—to be gained only when we must part—a symbol, for what? Standing here, upon the threshold of posterity—we embed you upon the campus which we have trod so long. Many think it a mere token, a parting gesture, but we all know, deep within us, that you are a goal—you're to be the living part of us that remains, to be viewed by succeeding generations. How the immensity of it all appeals—a slip of green to grow and branch, even as we must do, and to uphold the glory of Pennsylvania.
 That undying glory which grows, as you,
 with the years—seeking new footholds where none were seen before. The simplicity of it all, as the years unfold cannot be rightly foreseen—but your quivering foliage, as a banner, shall be the lasting emblem of our devotion—flaunting the winds to sing of all our victories in the fields of conquest.
 You are our challenge to the elements—to the forces from without. Let us band together, as your tendrils intertwine, in the spirit of Brotherhood which Mother Pennsylvania has consecrated. May our fealty never be severed, but may it live to be all that you embody for our hopes and ideals—that is life itself—Ivy.

JOHN T. BEDDOE

WE have come here today to perpetuate the memory of our class. This ivy is the symbol of our act, but what we plant here will not be seen by many of the world. Therefore, it is for us, whom the world will see as the representatives of our class and our University, to make sure that what we here commemorate, will prove to be worthy of commemoration.

This ceremony stands for many things which have become, and will remain, an integral part of our lives. We will never forget those precious hours of happiness which we have spent here; but let us also remember what we have found to be wrong, so that we can eliminate these evils for the men who are to come after us. Let us keep the many lessons we have learned here close to our hearts; above all, let us not forget the great and noble institution which made our instruction possible.

It is for us to nourish the ideal for which this ivy stands, with deeds which men will see with pride. Let no one of us do that which will not stand the light of day — so shall we keep the honor of our class.

Let us ever strive to tighten the bonds of friendship which now unite us; let us ever cleave closer to all the associations we have made here. Though we be scattered throughout the world, let us ever remember this occasion. May it stand forever in our memory as a monument to all that is good and true in each of us.

We enter our new work with the confidence of our training, and the courage of our convictions. We are going to make mistakes, but let us never repeat them. Though we know that we alone shall not remedy the world's defects, let us each see to it that we make a substantial contribution towards its improvement. We can, and will, do this by playing the part of men in the world's work.

There are problems of vital importance confronting our nation and the world. We have a vast, unwieldy and antiquated body of laws in the United States today. We face a growing agitation against the Eighteenth Amendment which many of our citizens honestly oppose as a violation of individual liberty. We have a judicial system shot through with technicalities of procedure which clog our courts, allow flagrant delays in conviction, and assist the guilty to escape punishment. There is a growing trend toward radical Socialism on the part of the wage-earning classes of the world. We must make our concessions to their rightful demands, or they may be forced on us with the resultant chaos of modern Russia.

Let us face these, and all other responsibilities that come to us, with the full consciousness of our public duty as educated men. We must justify our education by that active, practical interest in politics which George William Curtis named as an indispensable condition of a progressive republic. Like that noble and inspiring leader, let us here resolve that our concerted aim shall be the practical patriotism which seeks constantly the more perfect union, prosperity and peace of our country.

On this spot we light our hearts anew with the fervor of an enduring love for our University, and for our country. So shall we be true men and loyal sons of Pennsylvania.

HORACE E. CRANDALL

WE of the Class of 1930 are assembled here today in anticipation of the formal completion tomorrow of our respective college careers. During our course of study at the University, preparatory to embarking upon the greatest of all adventures, our every effort has been directed toward the realization of the goal which we have at last attained. The award of the graduation diploma, however, does not suspend momentarily, much less terminate permanently, our continuing quest for culture. The pursuit of knowledge is at present as unending as it has always been, but its meaningful possession has not until recently assumed the practical significance which it now bears.

The value of a college education has always been a subject of much controversy, and will continue to be such until the fallacy of proving all rules by quoting their exceptions is definitely exploded. We are constantly exposed to the ridicule and criticism, some of it just, to be sure, but most of it unjust, unfounded, and uncalled for, of persons who talk and write very much of what they know very little about. Those of us who have surmounted the difficulties of the past four years know that the securing of an education is not the easy task so many persons would have us believe. Honest, conscientious endeavor is the key to all success, and it is none the less true in the field of learning than in any other.

Our associations with one another as undergraduates at Pennsylvania have, in the main, been most profitable and enjoyable. Friendships which have had their inception here will mellow with the passing of years. Contacts with administrators and faculty have never failed to engender deepest respect for them and highest inspiration in us. Our heritage in tradition and ideals is a rich one. Recognizing, as did those who have preceded us, that the cultured man should have many interests, we have contributed in some small way to the character of the heritage by our participation in the work of the classroom, in athletics, and in other extra-curricular activities.

As students at the University we have seen, and have been a part of, character and manhood in the making. Only time will attest to the present inestimable effect which our associations on and off the campus have made upon our most impressionable years. We have taken advantages of the opportunities, and have enjoyed the benefits which our Alma Mater has so generously offered. Our turn now comes to assume those greater obligations and responsibilities which all learning imposes. We go to take our places beside those who are engaged in the sterner work of a larger and less kindly world. Until now, others have helped to set our standards and fashion our principles. They have laid the foundation; we must erect the structure. The higher we aspire to build it, the nearer to the stars it will tower when the last stone is placed.

It is with the sincerest regret that we must now sever those ties which for four years have bound us, with utmost loyalty, to the Pennsylvania campus. We are loath to leave behind our undergraduate days as we were eager to enter upon them. Our thoughts hark backward but our course of action lies ahead. Unless we consider less than our best failures, the world will be only too ready to look elsewhere for that type of service which demands one's all. In our age of highly specialized competition the fight is always to the strong. Let us, therefore, scorn difficulty, work diligently, and dedicate our lives to the end that the world will have been made a happier place in which to live because we have lived, to the satisfaction of our selves, our Alma Mater, our country, and our God.

FROM the instant of donning the traditional "dink," the Class of 1931 made its presence strongly felt on the campus. That instant seems not very long ago, because so much has been accomplished, so many laurels won, so many records broken that it does not seem possible that our fame has reached such heights in so short a period of time.

While we were yet yearlings, the class showed its remarkable ability by vanquishing the Sophomores in the annual Penniman Bowl contests, which in itself is a feat not often equalled. Again, as Sophomores, we maintained our supremacy by defeating the Freshman class. In the Christian Association Drive, the Class of 1931 over-subscribed its quota to complete the Memorial Hall in the new building. As a result, we are the last class to have its numerals inscribed over the doorway. Later, we selected as our permanent class officers, Edward J. Geran, President; Thomas Dilworth, Vice-President; Charles Henderson, Jr., Secretary; Edwin M. Reynolds, Treasurer, and Richard E. Gentle, Historian.

In the Fall of 1928 we returned to the campus to become high and mighty Sophomores, but some familiar faces were sadly missing. Nevertheless, we still remained a spirited and united group. The Vigilance Committee, under the able leadership of Maurice D. Larkin, meted out righteous punishment to all wayward Freshmen. Since we had made such a wonderful showing in all branches of sport as Freshmen, it was not surprising that many of our classmates carved their names indelibly in the chronicles of athletics at Pennsylvania.

To lead us in our second year we chose George W. Fisk as President; Joseph R. Trew, Vice-President; Julian M. Rieser, Secretary; James N. Peterson, Treasurer, and Frank C. LeGost, Historian.

Now that Junior Year has drawn to a close, the spirit of loyalty to our University and to our Class which has been maintained throughout the past three years has culminated in the blossoming of the bud which we have always cherished — the hope to be worthy of and an honor to our Alma Mater. To guide our Class through our third and most important year as undergraduates we selected as our leaders Maurice D. Larkin, President; Edward D. McGrew, Vice-President; Matthew Zeigner, Secretary; Kenneth Thomas, Treasurer, and Donald V. MacLean as Historian. However, due to the illness of "Ted" Larkin, "Ed" McGrew acted ably as President.

The outstanding success of the year was Junior Week, concluding the football season in fine fashion. The festivities of Junior Week were capably directed by Franklin H. Wolf as General Chairman, and Milton F. Decker as Chairman of the Promenade. The Prom was considered the most successful in years, and once again the Class of 1931 established a standard not soon to be equalled. Let not the passage of the years witness the waning of our loyalty and prestige. Hail, Pennsylvania! Hail to thee, men of '31!

Junior Week

FROM time to time during our college days at Pennsylvania, we have heard members of the undergraduate body lamenting the passing of Pennsylvania tradition. This may or may not be true. The Class of '31 has made a definite contribution to the University in reviving for one thing, the interest in Junior Week activities. Almost to a man, the Class displayed a genuine burst of enthusiasm to take part in the various functions of the "period of reign."

Our mutual friend, Zamsky, launched the activities all by himself Monday noon when he was "listed among the missing." During our short wait for action and the camera, "Bay" Robinson led the Class in a selection of songs and cheers which culminated in a roar as Zamsky flashed down the dormitory walk, camera and all.

Richard Gentle and Edward McGrew led a large procession in the Cane March to Irvine Auditorium. Provost Penniman gave the Juniors a graphic picture of class spirit as it existed in classes that had gone before. The Provost's address centered on a short malacca cane that had been presented to one of his predecessors by a certain Junior Class. More than one member of the Class of '31 wondered how well the Juniors handled their canes in days gone by.

Houston Hall was the scene of an excellent Class Smoker, while the Junior Banquet was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Both of these affairs received splendid support and the large number in attendance was a tribute to class unity and the conscientious effort put forth by both committees.

Pennsylvania's time-honored rival, Cornell, again succumbed to the furious onslaught of the Red and Blue gridders. It was a Junior who supplied the "high spot" of the game. "Dick" Gentle executed one of the most brilliant runs for a touchdown ever seen on Franklin Field.

The Junior Promenade in all its brilliancy climaxed a busy week for the third-year men. Hutchinson Gymnasium was transformed into a beautiful Japanese garden and Jean Goldkette and Willard Alexander provided continuous music from eleven until five o'clock in the morning.

The Class of '31 had experienced five of its happiest days at Pennsylvania.

FOLLOWING a very successful year as Freshmen, the Class of 1932 returned for its Sophomore year with its ranks somewhat thinned out, but with a spirit that was destined to carry it to even greater heights than it had attained the year before.

The Vigilance Committee, under the able leadership of Jones and Padula, promptly assumed its duties toward the "Frosh." Election time rolled around and the class found it hard to decide which candidates were to be elected to the various offices, so keen was the competition. After the balloting was over it was found that Cook, Parsons, Ratowsky, Hanby and Loveless had been elected to the offices of president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary and historian, respectively. A great deal of credit is due to these men for the competent manner in which they performed their duties.

The flour fight, which was revived this year, was won by the Freshmen, but the Sophomores put up a good fight in the face of overwhelming odds. Before the fight the Freshmen kidnapped "Pete" Cook, but he managed to escape in time to lead our Class in the fight.

As the football season got into swing it was soon evident that the Sophomore Class had some players out there who were outstanding. We were well represented on the gridiron by Riblett, one of the team's sensational players, Tanseer, Gette, Ford, Merrick, Greene, Graupner and numerous others. In other sports we had an equally good representation. Tanseer showed himself worthy of his place on the basketball team, on which we were also ably represented by McNiff, Ullrich, Sander and Riblett. These men all showed themselves to be excellent players and provided plenty of competition for positions on the team. We are looking forward to them to do even better next year. Riblett and Tanseer distinguished themselves in both football and basketball. And there are others to be mentioned, such as McNiff, who is already breaking track records; Merrick, our undefeated boxer, whom we expect to fight his way to the intercollegiate championship; Anderson, a soccer star, and many others. Graupner, Ford, Dennison and others are our hopes in baseball. When crew races start we hope to find our Class well represented. Hupfel and Martin are both fighting for stroke berths in the lightweight and heavyweight shells, respectively. There are many other Sophomores who are working hard for berths in their various shells.

This is the history of our Sophomore year. A history of which we are all very proud, and as we close the cover for this year, we feel confident that with such a start in the first two years of our college career, we have a very bright future ahead of us, and the Class of 1932 will rise to even greater heights in the two years to come.

Penniman Bowl Contests

WITH the changing of time the manifestations of tradition likewise change, and now instead of the Sophomore Class meting out stern, disciplinary measures in the form of class fights, which often resulted in Sophomore reverses, we find organized athletic competitions as the means of fostering class spirit and unity. In days of yore the Hall-rush, and the famous Bowl Fights were the mediums through which the two lower classes exercised their spirit of rivalry. These, however, proved to be neither feasible nor practicable in the present status of conditions existing at the University, and consequently were relegated to the things of the past in 1914.

Just as these old rivalries were based on old conditions, and belonged to another generation of undergraduates, it was only natural that there should be new rivalries, which should form the groundwork for a new tradition belonging to the present undergraduate body of Pennsylvania. Hence in 1921, Provost Penniman put into competition a bowl, the purpose of which was to cultivate a friendly rivalry in athletic competitions between the two lower classes.

The Penniman Bowl has been competed for annually, and with the passing of each year an increased manifestation of interest has been evident. Each year the class winning the greatest number of events has the honor and distinction of having its numerals inscribed upon the Bowl which is on permanent display in the main lounge in Houston Hall.

The various contests are governed under the Intercollegiate Rules covering the respective sports, and this year the Bowl Committee, in co-operation with Sophomore President Cook and Freshman President Newcomb, has successfully organized the two classes for the athletic contests. As in former years, swimming, water polo, hockey, fencing, baseball, basketball, soccer, boxing, wrestling, track, lacrosse, tennis, crew and rifle are the sports in which the Sophomores and Freshmen will vie with one another to uphold the supremacy of their respective class. The contests are run on a point basis, with each sport victory of a major nature accrediting the victor with two points, while a victory, in what was formerly known as a minor sport, is worth one point.

The first event this year was the soccer game in which the Sophomores came out the victors with a score of two to one. The game was very hotly contested, and the Freshman rally at the close of the game was a fine demonstration of efficient footwork.

In the crew race the Freshman Class established itself as a group of very capable oarsmen, in defeating the Sophomore boat in exceptionally fast time. This year the Freshmen have been especially conspicuous in this particular sport, and Pennsylvania may look for great things from the "yearlings" in the years which are to follow.

Due to the pressing nature of various other activities on the campus, it has been found expedient to postpone the remainder of the events to a more opportune time. Thus it is, that at this writing, we are unable to present the outcome of the 1930 Contests, nor is it our function to forecast a probable result, but we do take this opportunity to extend congratulations to both classes for their respective successes, and for the conspicuous part which they have played in carrying on the traditions of Pennsylvania in their newest and most recent forms.

AS has long been the custom at the University the Freshman Class was initiated into University affairs and activities at Green Lane which preceded Freshman Week and the opening of school.

The Freshman Football Team was very successful in its schedule, winning two games and tying one. They played Dean Academy, Bellefonte Academy and Cornell Freshman. The Freshman Class is contributing a number of Varsity players for next season's team, the outstanding ones being Perina, Trerotola, Bloch and Smith.

The victories did not stop on the gridiron, however, as they continued on the basketball court as well. The Freshman aggregation turned out a strong team under the eye of Coach "Joie" Shaaf, last year's intercollegiate high scorer. The team downed the majority of its opponents and there is a wealth of promising material for next year. Track and swimming are equally represented with such men as Munger, Jones, Healy and Strong, outstanding in their respective sports.

The Freshman Boxing Team was stronger this year than it has been in some time. The Newcomb combination of "Bud" and "Cy" was the reason for its winning many of the meets. Under the tutelage of Coach Decker they will be formidable foes to any one they meet next year. Golf and Tennis will come in for their full share of glory as there are some real Freshman stars competing in these sports.

Cyrus B. Newcomb, Jr., was chosen President of the Freshman Class, both in the temporary and permanent elections. The other class officers are: William Porter, Vice-President; Robert Barringer, Secretary; Paul Wilner, Treasurer, and Gus Smith, Historian.

On February 25th the Freshmen scored a decisive victory over the Sophomores in the Annual Bag Fight held on River Field. The crowning event of the fight was the kidnapping of the Sophomore President.

Rushing Season brought the Freshman Class closer together than before, and with the continued co-operation that they have shown, great things are to be expected of them. The whole class has exhibited great spirit in everything they have undertaken. This was especially shown at the football games and in every other function concerning the University. The Freshmen are in the embryo stage and their whole University life depends upon the things they accomplish when they are Freshmen. They are the backbone of the University, and it is up to them to carry on the traditions that are so dear to all of us.

ORGANIZATIONS

ORGANIZATIONS

ORGANIZATIONS

A COMPLETE college education consists, outside of the prescribed courses of study, of participation by the student in various extra-curricular activities. The five main curricular branches of our university are The College, The Wharton School, The School of Education, The Fine Arts School, and the Engineering Schools.

As to extra-curricular activities, the main branch of this field concerns the various clubs about the campus. Of these clubs are those which go under the heading of Intersectional Clubs. They are the medium through which the advantages of Pennsylvania are set before those men eligible to enter college, and the best men obtainable are induced to come here.

Honor societies, as well, share a place in the firmament with these organizations. It is the ambition of every student to some day place after his name the coveted mark of one or more of these societies. Taken as a whole, these clubs and organizations are the acme of undergraduate life.

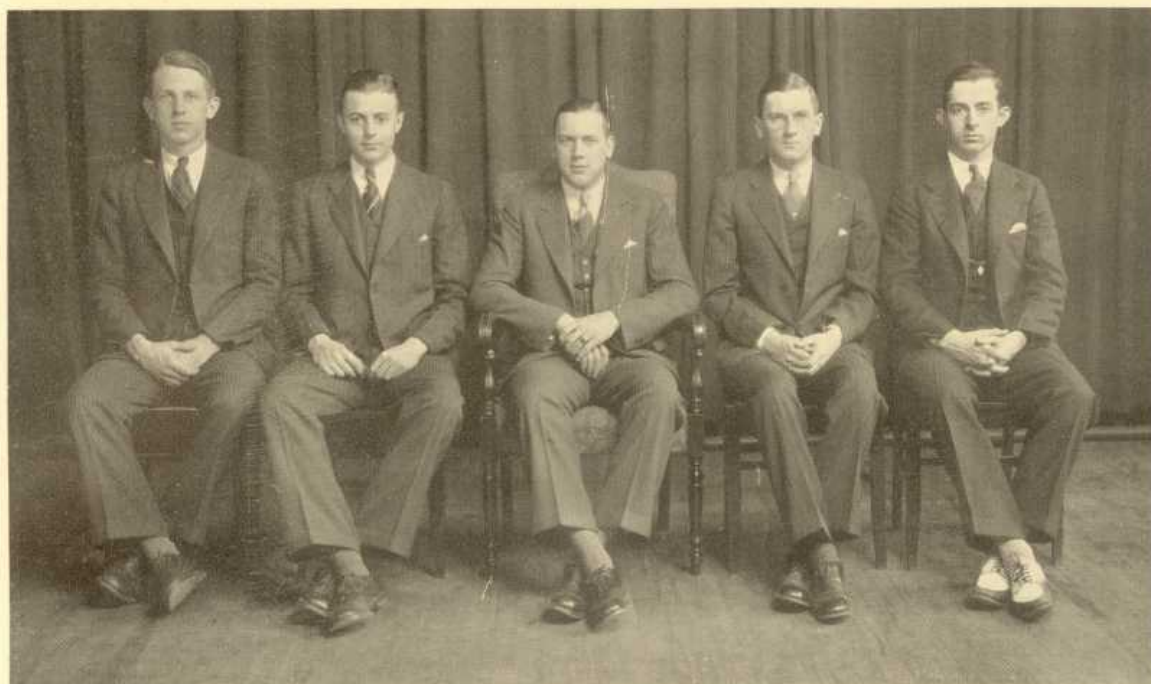

Dean PAUL H. MUSSER

THE Faculty and the Administrative Officers of the College extend cordial good wishes to every member of the class of 1930 for happiness, success, and prosperity in the years to come.

The purpose of the College has been to stimulate your intellectual life by endeavoring to make of you men who know and who are able to think on the basis of what you know. Your four years in the College here at Pennsylvania, it is sincerely hoped, have given you high ideals with an appreciation of the value of the accomplishments in life that grow from them. Your work in the course you have just completed has been planned to teach you intelligent co-operation with your fellow men, to give you a belief, at the same time, in sturdy independence of thought and action with a realization of the high value to be placed upon cultural developments wherever found in the activities of your community. Your college career, in other words, has been successful in proportion to the qualities of good citizenship which have been developed in you.

Your connections with the College, together with your obligations to her are not cut away by graduation any more than her duties are cancelled to you. The history of the College as it has come down through nearly two centuries has handed on to you two main sets of traditions as embodied in your undergraduate life, on the one hand, and as expressed in your future activities and accomplishments as college graduates on the other. You have played your part in the first and are now about to undertake to make your contribution to the second. The ties, consequently, attaching you to the College are not broken or weakened by graduation but are simply shifted to another but no less enduring basis. By way of the general alumni organizations, and the continued life of your own class you will find channels through which your interests and contacts will remain alive. If you will give these a normal place among your affairs in subsequent years the pleasures of fellowship, the renewal of happy memories and common cultural interests to both you and your College will be ample in themselves to bring you back now and again to College Hall to receive the sincere welcome that will always await you. It is not a farewell we desire to say to you but rather to extend a greeting to our new fellow alumni.

THE class of 1930 will graduate 500 men into the ranks of the Wharton School alumni. This body of young men, the majority of them 30 years of age or less, now numbers 6,000. Its members are to be found in all the states of the Union and in many foreign countries. The Wharton School is thus not a local institution, it is national and international in membership and service.

Like preceding classes, the Wharton School class of 1930 will, in taking up its life work, put to the test the educational preparation that its several members have made for life and for life work. Each man's experience during the next few years and throughout life will help determine what kind of university education is effective and what kind does not produce results.

Although universities and colleges, even in the United States, are old institutions, individual students and college classes are ever concerned with solving the current problem of gaining the training, acquiring the knowledge, and obtaining the outlook on life that will enable them to make the most of their lives. The world in which we live is a changing one and presumable education must adapt itself to the requirements of this changing world.

It is becoming increasingly manifest that education is a service to be rendered to different groups—prospective architects, engineers, teachers, doctors, lawyers and business men, adults in the several professions and in various business occupations—each group and each individual according to needs. This is the concept that the Wharton School has of the work it is now endeavoring to do and of the plans it is making for future development. The faculty does not regard graduation as the end of education nor of the student's connection with his university. The Wharton School hopes to merit the affection and hold the interest of the class of 1930 and all of its alumni by rendering a continuing service. The character and effectiveness of this service will depend not only upon the zeal and intelligence of faculty action but upon the alert response and hearty cooperation of the great body of alumni.

CLASSES in the University's Veterinary School this year have been larger than in any year since 1916. The registration of students has increased in the last three years in all of the veterinary schools in the country.

A recession in the registration began in all Schools in 1916 and there was a gradual decrease in the number of students until three years ago. The increased entrance requirements and the lengthening of the course which became effective in 1916, the disturbed conditions existing during and immediately following the World War, and the depression in the agricultural and livestock industries which followed the deflation of 1921 are some of the factors which are generally held responsible.

At the beginning of this period there was probably a surplus of veterinarians due to the relatively large graduating classes of the preceding decade but after several years of small classes signs of a shortage began to appear. In the last half of the period of low registration, the total number of graduates each year in all of the schools in the country was less than 150, which was not a sufficient number to replace those lost to the profession from various causes, the United States Bureau of Animal Industry alone requiring 100 new veterinary appointees each year. Leaders among those interested in the livestock and dairy industries became concerned over the situation and articles began appearing in agricultural and dairy journals calling attention to the disadvantages that would arise from an insufficient number of veterinarians. These publications are believed to be largely responsible for the increase in the registration of veterinary students during the last three years.

The demand for veterinary service is increasing. Specialization in the production of foods of animal origin has led to the development of larger herds and flocks, causing the animals to live in closer contact and under more artificial conditions, and requiring more attention to be given to the prevention and treatment of disease. The number of veterinarians engaged in diagnostic and research work in laboratories has greatly increased. As the scientific investigation of animal diseases has progressed, information has been obtained which has extended the field of usefulness of the veterinarian.

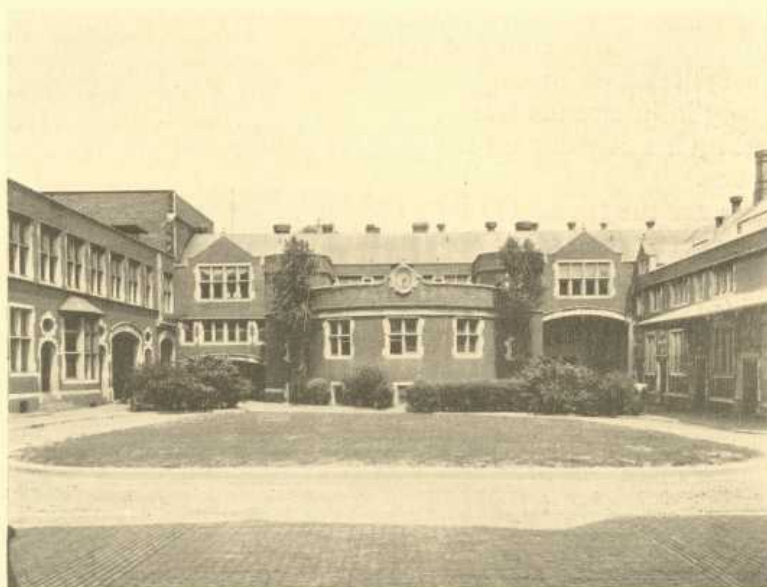

The graduates of this year will find a broad field and great opportunities awaiting them and as they go forth the Faculty extends to them best wishes for a successful and happy life.

THE conception of a trained schoolman has changed rapidly in the last few years. The physician intrusted with the care of a child's physical body must have had from six to eight years of college and professional training and he must have served an internship of at least one year. Until recently, however, the teacher who shapes the child's physical, moral and intellectual education was required to have only a slight mastery of some field of knowledge and some training in the method of presenting his work.

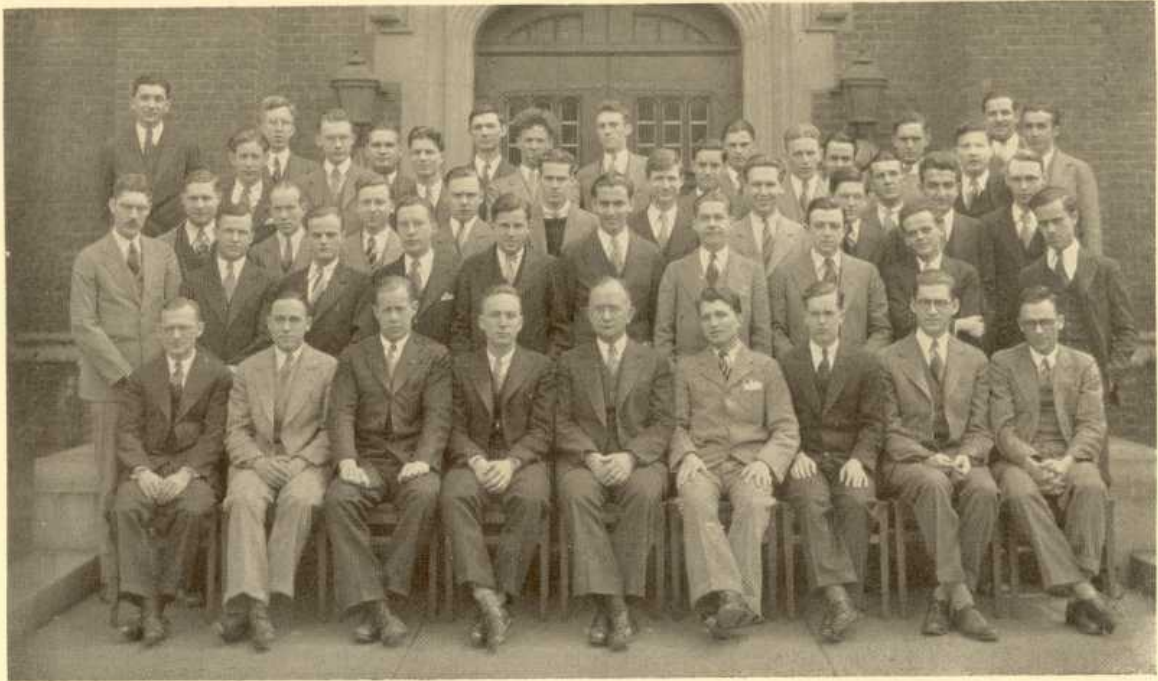

Within the last few years this condition has been changing rapidly. We now realize that the education of a child is dependent upon various factors, many of which operate outside the school.

Among these factors are the child's own characteristics, including his mental, physiological, and chronological ages, his emotional reactions, his aptitudes, his health and probably other factors that have not been recognized. Another factor is the home with the attitudes of parents, the financial situation, the moral influence, and the educational atmosphere. These may be favorable or unfavorable, but in any case they influence the work of the teacher one way or the other. The child is also influenced by his contacts on the street, in the park and everywhere he spends any part of his time.

It is not possible for the teacher to be a specialist in classroom instruction and at the same time be an expert in handling the child's mental, physiological, emotional, social, and financial problems. He must, however, have sufficient knowledge of all these factors to recognize their presence and refer the problem cases to specialists.

This means that every well organized school system must have associated with it experts along these several lines. It is the function of a School of Education to train these experts. The School of Education of the University of Pennsylvania, although it has expanded its work rapidly, is still confining its efforts largely to the training of classroom teachers and school supervisors and administrators. If it is to take its proper place as a leader in the educational field it must, in the near future, extend its work to include the training of every type of specialist needed in a school system.

Dean WARREN P. LAIRD

IN 1874 Architecture was first taught at Pennsylvania. In 1890 a separate department was formed. In 1920 it became the principal unit in the new School of Fine Arts.

While many factors determine the effectiveness of a university—the most important is the character of its faculty. In a professional school this requirement is particularly controlling.

The Department of Architecture of the University of Pennsylvania enjoys the distinction and advantage of having developed from its formative stages to its present advanced rank under the uninterrupted and eminent leadership of Dean Warren Powers Laird, who for nearly twoscore years had ensured a continuity and symmetry of policy and standards in Architectural education.

In addition to his academic activities, Dr. Laird is pre-eminent in his chosen field of consulting work, in which he has rendered service to the profession of architecture of very great value. On the occasion of the Third Pan-American Congress of Architects at Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, Dr. Laird was selected by the United States Government, the University of Pennsylvania, the American Institute of Architects and the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture as a representative. For 35 years he has acted as adviser to public and private bodies upon architectural and related projects in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thus Warren P. Laird was elected Professor of Architecture in 1891 and, by the wish of Mr. Chandler, who then retired as Director, was given full responsibility for the development of the new course. Bringing to this task a preparation formed of office practice, school training and foreign travel, he made a careful study of methods employed in the then foremost schools of Europe and this country and adopted a policy under which the department has since been conducted. This was a recognition of the fact that each of the major subjects of instruction must be taught by a master if the group effect is to be successful. This was not a discovery, for the principle is in universal practice; but the eminent success of the teaching of architecture at Pennsylvania doubtless would have been impossible but for the fact that for a longer period of years than is the case in any other American school a single principle of operation has been consistently followed under a single continuous direction.

JOHN F. HARBESON,
Acting Dean.

Dean ROBERT H. FERNALD

IN a recent analysis of the records of "notable living men and women of the United States" named in "Who's Who in America," it developed that one of the most conspicuous groups from the standpoint of distinguished achievement is designated "men of science" and embraces several thousand engineers and chemists. Detailed analyses show that these men occupy, acceptably, responsible positions in fields ranging from research in pure science to seats on the New York Stock Exchange.

From this survey we learn that between one and two thousand industrial and commercial organizations, banks and trust companies, as well as twenty-odd colleges and universities are presided over by men educated in applied science and we further find that the ranks of these technically trained men have been drawn upon to supply several state governors, members of Congress, members of the Cabinet and the President of the United States.

With these illuminating facts before us, the wisdom of the University authorities in placing exceptional emphasis upon a broad, cultural, educational background in developing the courses in the Towne Scientific School is clearly apparent.

You, who are soon to close your official undergraduate affiliation with the University of Pennsylvania, are among the first to have benefited by this more liberal opportunity for developing the technical aspects of your work on a foundation of sufficient breadth to warrant the hope that you may not only attain eminence in your chosen fields of specialized activity, but may more readily adapt yourselves to the more general requirements of public opportunity and responsibility because of the inspirational value of the type of course now offered by the Towne Scientific School.

ROBERT H. FERNALD.

Dean HAROLD PENDER

THE Moore School of Electrical Engineering, as a separate school in the University, is now in its seventh year. Prior to 1923 the course in electrical engineering in the University was given in the Department of Electrical Engineering of the Towne Scientific School. In 1923 the Moore School was established through an endowment by the late Alfred Fitler Moore, whose will designated this school as a memorial to his parents.

In 1926 part of the endowment was utilized to purchase and equip a separate building especially adapted to the needs of undergraduate and graduate students in electrical engineering. The laboratories include excellent facilities for research work as well as for the usual undergraduate courses.

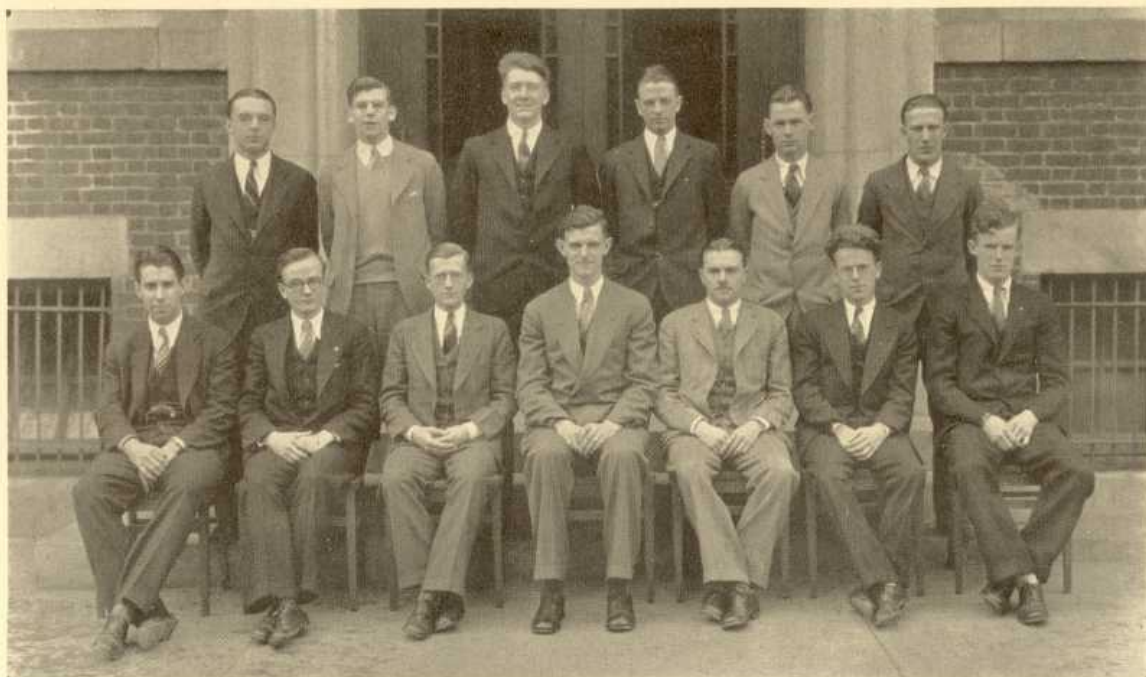

Regular undergraduate instruction is given in all branches of electrical engineering, including a thorough groundwork in fundamentals, followed by courses in electrical machinery, industrial applications, transmission, and electrical communication. There are also ample facilities for graduate study and research in these subjects. An extensive library includes books and technical journals on all electrical and allied sciences. At the present time several graduate students and members of the staff are carrying on important researches, particularly in electrical communication, X-ray and medical applications and in thermionic phenomena. Members of the staff are also cooperating in their research activities with other departments of the University, particularly with the Medical School and the Phipps Institute.

Due to the broad scope of preliminary training received in the freshman and sophomore years in the College, the junior students take up their technical studies with a broader point of view and a thorough preparation for advance work.

In October, 1929, an Evening Graduate Course leading to the degree of Master of Science in Electrical Engineering was inaugurated. Admission to this course requires a technical training equivalent to the undergraduate course in the Moore School of Electrical Engineering.

The Faculty of the Moore School of Electrical Engineering takes this opportunity of expressing to the members of the graduating class its sincere best wishes for a continuation of the success which they have thus far made, and of expressing the hope that as alumni they will continue to show the same cordial spirit of cooperation and loyalty to the University.

UNDERGRADUATE COUNCIL

IT is an indisputable fact that student government has by the very nature of its being, carved for itself a lasting place in the undergraduate life of the colleges and universities throughout the land. It is only right that the members of any large institution, such as the University of Pennsylvania, should shoulder, inasmuch as is possible, the problems and details that surround it.

Realizing this fact the student body in conjunction with the faculty brought into being in 1921, the Undergraduate Council. To this body was given the power of governing and administering the many activities of the student body. Year by year this student governing body has grown in importance until now it acts in many disciplinary matters, in addition to supervising the various undergraduate affairs.

The composition of the Council has been modified and enlarged from time to time so as to cope with the problems that have become of increasing importance and complexity in the last decade, until it now numbers eighteen men. Six members of the Council represent the six undergraduate schools; three members represent the University as a unit; one man acts as intermediary between the so-called major sports; the five remaining Senior Class members by virtue of the offices they hold, to wit: the president of the Senior Class; the editor-in-chief of the Pennsylvanian; the presidents of the Friars, Hexagon, and Sphinx Senior Societies; and the presidents of the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman Classes. With this broad membership the Council has earnestly and conscientiously performed its duties.

As Hey Day approaches to sound the end of our college days we pause in retrospection. Many of the problems that the Council faced were far from new. The various class elections, Junior Week, Ivy Week were annual events and were treated with a view to the past traditions and present conditions. A new type of class fight was successfully conducted between the lower classes. Numerous rallies and meetings were marshalled by the Council with the aid of the Senior Societies that contributed in large measure to the college spirit that was shown during the year. Considerable effort was expended in a research among one hundred of the leading colleges and universities throughout the country that should prove of some value in solving the problems that are bound to present themselves in the future. In addition to this administrative work various campus organizations, such as the Debating Club and the Blue Key Society, were subsidized in whole or in part. Such has been the nature of our work.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

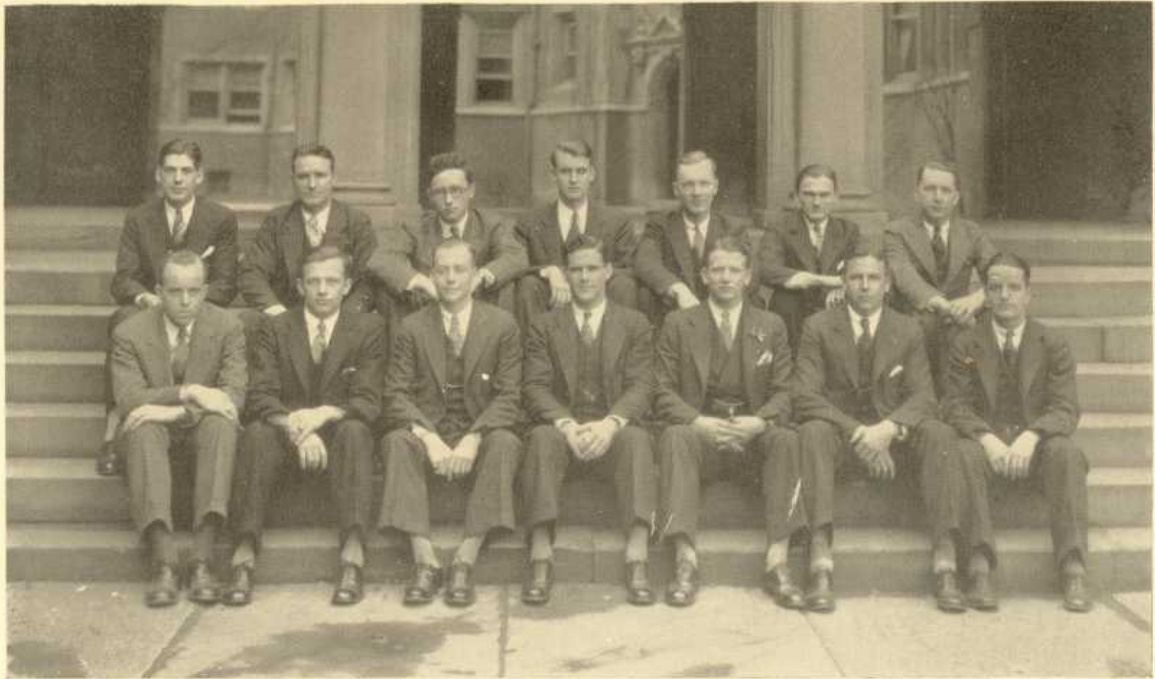

RALPH A. FOSSEY
President

THE Christian Association has been constantly aware that a rich, complete, college life demands something in excess of that which is found in the classroom, on the athletic field, in competitions, or in intimate friendship.

The members of the Class of 1930 have had opportunities provided them for personal religions such as has no preceding class. The work of the Association has extended far into the fields of social service, religious education, international friendship, church worship, vocational guidance, and moral guidance. At no other educational institution are there such facilities available for character building as there are here under the "Pennsylvania Plan."

The directing staff of the Association under the supervision of Dana G. How, general director, has had unusual support and interest from members of the graduating class. Leadership of the finest type has been supplied by the following cabinet members during their four undergraduate years: Ralph A. Fossey, President; John H. Ware III; E. Adrian Teaf; John K. Luther; Charles S. E. Simmons; Henry B. Brown, Jr.; John F. Stuempfle; Donald K. Angell; and Douglas H. Sampson.

Others such as Lawrence L. Clarke and Monroe V. Dill have assisted the cabinet with University Camp work. Robert H. Barnes served as Editor-in-Chief of the 1928 Handbook and John K. Easton filled the same office for the 1929 Handbook.

NEWMAN CLUB

THE Newman Club at the University of Pennsylvania is one of the one hundred and fifty members of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs. It was founded in 1893 as the first student denominational organization of the university's campus, and has since increased its membership many fold. The purpose of the body is to foster the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of the Catholic students.

The Club's headquarters are located at Newman Hall and St. Bede's Chapel at 38th and Spruce Streets. Reverend John W. Keogh, who serves as Federation and Club Chaplain resides here and gives counsel and advice to the individual students as well as to the club itself.

The bi-monthly meetings, the annual retreat, the religious discussions were all carried on this year in a successful manner. The members of the social service committee, particularly those students who worked in the dental clinics around the city, were unusually active and brought much honor to the Club.

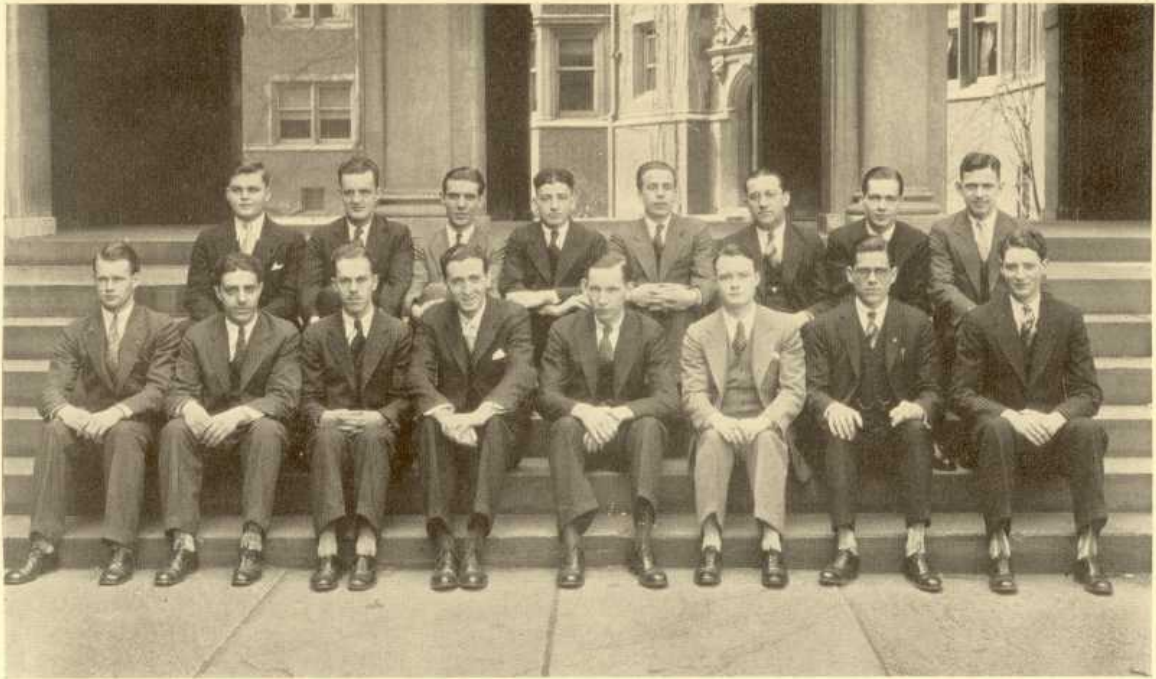

Following the Easter vacation, the Newman Club Players presented their annual production in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. The performance was well received by those attending and after the play dancing was enjoyed by the group.

With the cooperation of the Evening School and the Alumni Clubs, a Communion Breakfast was held in the Hotel Pennsylvania on Palm Sunday, April 13. This event proved to be one of the outstanding features of the year.

The club loses through graduation, James J. Slattery, Jr., and Charles L. Campbell, Jr., two of its most prominent members. Mr. Slattery, permanent vice-president of the class of 1930, served for four years on the Executive Committee of the Club and for the past year has ably acted in the capacity of President. Mr. Campbell, Secretary of the Undergraduate Council, was also a member of the Executive Committee and has done much toward the furtherance of Newmanism on the Campus.

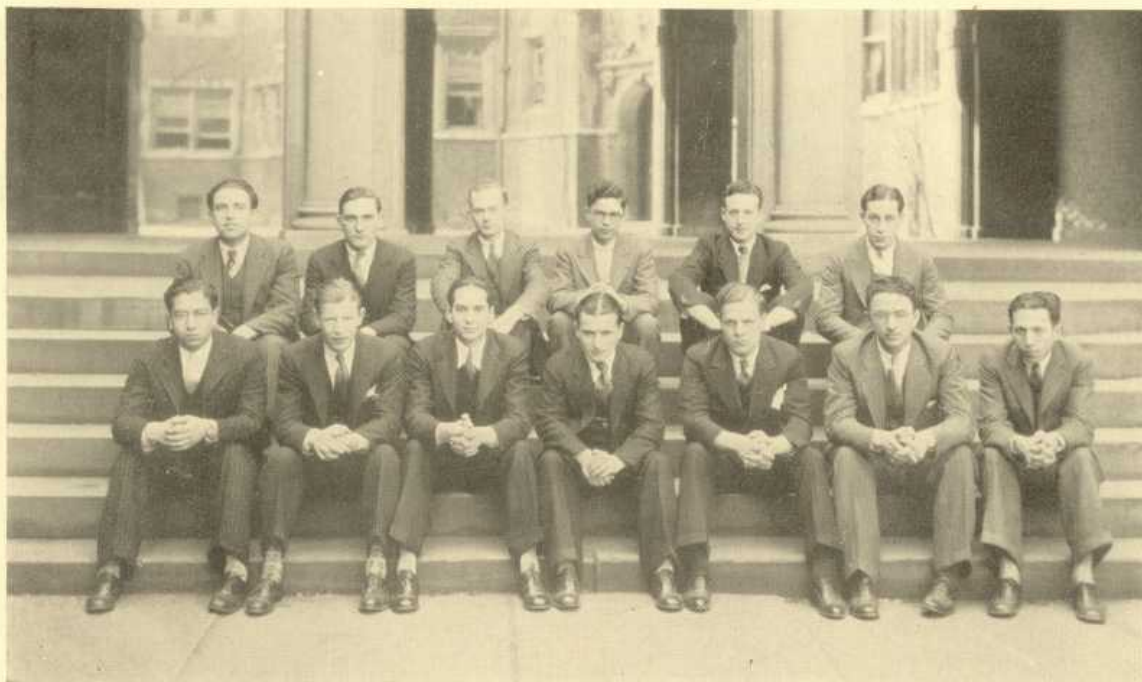

The social functions of the Club included informal dances, bridge parties, and entertainment presented at the regular meetings. The Club also participated in the Weekend Convention of the Middle Atlantic Province of the Federation at which over five hundred students attended.

The new administration which has been active since March, is gratified with the cooperation it has received and hopes to make many innovations and improvements in the club's activities when it resumes its work next fall.

UNIVERSITY CLUBS

SUPPLEMENTING the field of activity covered by the fraternities, publications and athletics, the University Clubs provide the students with a means of expressing their opinions, or pursuing subjects related to their ambitions or hobbies. Their scope is wide, including dramatics, debating, literature and social functions.

Always active in their field of endeavor, they have initiated institutions dear to Pennsylvania. The founding of the popular campus publications may be attributed to one of them.

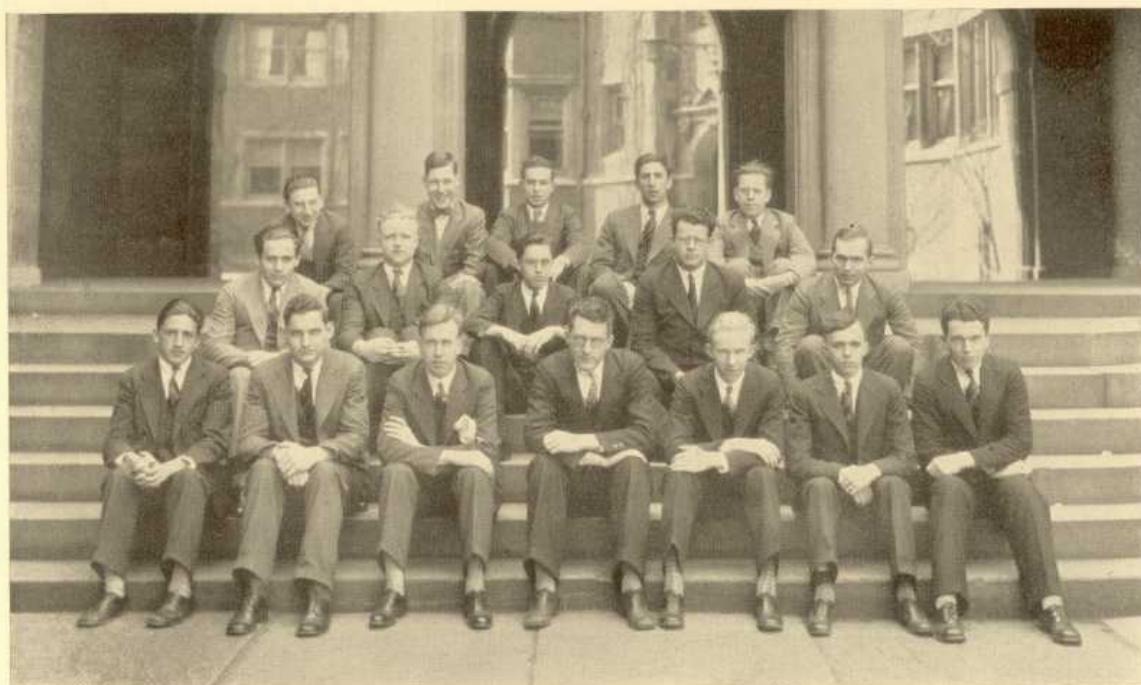

Embracing, as they do, in their membership some of the most prominent members of the undergraduate classes, they offer the opportunity of obtaining these acquaintances and the development of enduring fellowship.

The Kite and Key Chapter of the Blue Key Society

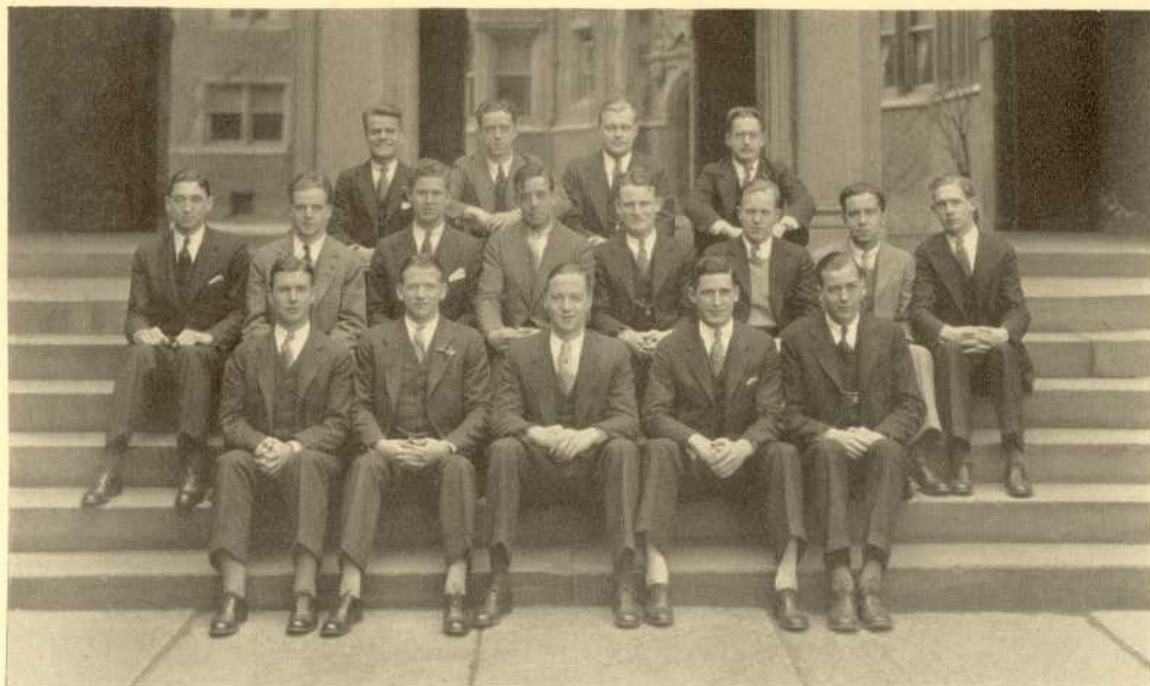

THE third year of the existence of the Blue Key Society at the University of Pennsylvania marks another advance in the scope of its activities. The National Organization since its beginning in 1924 has grown to a point where it now embraces more than sixty chapters throughout the country, each working toward a common aim, that of spreading the prestige of its respective university.

To this end the Kite and Key Chapter has taken upon itself numerous duties and functions that have been found necessary in this large institution. The Interscholastic Basketball, Track, Tennis and Swimming Tournaments, in addition to the Penn Relays have been held during the year with the Society acting as host to over five hundred school boys. This was made possible by the cooperation of the fraternities on the campus. The Annual Schoolboy Day took its place in the history of the University as another step toward influencing a better class to matriculate here. Here again the Society lent its aid to make this a bigger and more influential occasion than ever before, causing a friendly attitude to be created in the minds of the schoolboys for Pennsylvania. One of the duties of the Society was to meet all visiting scholastic teams and this duty was done with results far beyond expectations.

In order to understand the work that is being done at other universities and colleges, the Kite and Key Chapter has kept in touch with other chapters of the Society thereby receiving many valuable suggestions.

Each year the Blue Key Society is making its influence felt more and more upon the campus as an integral part of the University, and as time goes on, it should take on greater responsibilities and assume larger tasks imposed upon it by various departments, thereby living up to its motto "Service" to Pennsylvania.

The Philomathean Society

THE Philomathean Society, the oldest college literary society in continued existence in the United States, is in many respects the most representative body on the University Campus. Founded in 1813, its history has been closely interwoven with that of the University itself, and there is scarcely a prominent Pennsylvania graduate who is not also an alumnus of the Philomathean Society. The society was the founder of all the campus publications and retains representatives on their staffs.

The activities of the Philomathean Society are many fold. Its debating team competes each year with representatives of other colleges and with other University organizations. Although debating, together with the production of plays, forms a major part of the society's activities, Philo offers an unlimited opportunity for freedom of opinion on any conceivable subject through its regular meetings. Philo also sponsors each year the Inter-scholastic Debates held in the Philadelphia High Schools and awards the Philomathean cup to the winner.

The Philomathean Society has remained for one hundred and seventeen years the leading intellectual force on the University campus.

The Glee Club

IN its second season as an organization entirely separate from the Band and Orchestra, the two musical units with which it was formerly affiliated, the Glee Club has been even more active in campus affairs than in previous years. The club, with a membership of one hundred and fifty men, is the largest in the fifty-five years of the organization's history and has not only maintained its well-established reputation, but has carried forward a carefully-developed musical program.

The Glee Club's first public appearance this season was at the Academy of Music on November 27, 1929, where their usual Thanksgiving Eve concert was enthusiastically received by a large audience. The program was followed by the usual dance in the Academy Foyer, which has become one of the outstanding social functions of Junior week.

Following this concert, the Club journeyed to Atlantic City on November 29, where they rendered a request program at the Ambassador Hotel. The success of the concert was due in a large part to the excellent leadership of William S. Nagle, student conductor, and the solo work of Thomas G. Barlow.

On January 19, 1930, the group again visited Atlantic City. This time as the guests of Haddon Hall, the management of which has made it possible for the Glee Club to count this week-end sojourn at the shore as one of its most pleasant annual activities. Here the work of the University quartette was particularly praiseworthy, and received several encores from an appreciative audience.

The annual Spring production was the result of the efforts of the combined men and women's Glee Clubs of the University. On the evening of April 4, 1930, "The Pirates of Penzance", perhaps the best-loved operetta of a series of favorites turned out by the inimitable Gilbert and Sullivan team, whose efforts in the field of comic opera have never been surpassed, was presented at the Metropolitan Opera House before a capacity audience. The musical scores of the production were directed by Dr. H. Alexander Matthews, while Mr. Edward W. Mumford, graduate manager of the Club, and Mr. Percy W. Edmunds handled the stage technique. Florence Edna Kirk as Mabel, Thomas G. Barlow as the Pirate King, and David Jackson as Frederick, filled the leading roles in outstanding fashion.

The success of the Club this year must be attributed in a large part to the very able directorship of Dr. Matthews who, by his personality and leadership, has sustained the interest of the members and developed a well-rounded group which has proven itself to be fitted for all types of choral work.

For the past season the undergraduate business of the Glee Club has been in the hands of Charles E. Clinton, Jr., Manager; Jerome A. Stinson, President of the Scales Society, and Alden I. Clark and Jerome N. Doumaux, as Assistant Managers.

Publications

TO chronicle the events of our daily lives, to preserve forever the records of our victories and even of our defeats, to give expression to our undergraduate opinions, our discussions and dissensions, and yet above all to increase and spread the glory and name of our Alma Mater—these and others have been the services of Pennsylvania's publications.

To those of us with journalistic tendencies, the daily "Pennsylvanian" has offered an opportunity to display our talents. The "Punch Bowl" as a humorous college magazine has been excelled by none, while the "Red and Blue" can point with justifiable pride to a most successful year of literary endeavor.

Among our other publications, a rejuvenated "Junto" has presented an excellent field for undergraduate literary efforts while the "Wharton News" and "Triangle" have served admirably as financial and technical magazines respectively.

Under the able guidance of its members on every board, the Class of 1930 can well be proud of the successful year of Pennsylvania's publications and it is fitting that their most notable achievement should bear testimony of all their accomplishments and be a lasting memorial to their deeds—the "Class Record of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty."

The Franklin Society

THE FRANKLIN SOCIETY is composed of men interested in undergraduate publications. The Editors and Business Managers of each of the five-member publications, "The Record," "The Red and Blue," "The Pennsylvanian," "The Pennsylvania Punch Bowl" and "The Pennsylvania Triangle," automatically become members of the Managing Board of the Franklin Society upon election to office in their respective publications. Dr. George W. McClelland, Vice-Provost in Charge of Undergraduate Schools, is Chairman of the Managing Board. The other members are Edward A. Sibley, Assistant to the Vice-Provost, George A. Brakeley, Vice-Provost in Charge of Administration, and John Solenberger, Graduate Manager of Student Publications.

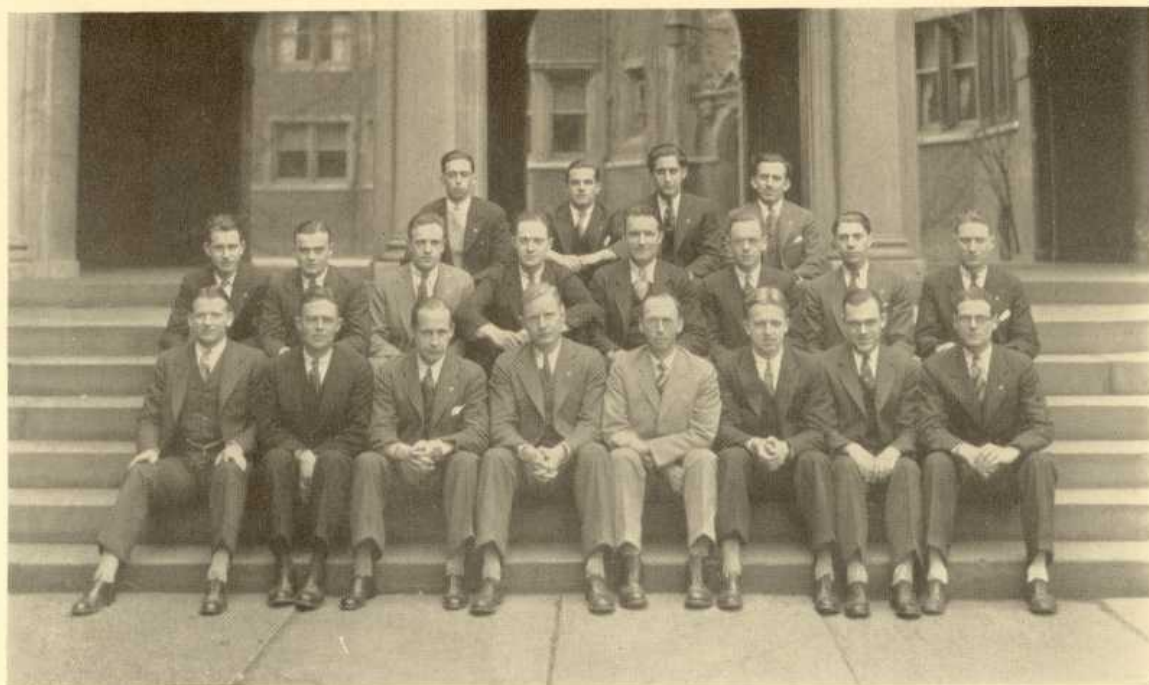

Every year two men from the Boards of each of the member publications are elected as associate members of the Society in recognition of their achievements in publication work.

Admission to the Society is open to established publications upon approval of the Managing Board.

The original thought of the organization was to develop the Editorial side of the publications, but it was soon found that the financial interests required attention. The Graduate Manager plans budgets and analyzes costs. Financial policies and their effects are studied and the accumulated experience of previous years is made available to the new men when they come into office. The financial obligations of each administration to the Boards of the preceding and ensuing years are carried out through the continuing control exercised by the Graduate Manager, who retains possession of all books and countersigns checks until the affairs of each year are finally settled. He also makes the final distribution of profits, most of which takes place after graduation, and puts into effect the plan of profit-sharing agreed upon at the beginning of the year.

Each publication pays a percentage of its profits into the Publication Fund of the Franklin Society. This fund is in the hands of the Treasurer of the University. It is hoped, when it reaches a sufficient size, that it will be the basis for providing a publications building in which will be one central office for transacting general business in addition to separate quarters for each publication.

For several years the Franklin Society has distributed tickets for the Monday night series of concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, having originally sponsored these concerts on the campus when they were given in Weightman Hall. The entire amphitheater of the Academy of Music is now reserved for the University for the Monday night concerts. This makes it possible for students to hear one of the best orchestras at a moderate price without the delay and inconvenience of standing in line for admission. The popularity of these concerts with the student body is attested by the fact that there are two to three times as many applications as there are tickets for distribution.

"The Pennsylvanian"

FRENCH
Editor-in-Chief

THE changes which marked the period of transition for "The Pennsylvanian" during 1928-1929 became more firmly established realities during the college year just ended, and a degree of permanence now accompanies their existence. The most important of these innovations, which have now completed a two-year trial, are the creation of a sporting page with comment, and the introduction of the plan of having the Junior Editorial Board competitors attach their initials to their editorials.

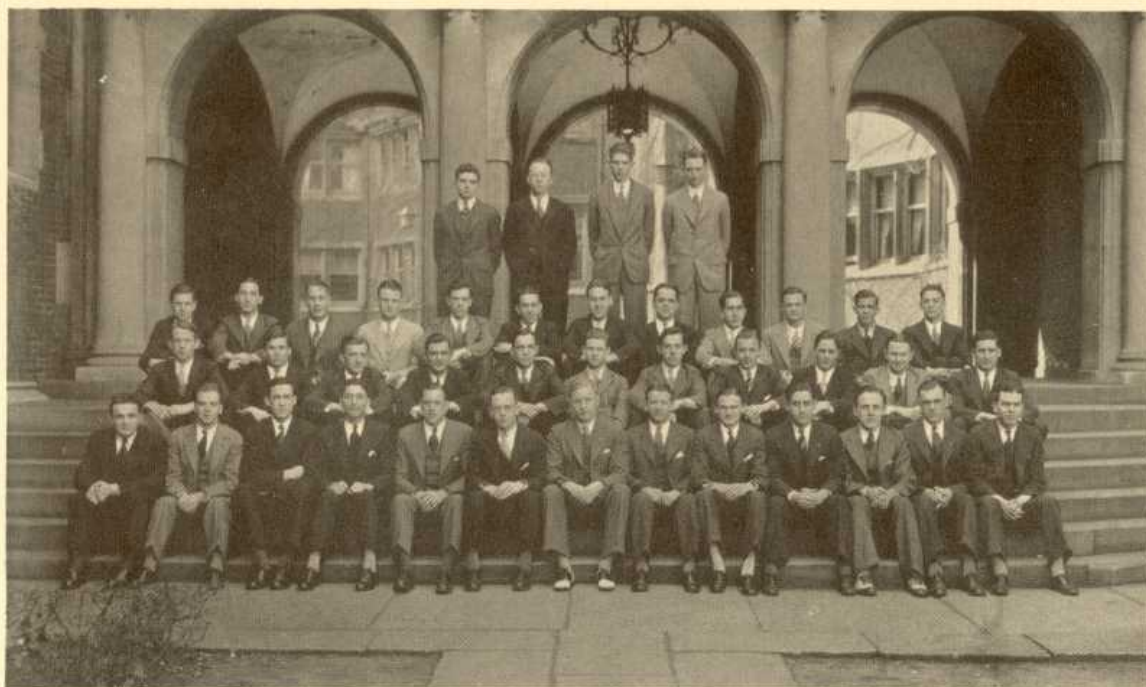

Following a long-established custom, "The Pennsylvanian" inaugurated the year 1929-1930 by publishing in September a large Freshman Issue which received a wide circulation among future Pennsylvania men. Among the other noteworthy activities, in which the daily participated during the year may be included the successful campaign against the inadequate traffic management at 37th Street and Woodland Avenue, and the publishing in an issue last March of an account of the reunion of the class of 1915, and its distribution to five hundred members of that group. The usual Cornell Game issue was published on Thanksgiving Day for the annual big game of the football season.

Members of the Class of 1930 on the editorial board, besides capably filling the managerial positions on the staff of the paper, have played active and leading roles in other undergraduate activities. "Bob" Barnes, president of the Senior Class, "Lem" Geyer, manager of football, "Bill" Day, manager of basketball, and "Monty" Dill, associate manager of basketball are members of the editorial board from this class.

"The Pennsylvanian" is an active member of the "Eastern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association," and is generally recognized as one of the foremost undergraduate dailies in the country.

Punch Bowl

NEIL,
Editor-in-Chief

IN days of yore when good men and true gathered in some ancient banquet hall to strengthen there the bonds of good fellowship, the bowl constituted the fount o'er which, with glasses upraised, they pledged to one another. And now, although the bowl remains tucked away in some cupboard, its spirit still flows free in the pages of our own Punch Bowl, the same cheer and infinite mirth still prevails. Each year come new and eager brewers; those whose facile pens and clever brushes move swiftest in the pleasant task of creating laughter.

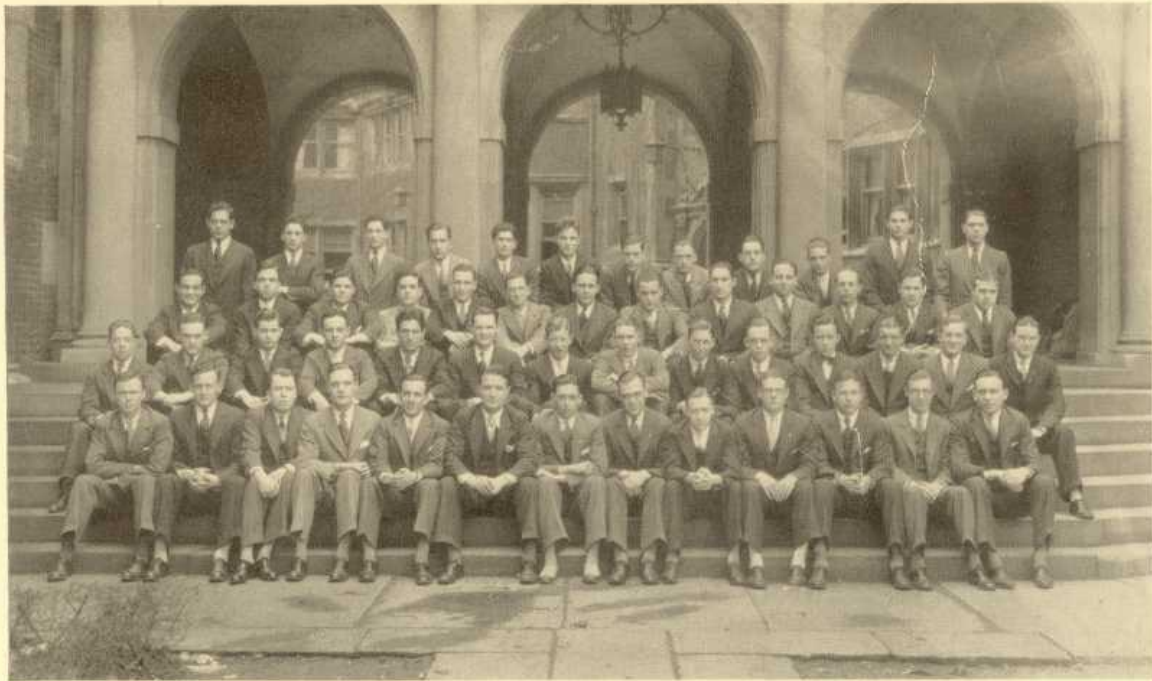

Nor has the Class of 1930 been lacking in such members, but the coveted key of the "Bowl" is difficult of attainment, and it was not until 1928 that the humorists of the class were rewarded for their contributions to their brewings of their freshman year. At this time, Henry Goldsmith, George Zeugschmidt, John Kramer, and George Neil were elected to the editorial board, and Arthur Kaplan, Lee Offut, J. Alexander Bliedung, and John Beddcoe were chosen as members of the art board. At the same time, John Shubert, Earl Gatz, Max Yaffe, Herman Kullman, John Sabel, William Spates, Charles Simmons, Lester Grieb, and Dwight Cupp were rewarded for their efforts in a business way.

Throughout the Junior year, many of these men competed for managing board positions, and those who emerged victorious from the turmoil of competition took over the Golden Ladle and the arduous task of keeping the campus amused. "Joe" "Gem" Neil was elected Editor-in-Chief, "Johnny" Beddcoe became Art Editor, George Zeugschmidt was chosen Managing Editor. "Jay" Shubert became Business Manager; "Charley" Simmons, Advertising Manager; "Nooch" Kullman, Circulation Manager, and Dwight Cupp, Survey Manager. Success also crowned the efforts of Herman Fischer, who was elected to the editorial board. In the final year, John Menihan was elected to the Art Board.

While the Bowl has behind it an imposing reputation as three-times winner of the "Judge Cup" for excellence, and the winner of the "College Humor" award for excellence, its position has been strengthened during the tenure of the Class of 1930. In the past year, the Bowl has served as President of the "Eastern College Comics Association," and increased in circulation and size. More drawings than ever have illuminated its pages and a new arrangement of material has heightened its attractiveness.

FISHER
Editor-in-Chief

EACH year it has been the design of those who have devoted their time and efforts to the carrying into effect their charge of publishing the Record, to crystallize, as far as is possible, the traditional ideals and concepts for which our University stands. With this aim of traditional representation in view, and with that eternal zest for that which is modern and novel, the Nineteen-Thirty Record Board has attempted to herewith set forth those broad mental impressions which are so characteristic of Pennsylvania, and of Pennsylvania alone. Thus it is that while the Record still embodies those essential and traditional features which have been characteristic of previous Pennsylvania annuals, the specific, individual feature of this Record is a visualization of the future: a touch of modernism, harmoniously reflected from among time-mellowed concepts and actualities of university life.

The Record is the one complete crystallization of those cherished events and impressions of undergraduate life. Although it is wide in its scope, including, as it does, the different classes and schools, athletics, publications, and organizations, it is, nevertheless, extremely personal and direct in its appeal to the undergraduates as a unit and also individually. A concrete manifestation of this feature lies in the fraternity and senior sections which exist, and ever shall exist, as an essential constituent of that transitional period of our lives when we were passing from youth into manhood.

To become stagnated is to become devoid of all worth and usefulness, and it has been the Managing Board's consistent and forceful aim to initiate innovations, that the course of the Record may partake of the nature of progression, rather than stagnation or retrogression. Hence we find four color process plates and half-tones as the distinguishing feature of the art work, and a wide variety of action pictures in the athletic section.

At this auspicious time the Managing Board takes the opportunity of extending its appreciation to those who have made this work possible, and to the "heelers," who are to be rewarded for their efforts in that they will have the charge of editing the Nineteen Thirty-one Record.

Red and Blue

ZEUGSCHMIDT
Editor-in-Chief

THE Red and Blue celebrates its fortieth anniversary under the gallant leadership of the Class of 1930. Through thick and thin succeeding Editor-in-Chiefs have brought this traditional publication to a successful conclusion in their reign. As is evidenced by the masthead many able members of this graduating class did their bit for the Red and Blue. Out of those few ambitious, who aspired to greater heights, the following were elected as leaders for the year: George S. Zeugschmidt, Editor-in-Chief; W. D. Pendleton, Managing Editor; M. K. Goodwin, Feature Editor; A. Kaplan, Art Editor; Paul H. Meyer, Business Manager; and W. Trowbridge, Circulation Manager.

The managers continued the policy of the Red and Blue with slight changes. The main feature of the year was the "On and Off Woodland Avenue" columns which were full of vital campus incidents. The famous "Who's Who" continued in existence to bring short sketches of the well-known seniors before the students. Short intimate contacts with popular professors were printed under the title "Faculty Sketches." The Book Review section was ever full of short snappy reviews of current books. And then there were special features and interviews with men, all of which articles were in some manner connected with the campus. To add a little more spice to the editorial material, jokes of sister publications were frequently used. The number of art illustrations was increased.

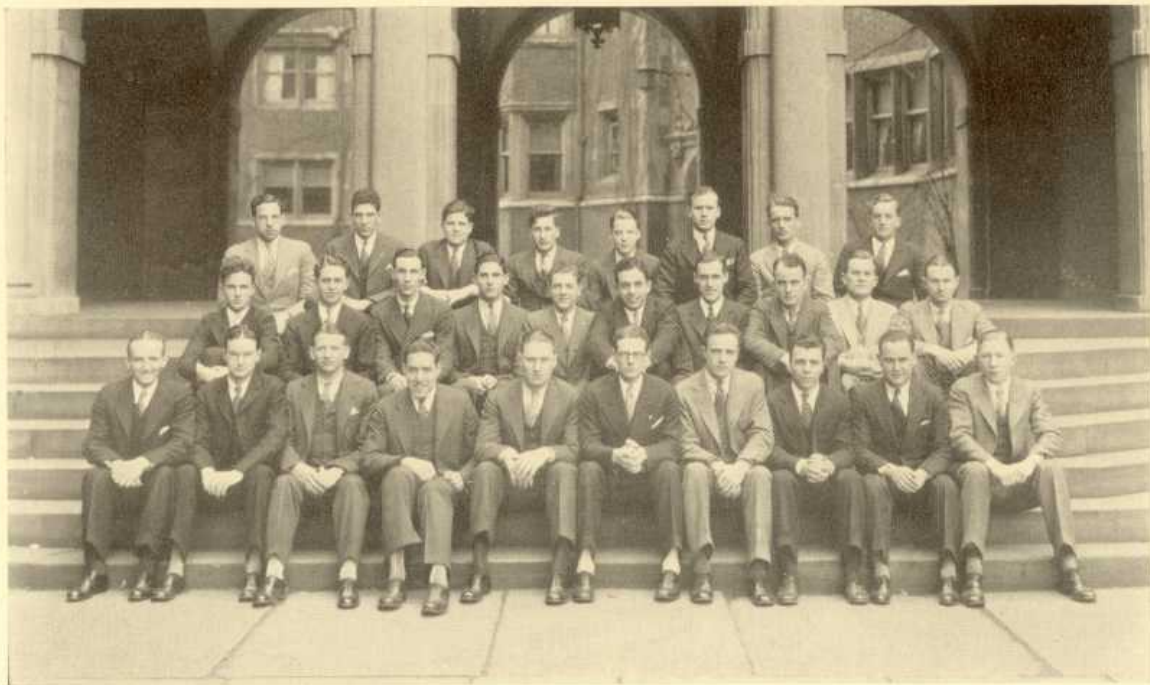

Even as the "New Yorker" and the "Philadelphia Town Crier" serve their respective interested communities, so the Red and Blue wishes to depict the University Campus and the happenings thereon. It does not attempt to be a source of daily news. The monthly issues are for the purpose of digesting the vital happenings on the campus. This publication is by, for, and of the University students at Pennsylvania. The memory of its past and the glory of its present are enough to give it a treasured place in the hearts of the undergraduates, and also those who have gone on before. Each graduate wishes to look back and review his college days. While in these reveries he sees the Red and Blue, a true Pennsylvania publication, sharing his loyalty to the welfare of his University. Thus the Red and Blue will ever continue to live in service to Pennsylvanians.

The various numbers of the magazine attained distinctive success at their issuance. The "Burlesque Number," a hilarious riot of fun, achieved great acclaim from every reader. It contained parodies on the leading University and national magazines. The Red and Blue did not spare itself in a delightful parody of the "Who's Who" section. "What Every Young Man Should Know Number" appeared at the psychological moment after the advent of spring. It was a great help to spring fever. The "Christmas," "Freshman," "Travel," and "Football" numbers were issued at the right moments of interest in their subjects. All showed a real thoroughness of preparation.

The Class of 1930 may well be proud of its accomplishments in conjunction with the Red and Blue during its four years of association with it.

The Pennsylvania Triangle

CASSEL
Editor-in-Chief

IN 1912, the undergraduate students in the Towne Scientific School conceived the idea of publishing a quarterly engineering magazine. This resulted in the immediate appearance of a Towne Scientific School Journal. In 1923, the Journal was admitted into the "Engineering College Magazines Associated," representing an organization of twenty-odd publications in numerous colleges and universities scattered throughout the United States. Then in 1925, the Journal became a monthly publication bearing a new name, the Pennsylvania Triangle. Since this time a subdivision of the schools has made the magazine a representative publication of the Towne Scientific School, the School of Fine Arts, and the Moore School of Electrical Engineering. A fast-growing interest in the Triangle, on the part of the students in these various schools, has caused a steady improvement of the magazine during each succeeding year of publication. At the annual E. C. M. A. Convention, held last fall in Lafayette, Indiana, the Triangle was awarded first places for the Best Covers, the Best Student Articles, and the Best Illustrations during the year 1928-29.

As a result of these awards the Triangle became automatically the leading college engineering magazine for that year.

The outstanding feature of the current year was the March issue, the largest issue ever printed. New sections, new section heads, and a general trend towards modernistic make-up have been entered in the Triangle due to the policy of improving the magazine, adopted by the Managing Board at the time of their inauguration in May, 1929. This Board graduates, satisfied with its accomplishments and predicting a prosperous future for the Pennsylvania Triangle.

The Wharton News

ANGELL
Editor-in-Chief

THE Wharton News of Finance and Commerce had its inception only two years ago. It was established in February of 1928 as the result of a general opinion that the Wharton School should have an exclusive publication. The experimentation period of the publication is a thing of the past, and the "News" today is an established necessity. Building upon the excellent foundation laid by the founders of the magazine, the student boards of this year, under the guidance of Donald K. Angell, the Editor-in-Chief, have succeeded in rounding out and bettering the publication in every way. Their success this year, however, is also due in large part to the able assistance of Dean Emory Johnson.

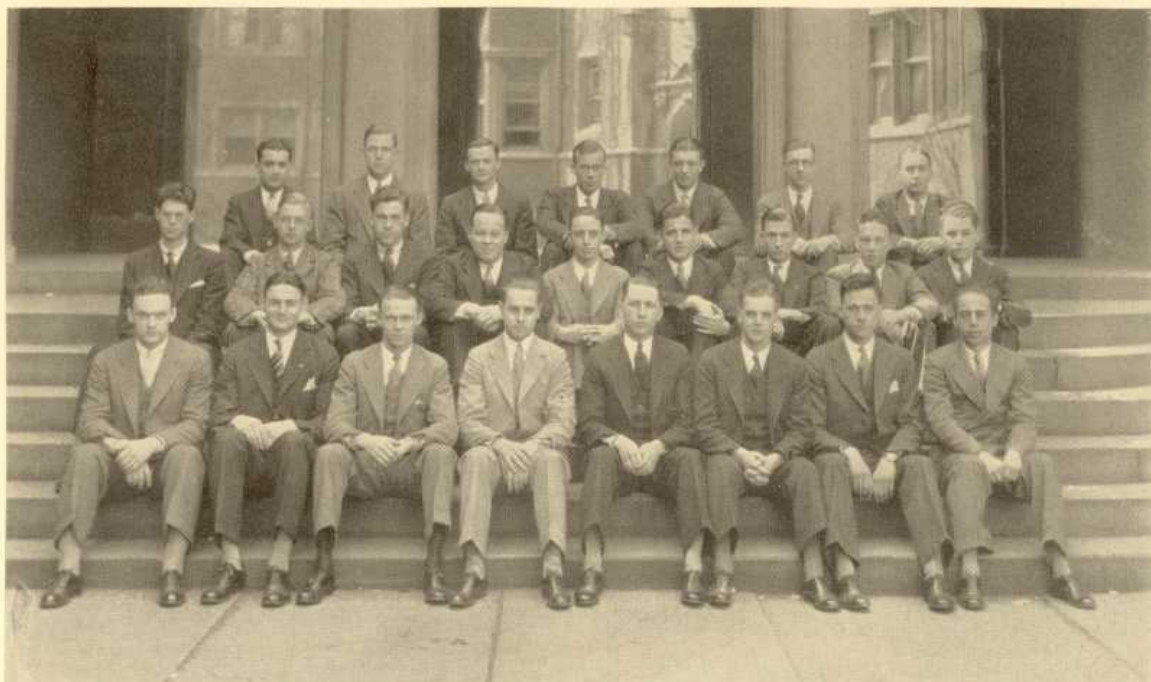

The enthusiastic support of the Wharton Alumni is a tribute to those members of the Faculty and student body who had the vision and foresight to inaugurate a purely departmental magazine to serve the interests of the student, the teacher, the alumnus, and the business man. The publishing of the proceedings of the first meeting of the Wharton Alumni Institute gained the support of many graduates. The "News" truly represents the thoughts and the efforts of the Wharton School students, and in this way exerts a powerful influence in interesting the business world in the Wharton School and its activities.

An illustration of the results so far obtained in that direction is the character of the articles contributed by the leading men in their respective fields, in all phases of business.

The plan under which the student body is editing the "News" under Faculty supervision, has proved effective. The work of compiling the "News" has been a constant force in building a practical business background for those who have engaged in its publication. The Board of Managers, who for the past year have worked with Donald K. Angell, the Editor-in-chief, is composed of Harrington A. Leedom, the Business Manager; Leonard B. Belber, in charge of Circulation; Paul H. Yeakel, Franklin H. Wolf, and Richard H. Kruger.

Editor-in-Chief

EVERY year since the establishment of JUNTO, the editors have endeavored to incorporate into the magazine new and constructive features, with the ultimate objective of creating a campus publication with professional standards. The evolution of Junto was hastened this year by the increase in the volume of the material presented to the readers, and by the widening of the field of contributors to include those outside of the academic world. The result of these changes in the structure and content of the magazine has been a gratifying flood of praise and favorable criticism from many of the leading figures in American literature, as well as from the students and the faculty of our University.

In selecting our material for publication, we have tried to be governed solely by the literary merits of the articles submitted, and we have received valuable and appreciated assistance from Dr. John Mendenhall, who has recommended much of the contents of the magazine, after his careful criticisms. To reward student literary talent, and to promote individual interests in contemporary fiction-writing, we have instituted the "JUNTO Short Story Contest," which shall be a permanent feature of the magazine.

During the current year there has been an unusual degree of cooperation among the working units of JUNTO, and from the members of the University Faculty, which has been greatly appreciated by the editors. Friendly criticism has been welcomed, and in instances has proved of great service. We are happy to say that the destructive criticism has been notable for its absence, and we think that perhaps the students have recognized and in some cases appreciated, the efforts of the magazine to rise above mediocrity to a state of superiority in the journalistic sense.

In conclusion, we realize that JUNTO is far from the state of perfection, but we do feel that progress has been made, which should pave the way to the eventual achievement of the leading University literary magazine of the nation.

ATHLETICS

Intercollegiate sports competition is firmly established in almost every University and College of the present day. Friendly rivalry in every possible form of athletics offers to all an equal opportunity to share in the glory that comes with hard won victory, or to develop that true sportsmanship that comes with defeat. Pennsylvania has always been proud of her representative teams, and it is in their achievements and glory that she now stands foremost among the institutions of the world in the realm of sport.

WEARERS OF THE D

Council on Athletics

THERE was an exceptional turnout of candidates for all teams during the past academic year. Whether this reawakening of spirit was caused by the abolishment of the old distinction between major and minor sports, or the average student is taking a greater interest in athletics, is left to conjecture.

Sufficient it is to report that the coaches of almost every sport felt satisfied with the number of candidates. As to the calibre of the candidates the coaches refused to plead. Rowing suffered somewhat by the students forgetting that the sport is one of the best body builders on the athletic curriculum.

"Rusty" Callow could have used at least fifty more than he had during the middle of April when he was laying his plans for the extensive schedule the oarsmen faced during the season.

One need only point to lacrosse as an indication of the desire of most students to indulge in some recreation. More than one hundred candidates, the largest in the history of the sport, turned out for lacrosse. And as results speak for themselves it only need be mentioned that the team scored a surprising victory over a combined Oxford-Cambridge team.

With the increased numbers of candidates for the teams more space is necessary. Where the expansion can be made is problematic. Hampered as she is by being virtually in the center of a great city, Pennsylvania cannot breathe too fully without breaking through its confines. However, some day when one of the graduating class of 1930 is reading over the Class Record and has a plethora of cash he can donate to his university a piece of land where every student can participate in his chosen sport.

One change of major importance was made in athletics during 1929-1930 and that concerned football. Louis A. Young, after seven years of success as head coach, at the conclusion of the 1929 season, decided to leave the coaching field. He was succeeded by J. R. Ludlow Wray, famed as a center during his undergraduate days and more recently as line coach of the varsity team.

Young after his resignation was appointed assistant to the chairman of the Council on Athletics, giving his attention to keeping close contact with the institutions Pennsylvania meets in all sports and acting as representative of the chairman at important intercollegiate meetings.

Wray shortly after his appointment selected his coaching staff, which included Carl Thomas, line coach, Albert Kreuz, backfield coach, Simon Paux-tis, end coach, and Lon Jourdet, assistant end coach. Pauxtis, a graduate of the class of 1909, is the only newcomer on the list.

The coaching staff received its baptism of fire during spring practice and accredited itself nobly. Judging by its early results Pennsylvania is fortunate in having secured such able teachers of the great college sport.

Since the fall of 1929 Pennsylvania has accomplished considerable success in athletics. The football team concluded its campaign by winning seven of its nine games, losing to California on Franklin Field in the first visit of a Pacific Coast team in history, and to Penn State. The margin of one touchdown sent the Golden Bears back to Berkeley happy, while State by virtue of two intercepted forward passes achieved its purpose.

Franklin and Marshall, Virginia Polytechnic, Lehigh, Swarthmore, Navy, Columbia and Cornell were the victims of Captain Utz and his teammates.

The track team not only won the cross-country championship but tried for first place in the indoor intercollegiates. Bernard Berlinger, one of the greatest of all-around stars Pennsylvania has ever had, scored eight of the twenty-seven and one-half points in the indoor championships. Later Berlinger for the second year in succession won the septathlon championship at the University of Illinois indoor games. In the same meet the four-mile relay team established a new record for the event.

The basketball team after two consecutive championships was forced to accept second place in the Intercollegiate league. Three defeats, two by Columbia, the champions, and one by Cornell prevented a third title. During the season twenty of the twenty-six games were won.

During the year the Coaches' Association held two meetings to which the leaders in undergraduate activities were invited to discuss the student side of athletics. Much good was accomplished as a result of the meetings, including better accommodations for undergraduates at football games.

THE 1929 football season had much to offer to its followers. It was a most unusual year, holding glorious victories and unexpected bitter defeats. Triumphs and disasters were met, but one fact stood paramount in the team's record. And that was the close bond, cooperation, and team play of all the men. No one or two players stood apart or distinct from the rest, but rather they were all a unit and as such played throughout the entire 1929 season.

But let us start at the beginning. On September 28th, Pennsylvania opened the season by defeating Franklin and Marshall 14 to 6 before a crowd of 40,000, a record for the opening game of the season. Carlsten's dash of 97 yards for a touchdown in the beginning of the game after the kickoff was the outstanding feature. The Franklin and Marshall team was exceptional, and scored a touchdown in the first quarter of the game, their first against Pennsylvania since 1915. Although they failed to add to this tally, yet every yard was fiercely contested, Gette's touchdown in the final period bringing the victory to Penn.

The next week, October 5th, Swarthmore invaded Franklin Field and were downed by the Red and Blue by a score of 20 to 6. Masters and Riblett did the entire scoring for Penn. Swarthmore put up a gallant fight and though the playing was a bit ragged on both sides, Pennsylvania's superior force and speed won the day.

Then came an invasion from the South, for the first game in history, between Pennsylvania and Virginia Polytechnic Institute. To Walt Masters went the individual glory of beating the Southerners in their first visit to Philadelphia. Penn after staging a third period comeback downed Virginia 14 to 8.

On October 18th, a powerful Pacific Coast eleven came to Franklin Field. The weather was warm and sunny, and 70,000 saw California play its first game in the East. The claws of the Golden Bear were too long and strong for the sons of Pennsylvania and the final period ended with California leading 12 to 7. The game started badly for Pennsylvania, Benny Lom, California's sensational star, made 65 yards on the kickoff through a swarm of Penn tacklers. The Red and Blue seemed to be faced by a disastrous defeat, but the tide soon changed. Pennsylvania secured the ball and Gentle immediately made forty yards back. Masters made a touchdown for the Red and Blue after a blocked punt by Utz. From then on the game was a bitterly contested struggle. California scored twice, failing to kick the extra points, while Pennsylvania several times loomed close to another goal, but the final whistle found them on the short side of the score.

The following Saturday, Lehigh met with its first defeat of the season at the hands of Pennsylvania. Coach Young started the game with the reserves, but Lehigh displayed unusual strength and the first team was forced into the fray. It was not an easy conquest and the Red and Blue fought for every yard. Magai scored Pennsylvania's touchdown in the second quarter while Davidowitz tallied for Lehigh tying the score. In the fourth quarter, Masters kicked a field goal from a most difficult angle, making the final score 10 to 7 for Pennsylvania.

The next week, a record crowd of 75,000 saw Navy humbled by a score of 7 to 2. It was our game throughout and Navy was kept to a single two points. Wilner made a forty-yard run for a touchdown after a pass from Masters. Pennsylvania played inspired ball and held Navy the entire game. As is the custom, eight corps of midshipmen paraded on the field prior to the game. It was an impressive spectacle and the Navy game was played as one of the bright lights of the football season.

On November 9th, our team met its second defeat of the season against Penn State 19 to 7, after clearly outplaying them during the first period. Gette, Masters, and Carlsten were injured during the play which was extremely rough. Graupner scored Pennsylvania's sole touchdown in the second quarter.

Pennsylvania, with a large injured list, succeeded in downing Columbia 20 to 0 the following Saturday. Charlie Greene starred on the defense while Gentle created the offense, making gains of 54, 26, and 21 yards. Gentle, Ratowsky and Wilner all succeeded in carrying the ball across Columbia's goal line while Gentle made two placements for the extra points.

The Thanksgiving Day classic with Cornell gave "Gloomy" Gil Dobie something to be really gloomy about. 70,000 saw the thrilling game in which Cornell led 7 to 0 at the end of the first half. However, Gentle caught the ball on the kickoff of the second half, fumbled back of the goal, recovered, and then ran the entire length of the field for a touchdown. It was the most sensational play ever seen on Franklin Field for many years. Several times Gentle seemed about to be downed, yet each time he struggled free and finally finished under the Cornell goal posts, one hundred and three yards from where he caught the ball. From that point on the team could not be stopped. Masters' run of fifty-two yards paved the way for Gentle's second touchdown. To make the score doubly secure, Masters scored three additional points by a beautiful field goal, and the game ended with Pennsylvania on the top side of a 17 to 7 score. Whenever the victories of the 1929 season are recounted, that over Cornell will always stand foremost in the telling.

The Class of 1930 has played its part well in the field of football. Captain Utz, Gervin, Olexy, Warren, Magai, Wilner, Kuen, Harper, Ball, Beaumont, Ratowsky, Hollister—all have contributed much and their names will ever conjure memories of indomitable fight and the never-give-in spirit that characterizes Pennsylvania teams.

Finally, Pennsylvania owes much to the Coaching of Lou Young and his staff. It is with sincere regret that we learn he has resigned as head coach of Football at Pennsylvania. Under his guidance during seven years, Pennsylvania teams have won forty-nine games, lost fifteen and tied two for an average of seven won, and two lost per season. In closing, the Class of 1930 wishes to express its appreciation for his interest and services.

Captain THOMAS HRUSLINSKI

VAUCLAIN, Manager

WHEN the first call for the initial practice of the season was issued by Head Coach Douglas Stewart in September, only six veterans of the 1928 squad were among the aspirants for berths on the 1929 Soccer Team, these being Captain Hruslinski, H. Redington, F. D. Graham, P. Ragan, C. Woolever, and W. Brownback. However, there was a wealth of material from the reserve squad and the Freshman squad, and under Coach Stewart's keen guidance and supervision, this group of varsity soccer team potentialities were developed into the 1929 Varsity, which throughout the season proved to be one of the most successful and brilliant teams Pennsylvania has turned out during the course of the past six years. After several weeks of intensive practice, the Red and Blue booters opened the 1929 Soccer Season with their match against Swarthmore College, on Saturday, October the 12th. This was the initial intercollegiate tilt of the year, consequently it was decidedly to Pennsylvania's interest to open the season with a victory. Swarthmore had a decided advantage in that it had retained its entire undefeated team of the year previous, but with that indomitable spirit, which is so characteristic of Pennsylvania teams, the Red and Blue booters displayed unequaled skill and proved too strong for their formidable opponents, thus emerging victorious by the score of two to one.

The second match of the season was to be played with Yale, the intercollegiate champions of the preceding year, so on the following Saturday the entire squad made the journey to New Haven to attempt to dethrone the "champs." Captain Hruslinski and his teammates put up a strenuous struggle, and when the whistle blew for the close of the second half, the score was three to three, neither team seemingly able to gain any decisive advantage over the other. An extra period resulted, but still the score remained as at the close of the second period, three to three.

Continuing their brilliant footwork and consistent drive, the following Saturday the Pennsylvania team tallied a decisive nine to three victory over the Lehigh booters. Haverford College was the Varsity's next opponent, and in this match Pennsylvania was again in her prime. Hence Haverford, unable to withstand the intensive attacks of the Red and Blue booters, went down to a five to four defeat. The score was actually not indicative of the fine playing which Pennsylvania displayed, due to the occurrence of several unfortunate incidents which prevented its being more decisive. L. Bollers, playing left half-back for the Red and Blue, fouled Haverford's outside right in the penalty area, and Haverford tallied on the free kick. Soon after, P. Ragan accidentally headed the ball into Pennsylvania's goal. Then, in the second half due to the muddy turf which had resulted from the heavy shower which had fallen, F. Logan, the right half-back, in attempting to save a shot, faltered, and as a result the ball was accidentally scuffed into Pennsylvania's own net, thereby giving the Haverford eleven a total of three goals.

The following Saturday, Pennsylvania's confidence was shaken when the team met defeat by the score of three to one, at the hands of the Penn State booters. The lone Red and Blue goal was the result of Captain Hruslinski's exceptional display of capable footwork. The defeat, however, seemingly had no lasting ill effects, for on the following Monday, Pennsylvania came back with a renewed spirit to send the Harvard booters back to Cambridge on the small end of a four to nothing score. Harvard displayed a fine defense, but its attack was broken up by the Red and Blue's invincible full backs, P. Ragan and C. Woolever.

The two remaining games resulted in victories for Pennsylvania. On November the 23rd, the team journeyed to Princeton and administered a decisive defeat, to the tune of five to two, to the Black and Orange eleven. Thanksgiving brought the close of the season with a victory over Cornell. Throughout the entire season the team displayed consistent and coherent team-work, and with the flashes of brilliancy on the part of the various individual players,

HOLMES

Pennsylvania may well be proud to relate that the 1929 Varsity Soccer Team was a close contestant for the Intercollegiate Title. This year only two men will be lost by graduation, Captain Hruslinski and "Tex" Graham, and we look forward with keen anticipation to the 1930 Soccer Season when we expect to see Pennsylvania's potentialities materialize into intercollegiate champions.

WITH the opening of the 1929-1930 basketball season, Pennsylvania, with four veterans back and excellent material from last year's undefeated Freshman team, had a strong nucleus around which to build a team that would defend its Eastern Intercollegiate League title for the third straight season. Though during the league season seven games were won and three lost, the Red and Blue tossers were forced to accept second place to the fast-moving, skillful Columbia five, which registered two victories over Captain "Ed" Loble and his teammates, the other reverse being dealt by Cornell.

In spite of the loss of the Eastern Intercollegiate crown, Pennsylvania completed a very successful season with twenty victories out of twenty-six starts. The season was opened with impressive wins over St. Josephs and Gettysburg quintets. Then followed, during the Christmas holidays, an invasion of the Palestra by teams from the West and the South. Michigan, last year's Western Conference champs, in a very fast and thrilling battle, managed to eke out in the closing minutes of the game, a victory. However, Indiana, Georgia Tech and Ohio State were turned back in succession by the sparkling Red and Blue five. Following these victories, Pennsylvania proceeded to run up a winning streak of eight straight games with victories over Dickinson, Yale, Haverford, Dartmouth, and Navy. However, a stop was put, when a great Syracuse team came to the Palestra for the first time, and before a large crowd overcame the Red and Blue tossers in the last few minutes of play, when a long field goal followed by a free throw from the foul-line clinched the game. Pennsylvania undaunted by this reverse, proceeded to vanquish Penn State in the next game and the following week, Cornell was conquered in a thrilling extra period game. The next engagement was at Columbia, where before a capacity-packed hall, Captain "Ed" Loble and his teammates suffered their first Eastern Intercollegiate League defeat. Following this setback, Pennsylvania not at all discouraged, journeyed to Cambridge where a crushing defeat was administered to Harvard, and the next week Princeton, too, was forced to accept the short end of the score.

At this period of the season, the Red and Blue's championship hopes received a crushing blow when Freddy Ullrich, star sophomore forward and League leading scorer, was declared ineligible together with Maurice McKniff, another brilliant sophomore performer who alternated at guard and at the forward positions. Another loss was suffered when Gerald Prager, a valuable utility man, left school. To fill these vacancies, Coach McNichol moved up Tom Barlow and Paul Riblett from the Junior Varsity ranks.

Cornell, defeated earlier in the season, invaded the Palestra and in a thrilling last minute rally came out ahead. This forced Pennsylvania from a tie with Columbia for first place in the League standing, to accept for the first time in three years second place standing. Then the Red and Blue five thoroughly aroused began to fight hard for its League Crown. After defeating Swarthmore and Dartmouth here, a journey was made to Yale where the league-leading Columbia five had already suffered a reverse. However, Pennsylvania's spirit and determination for victory was too strong to be stopped, and the scrapping Bulldogs were overcome. In the next engagement, Notre Dame forced the Red and Blue for the third time in as many years, to accept the small end of the score.

As Pennsylvania had only lost two games and Columbia one, it was possible for the University team to force a tie and a play-off game for the League championship by defeating the Blue and White quintet. But the Columbia five bent on winning her first League crown was not to be denied, and in a game marked by close-guarding on the part of both teams, the New Yorkers overcame Pennsylvania's stubborn resistance by the score of 29-23.

The curtain on the 1929-1930 season was rung down when the Red and Blue passers out-scored Princeton in the last game of the schedule. This game marked the end of the college careers for Captain Edward Loble, a veteran of three years service, who alternated at forward and at guard; Thomas Magner one of the best guards in Pennsylvania basketball history; and Thomas Barlow, a junior varsity performer for two and a half seasons.

In spite of the loss of these valuable men, Pennsylvania will have for the next court season the services of four brilliant sophomore performers. This includes Leonard Tanseer, a star guard who led his team in scoring; Freddy Ullrich and Maurice McKniff, luminaries whose services were lost in mid-season; and Harold Sanders who finished the season at forward position. These men together with Captain-elect "Al" Broadbeck, the veteran mainstay at forward position during the entire season and James Peterson, the hard fighting veteran center, will form a nucleus for a championship five. Other letter men who will return to give the regulars a battle are Al Ushka, Paul Riblett, and Howard Hale.

Prospects from the Freshman squad are very promising with such performers as Hendler, Clary, Mack, Kelly, Levy, and Block, which men are sure to make a strong bid for regular berths.

THE collegiate track world, in the spring of 1929, saw Pennsylvania represented on the cinder path by one of the best teams in the East. The national and international track world witnessed an indoor track team from the University of Pennsylvania complete a brilliant and winning winter season. The Red and Blue runners are looking forward to the clash with the West coast teams this May with high hopes of settling the intercollegiate track crown back on Eastern shores.

The first competition for the runners and field men came when the spring season of 1929 opened with the Annual Handicaps. The next week-end Franklin Field was the scene of a brilliant struggle between stars of high school, preparatory school, and college—The Thirty-Fifth Annual Relay Carnival on April 26-27. The decathlon, the feature event of the Friday competition was won by Barney Berlinger, who, in winning 7298.97 points, defeated some great trackmen, such as Churchill of Oklahoma, and Todd of Indiana. Pennsylvania men figured prominently in the Carnival. The distance medley team, made up of Saxon, Pearson, Ritchie, and Montgomery, won its event against strong teams from Harvard and New York University. George McCoy, then starting a fine season on the track, was second to Flippin of Virginia in the special high hurdle race. The quarter mile relay team finished second to Ohio State in this fast sprint relay. McNiff ran third in a special mile race, competing against Lermond, and Martin, two of the country's best milers. Paul Lee took fourth place in the javelin. In the one mile college relay championships, Pennsylvania placed fourth.

In a record breaking meet on May 4th, Pennsylvania, visiting Yale at New Haven, trimmed the Eli tracksters by the score of 73 $\frac{2}{3}$ to 61 $\frac{1}{3}$. McCoy, Lamberg, Merembeck, Newkirk and Ber-linger, Red and Blue men, were first place winners whose efforts in each event smashed the existing meet record. On Franklin Field, May 11, Pennsylvania men crashed through with a decisive win over Cornell. The score was $81\frac{1}{3}$ points to $53\frac{2}{3}$ points. Existent meet records on that day were not safe. Two were broken and two equalled. Barney Berlinger in the high jump and Lamoine Boyle, finding himself in the broad jump, were the record breaking performers. McCoy and Harris Sachs in the hundred, turned in fast performances to equal the meet record in their events. A close meet was lost to Dartmouth at Hanover, May 25th. The score indicates the tightness of competition. Dartmouth's $68\frac{1}{2}$ points was only two points better than Pennsylvania's. Kastler won both the dashes, while Barney Berlinger kept up his brilliant work by getting a first in the shot putt, a tie for first in the high jump, third in the javelin and second in the pole vault. Pennsylvania showed a great balanced team in every one of these dual meets and the Red and Blue's success was due to this fact.

MONTGOMERY

On the last day of May, Berlinger, Harris Sachs, Steiner, Newkirk, Boyle, Saxer, Bill Kastler, and George McCoy qualified for Saturday's events. The west coast teams dominated the Intercollegiates in the field and in the dashes but two Pennsylvania men pushed two of these Western representatives to new records. Stanford, far ahead with more than 45 points, won the title. Southern California made 21 points to gain second place over Pennsylvania with $18\frac{7}{8}$. The Red and Blue's points were made by Berlinger, who taking third in the shot-put, pushed Rothert of Stanford to a new I. C. A. A. A. record; Barney also tied for second place in the high jump; Newkirk tied for fourth place in the high jump; Lamoine Boyle was just beaten for first place in the broad jump by another Californian record breaker; Montgomery was fifth in the two-mile run; Kastler took fourth in a fast two-twenty dash; Norman Saxer was fourth in the quarter mile; McCoy ran third to Nichols of Stanford and Bud Collier of Brown in the high hurdles.

The freshman team won two of its three dual meets: those with Hill School and Cornell Freshmen. At Princeton the team was defeated by the Tiger freshmen. Steele, Kerr, McNiff, Coan, Smith and Aldred were all consistent scorers during the season for the yearlings.

Throughout the indoor season of 1929-1930 Pennsylvania was represented by consistent winners on the boards in New York City and Philadelphia. Coach Robertson, after watching his men take first honors with Cornell at the Indoor Intercollegiates, accompanied them to Champaign, Illinois, to the Illinois Relays, where Middle Western track men were shown some fine Eastern performances.

McNiff, Charles Pfeiffer, a freshman star, Barney Berlinger, and several relay men, Captain Bill Kastler, Kerr, Steele, McLoughlin, Coan, and Montgomery, and Roland Ritchie, were all high place winners during the winter campaign. They competed at the Millrose Games, the New York A. C. games in New York and at the Meadowbrook Club games.

Pennsylvania trackmen tied with Cornell for the indoor college track title at New York, March first. McNiff and Barney Berlinger were crowned as champions that night. The former defeating Joe Hickey of New York University and Barney tying with a Harvard man in the pole vault. Montgomery and Coan picked up extra points by placing in the mile; Boyle jumping in great form took second place in the broad jump; Big Fred Steiner threw the thirty-five pound weight and gained fourth prize; Ritchie, the mile relay team, and the freshman medley team, were point winners.

Pennsylvania closed the indoor season with a startling show of power at the Illinois Relays at Champaign, Illinois. The feature event of the meet was the septathlon. One of the competitors won the hurdles, the vault, the shot-put, and the high jump; he also was second in the broad jump, third in the dash and seventh in the half-mile. He won for the second consecutive year the Illinois septathlon. This man was Barney Berlinger. The four-mile relay team composed of Ritchie, Montgomery, Coan, and McNiff, established a new meet record for this distance event. A more formidable quartet of milers are not to be found in collegiate ranks today. Lamoine Boyle took a second place in the broad jump.

This auspicious performance was the closing of the 1929-1930 winter track season for Pennsylvania runners and field men. They open their spring campaign at the Relays and a more brighter outlook could not be realized. After these games and a trio of dual meets the Red and Blue athletes will enter the I. C. A. A. A. games and with the ability and spirit they have shown all year, with the steady and wise guiding hand of Lawson Robertson back of them, these Pennsylvania trackmen will not be content until they have established the East supreme in track and field.

CROSS country at Pennsylvania has had a most successful season. Coach Lawson Robertson, drawing upon last year's undefeated Freshmen team, produced a combination that is considered one of the strongest in the country and among the best at Pennsylvania for several years.

On November 9th, at Van Cortlandt Park in New York City, the annual Quadrangular meet was held. Led by Dan Dean, Pennsylvania's Cross Country team defeated Columbia, Cornell, and Dartmouth. Pennsylvania totaled twenty-one points against fifty-one for Cornell. Columbia was third with fifty-seven and Dartmouth last with eighty-one. Pennsylvania had five men in the first seven places completely outclassing the field. Dean went over the six mile course in 30.55 seconds which is considered remarkably good time. Bill McNiff of Pennsylvania was second, coming in fifteen seconds behind Dean. Joe Hagen of Columbia placed third, Captain Levering of Cornell fourth, followed by Montgomery, Ritchie, and Coan, all of Pennsylvania to clinch Penn's five places.

A short time later, the Twenty-First Annual Intercollegiate Cross-Country Run was held, also in Van Cortlandt Park. One hundred and thirty-five men started representing twenty-one institutions. Against such strong competition, Pennsylvania placed five men in the first twenty-seven and captured team honors with a point score of sixty-two. Michigan State was second with eighty-one and Bates College third with ninety-eight points. Bill McNiff was the first of the Red and Blue harriers to score, placing sixth and followed a second later by Carl Coan. Montgomery placed tenth followed by Dan Dean in the twelfth position. Ritchie came in twenty-seventh, giving Pennsylvania its total of sixty-two points and the team championship of the Intercollegiate Run.

It may easily be claimed that the present combination is rated as one of the fastest and most consistent scoring teams in the country. Pennsylvania is indeed proud of this year's cross-country team.

Captain MORTON WILNER

O'REILLY,
Manager

BASEBALL, the national pastime, has long been one of the most successful major sports at Pennsylvania. Year after year Pennsylvania has returned at the end of a season with a cup, emblematic of the Quadrangular League Championship. So, with the coming of a new season we look with an eager eye for a repetition of former pennants.

During 1927, the freshmen nine showed remarkable ability and laid promise to form one of the best varsity nines ever produced here. Throughout their schedule such men as Becker, Wilner, Walker, Callaghan and Slaughter showed flawless work on the field and tremendous hitting ability at the plate. Few of the above mentioned men broke into the lineup the next year, but the rest bided their time and when 1929 rolled around, started with a bang.

Way down south one of the smoothest combinations was formed by Dr. Cariss. These early pre-season games revealed an outstanding team. Such men as Mort Wilner, Callaghan, Becker, Slaughter, and Walker of the present senior class, enhanced the prospects of a good season and brought home the cup already mentioned.

So, with the first call of the ensuing year issued by Dr. Cariss, pennant hopes are again flying high, due to the return of the aforesaid men. As these men have worked together since freshmen days the Red and Blue will once again be represented by a formidable nine. In addition, the slugging of Carlsten, stellar outfielder, the all-around ability of Caniglia behind the plate, and the fine hurling staff composed of Peterson, Drewes, Masters, Ushka, and Rosenberg, make the prospects look doubly bright.

Mort Wilner, our aggressive captain of last year, was re-elected for the coming season. His stellar playing at second base, together with his unusual vigor, will help the team considerably in its efforts to win another cup. Callaghan, one of the best first basemen turned out by Dr. Cariss in years, is playing his usual brilliant game. Paul Becker is noted for his timely hitting and deep-field throwing. "Mule" Walker, the aggressive third baseman, will again cover the "hot corner" this year; and the clouting of Carlsten and Slaughter will once more be instrumental in sending the team to the top of the League. The diminutive backstop, Caniglia, will be seen again behind the plate, while the pitching staff of Peterson, Drewes, Ushka,

and Masters, who performed so competently last year, will be ready to assume the same burden during the coming year. A promising Sophomore, Rosenberg, will be seen in action as an addition to the hurling corps.

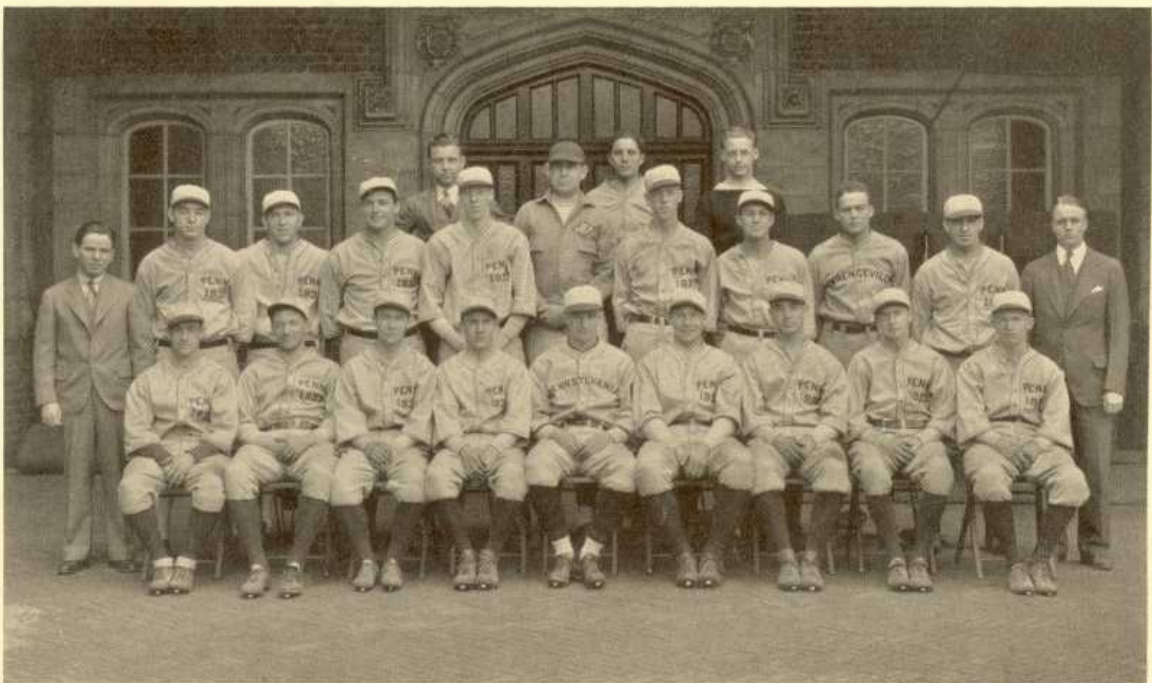

Up to date the Carissmen have won two games and lost one, getting off to an auspicious start by decisively beating Haverford and Franklin and Marshall. On an off-day Pennsylvania lost to Navy at Annapolis. At the time of writing no Intercollegiate League games have yet been played. The Intercollegiate League was formed this year, being a merger of the Quadrangular League and two more teams. The League includes the following teams: Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Cornell, Princeton, Yale, and Columbia.

The annual southern trip has been discarded during the Easter Vacation and in its place the nine will journey to Atlantic City to engage Penn State in a series of three games. Thirty games will be played this year, one of the longest schedules ever adopted by the Red and Blue. Among the newcomers are Ohio State, New York University, Villanova, and Maryland. The two southern schools, Wake Forest and Duke University, are returning our visit of previous years.

A few words of appreciation are due to others who have aided materially in helping the team. To our coaches, Dr. Cariss, Al Kreuz, and "Zip" Long, are due many thanks and much praise for their untiring efforts in making Pennsylvania an outstanding team.

BOLTON, Manager

WHEN the first call for the Freshmen Crew was issued in the fall of 1926, the Class of 1930 lost no time in answering it by turning out in large numbers. The usual fall practice was held, and within a few days of the opening of practice, several crews were rowing in barges. At that time very few of the "huskies" had ever pulled an oar, but they were all willing and anxious to learn, and within the space of a few weeks the majority of the men were on the road to being well versed in the fundamentals of good oarsmanship.

After the conclusion of the Annual Fall Regatta the various aspirants were granted a rest, but after the New Year, rowing was resumed on the machines. When the weather permitted, work was once more begun on the river. It was during this period that the fight for a position upon the Freshmen Crew began in earnest, and after a strenuous training the following men were chosen to represent Pennsylvania in the Freshmen race at Poughkeepsie: Bow, J. Menihan; No. 2, J. Weis; No. 3, A. Teaf; No. 4, C. Krampf; No. 5, J. VanQuereau; No. 6, R. Sears; No. 7, W. Pine; Stroke, K. Edwards; Coxswain, W. Trowbridge. The crew made an impressive showing in the race at Poughkeepsie, having given both California and Wisconsin its wash.

During their second year, the crew men of the Class of 1930 were not to be found idling when the fall practice started. Instead our classmates turned out with a renewed vim and vigor to strive to uphold the honor of Pennsylvania upon the water. That year in the Poughkeepsie Regatta four of the men who rowed were members of the Class of 1930; these being Teaf, Pine, Krampf, and Taeffner. The Junior Varsity Crew was also composed of several of our classmates, including Sears and Edwards. This year a new mentor, in the person of Russell C. Callow, known to the crew world as "Rusty," was secured to coach Pennsylvania's crews, and under his able leadership the various crews worked hard to maintain Pennsylvania's rightful place on the water.

The 1929 season was likewise a year during which the Class of 1930 showed its true colors on the water. At Poughkeepsie, Taeffner, Teaf, Captain Krampf, Pine, Weis, and Trowbridge represented us on the Varsity Crew. In this Regatta Pennsylvania's crew took third place, finishing the four-mile course in slightly over twenty-three minutes and forty-one seconds, just forty-three seconds behind Columbia, the winner. This year also brought with it a new Assistant Coach, James Matthews, who succeeded Fred Spuhn, upon the latter's resignation to coach the Yale Freshmen. Under the tutorship of Coach Matthews, the lightweights, composed of Missimer, Delamater, Larrabee, Kneen, Cornog, Ranck, Davis, Russell, and Anderson, showed a lot of spirit, and in the Navy race took first place with the time of seven minutes and forty-four seconds.

The 1929 season opened with the Blackwell Cup Race, which race was won by Columbia, with Yale and Pennsylvania finishing second and third respectively. In the Childs Cup Race at Princeton, Columbia again carried off first honors, with Princeton and Pennsylvania following a close second and third. In the triangular regatta with Navy and Harvard, held at Annapolis on May the eighteenth, Pennsylvania showed the other two crews her wash. It was in this race that the Pennsylvania crew rowed its best. In the American Henley Regatta there was no Varsity race, but Pennsylvania's Freshmen Crew showed its true colors in finishing a very close second to Princeton Freshmen. The Freshmen seating for this race, as at Poughkeepsie, was as follows: Bow, Butler; No. 2, Cadwalader; No. 3, Meehan; No. 4, Martin; No. 5, Johnson; No. 6, Weeks; No. 7, Cook; Stroke, Hupfel; Coxswain, Loveless.

This year the prospects for a successful season are very bright, with six members left from last year's Varsity Crew. A prediction of any nature is very difficult to make, but nevertheless, we feel confident that Pennsylvania's honor will be well maintained upon the water. Among those men who are striving to obtain a berth on the Varsity and Junior Varsity Crews for the 1930 Rowing Season are included: Krampf, Taeffner, Pine, DeVau, Lambert, Thrasher, Teaf, Grill, Vorhinger, Davis, Sheronas, Kissel, Barnhart, Jordan, Martin, Johnson; Coxswains Trowbridge, Anderson, Whitesell, Loveless, Mahaney, Kinkaid, Ware, and Miller. Among the aspirants for seats on the lightweights we find Hupfel, Davis, Kneen, M. Larrabee, Missimer, Cornog, Delaney, Martindale, W. Larrabee, Kissel, Hummel, Jacobs, and Alexander. This year, due to the early arrival of the warm weather, immediate advantage was taken of the opportunity to practice on the river, and consequently such has been the procedure since the twenty-fourth of February.

This year inaugurates a new policy in the nature of weekly regattas among the several crews for the purpose of cultivating interest among the undergraduates. These regattas have thus far proved most successful, and it is the intention of the Coaching Staff to continue them throughout the remainder of the season in the expectation that still further advantages will accrue, not only in regard to the cultivation of student interest, but also in regard to an increased spirit of competition among the various aspirants to berths on the several crews.

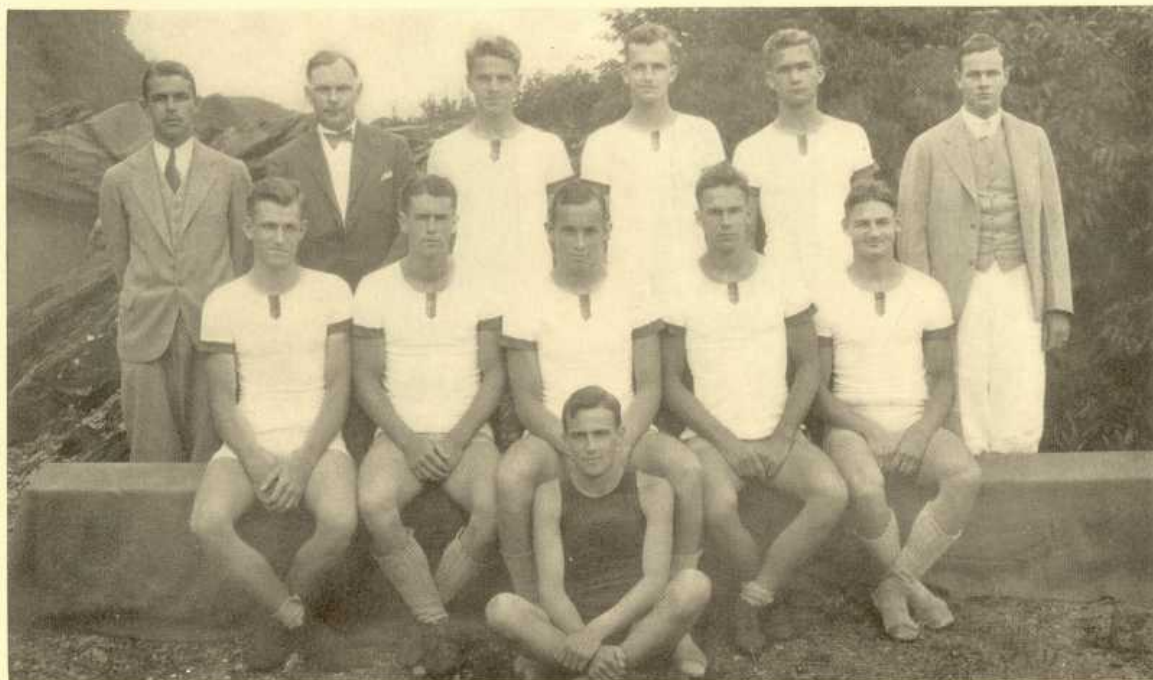

And so, we look forward to great things from the men of '30 on the river. Coupled with the fighting spirit, which is characteristic of all of Pennsylvania's teams, are the enthusiasm and morale which are only brought about under the inspirational guidance of such a one as Coach "Rusty" Callow. "Rusty" occupies a position of unequalled admiration in rowing circles and with the able assistance of Coach Matthews, backed by the enthusiastic support of the Rowing Committee, headed by Chairman John Arthur Brown, we look forward to seeing Pennsylvania's crews flashing across the line winners in every sense of the word.

THE Boxing Team, although winning but one of their meets, vindicated themselves in the individual prowess of their members. Defeat came in five meets, in all except against Syracuse, but, in spite of this, we see the team members thrusting aside the memory of past records and fighting harder than ever in the next bouts. It is a spirit of this unconquerable nature that truly represents a Pennsylvania athletic team, and indeed, we see that many of the meets were gained by our competitors by only the smallest of margins.

As in other years, the team met with powerful opposition from Penn State, Navy, and Yale, but Pennsylvania boxers never allowed themselves to become discouraged by defeat, and came back, again and again, fighting against the strongest of odds.

Merrick, of the unlimited class, lost but one of his bouts and scored brilliant victories in every meet throughout the season. It was not until the Intercollegiates held in the Palestra, that his record was broken by "Tiny" Pincura in the semi-finals of that meet. Schadel, another strong boxer, gained recognition by his remarkable ability to stand up under heavy punishment. He won his bouts against Western Maryland, Navy, and Syracuse.

In the Freshmen record, we see the yearlings winning two of their three matches, those against Bellefonte and Mackenzie, and losing to the strong Yale team.

We look to the future with confidence. The men have gained invaluable experience and with the advent of a strong Freshmen aggregation, Boxing at Pennsylvania should mark up impressive victories in the coming seasons.

FENCING is one of the oldest and most distinguished sports at the University of Pennsylvania. Established as an intercollegiate sport at the University almost thirty years ago, fencing at Pennsylvania has produced numerous intercollegiate and national champions, and in addition has developed a system of fencing which, in its physical and psychological applications, has won world-wide recognition.

This year's fencing team has been one of the most successful in recent seasons. Completing an extremely difficult season against a large number of veteran teams, the Pennsylvania foil team qualified for the finals of the Intercollegiate Championships by defeating Columbia, Ohio State, and Princeton while losing only to the powerful Navy foils men whose superior physique and experience were too much for the University trio. One of the most interesting matches of the year was the one with Harvard. Though losing the match by the close score of 9—8, the Red and Blue fencers displayed great form and able technique.

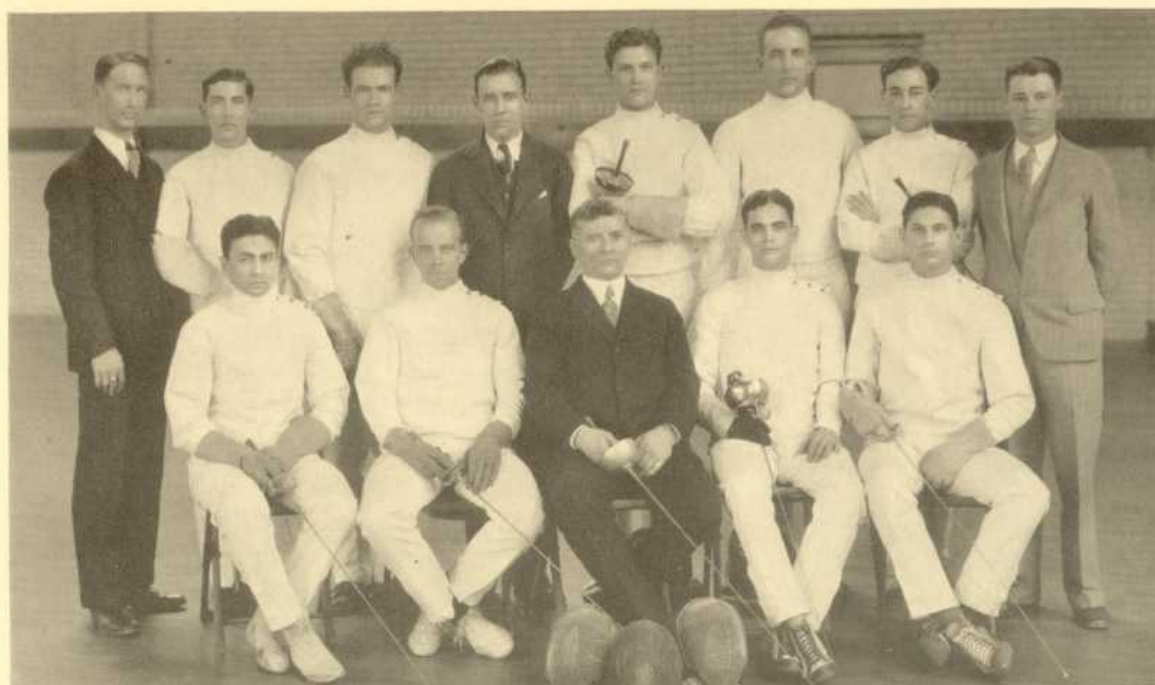

Captain Lawson, Feo, and Solomon comprised the foil team and shared equally in honors against their opponents. Neff and Tarlau, who represented the University in epee, also were successful during the season, winning a majority of their dual meets and failing to qualify for the Intercollegiates only because of the illness of Neff. Tarlau in addition placed third in the Pennsylvania State Epee Championships, and thus qualified for the semi-final round of the National Championships.

In saber Rodriguez, a member of the Class of 1930, was the University's stellar performer, and was ably assisted by Galloway. Rodriguez is the only member of the team to be lost by graduation with the Class of 1930, though several members of the team may be lost for next year's competition due to their graduation in February.

In addition to the varsity competition an innovation was made this season in the way of a junior varsity fencing team which lost to the University of Delaware by the score of eleven to six, and won from the Philadelphia Turngemeinde by the same score. William W. Pryce, Wharton '30, was a member of the junior varsity team in epee.

The freshman team also divided honors with their opponents, losing to the Navy plebes in their first meet, and decisively defeating the Hun School team in their second contest.

BRODBECK, Captain

TO Spring of 1930 the University of Pennsylvania Golf Team looks forward, with the prospects of a most successful season in view. As in previous years a wealth of material is at hand, and in spite of the fact that only two members of last year's team have returned to participate in this sport, with the aspirants from last season's reserve squad and the six stellar golfers from last year's Freshman team, Pennsylvanians need have little fear but that they will be well represented upon the golf course.

The men who constitute the regulars remaining from the Varsity Golf Team of the 1929 season are: Captain "Al" Brodbeck and "Connie" McEntee. These two men are making a strong bid to secure their respective positions of last year, and it is the intention to fill the remaining two places with those who are the most successful in the series of playoff tournaments which are to be held.

The season of 1929 was one of the most successful in years, the team coming through with fourteen wins out of a total of seventeen matches played. In the pre-season matches Ashbourne Country Club was the only team to succeed in registering a victory over the Red and Blue golfers. In the Intercollegiate Golf League matches the University continued its success in winning six of these games, losing only two, namely Princeton and Williams, respectively. In the five other matches in which the Team participated, an overwhelming victory for Pennsylvania resulted. This year was the first in which the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf League became strongly organized, and instead of the title being merely an empty formality, it is to be accompanied by a handsome trophy which is to be the joint gift of the respective Athletic Associations of the nine institutions entered in the League.

Thus far this season only two matches have been played. In the first, which was with Ashbourne Country Club, Pennsylvania tasted defeat, but in the second, with Lafayette, with that indomitable spirit which is characteristic of all Pennsylvania teams, Captain Brodbeck and "cohorts" registered a decisive victory. This we expect to continue, and thus we look forward with keen anticipation to the future matches.

LAST year was Coach Middleton's first at Pennsylvania but in spite of the difficulties of developing a new system his success was outstanding. The team made a fine showing, ending the season with a record of six victories as against four defeats.

They began the year with two decisive wins, against Penn A. C. and Virginia, the scores being 7—1 and 10—1, respectively. Their third game was against the strong Johns-Hopkins team. In this game Pennsylvania showed remarkable strength, neither team scoring during the first twenty minutes of play. In the last half of the game, however, the greater experience of the Hopkins team became evident and Pennsylvania was defeated 4—0.

The Lehigh game was very close. Pennsylvania showed some very fine team work and the goals of Pendleton and Edwards gave us a three point score that looked as though it might be sufficient to allow us to hold the game to a tie. Lehigh scored again, however, in the last three minutes and we lost our second game 4—5.

The next three games resulted in victories for Pennsylvania against Dartmouth, Georgia Tech. and Cornell. In the Dartmouth game the whole team played well, Edwards and Douglass being the outstanding performers in the 7—3 victory. Edwards continued to star, scoring five goals in the 10—2 score of the Georgia Tech. game and two of the three scored by Pennsylvania against Cornell which game ended 3—2.

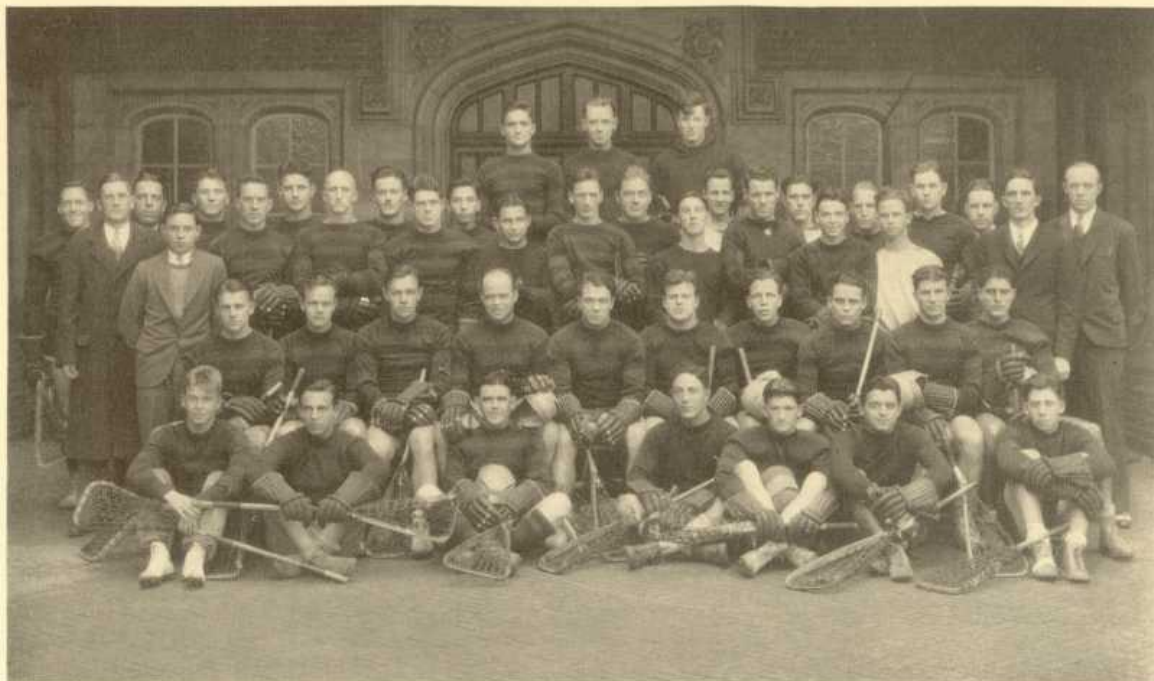

Princeton and Navy were the only teams to decisively beat Pennsylvania, the scores being 10—4 and 7—4. The Swarthmore game which closed the season resulted in a 5—2 victory for Pennsylvania.

With eight men back from last year's varsity, among whom are Captain Magai, Utz, Hunt, Silver, GaNung, Reiser, Bernheim and Schmidt, we are expecting great things from this year's team. In addition to the men mentioned, Riblett, the Sophomore football star, and Hadnot are showing great promise.

Last year's record and the bright prospects for this year's schedule speak well for Coach Middleton and it is hoped that this season will show Pennsylvania's Lacrosse team one of the best both from the standpoint of past records of Pennsylvania teams and in comparison with other Intercollegiate teams.

THE close of the season for this year's Squash Team has definitely established this sport as an institution at the University, as evidenced by the large following both for the team and the group enjoying Squash for their physical education requirements. Excitement will be high next year among the candidates because of the large number of vacancies that will be created as a result of graduation.

Coach Wallace Johnson has built up a powerful combination, considering the fact that he acts in the dual capacity as coach for both the Squash and Tennis teams and has just finished his second year in that capacity. He predicts greater popularity, better results, and more intercollegiate meets for the sport.

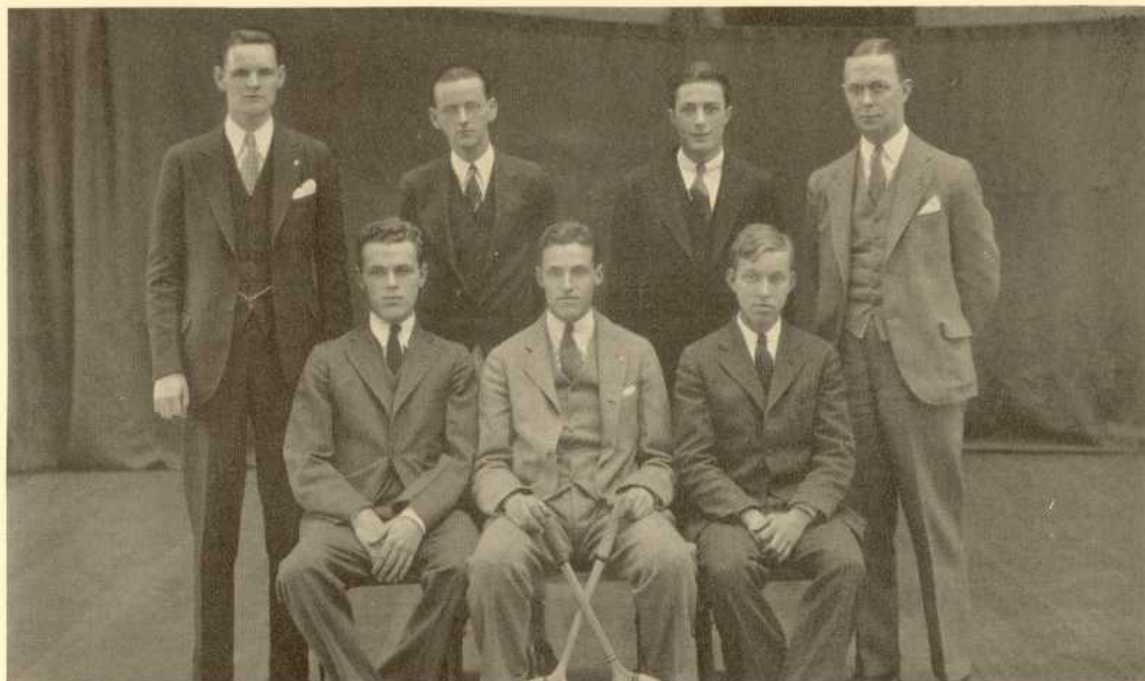

Four victories out of seven matches were scored, two by close margins to Princeton. The outstanding triumph was that over Germantown with a score of 6 to 0. All the men were at their peak and attacked vigorously and with celerity. However, in the final meet of the season the team went down before the terrific onslaught of the Harvard players, considered one of the best teams in the East.

Captain Richard Haynes performed excellently, even surpassing his skill of last year. The team was entirely experienced and gave the utmost of cooperation in their endeavor to make their last year the best year, for the majority will be graduated with the class of 1930.

The schedule for the coming season has not as yet been arranged, but it is hoped that it will be greatly enlarged to include more meets.

SWIMMING at Pennsylvania passed through a most unfortunate season. Handicapped by weakness in the backstroke events and in the 440 yard swim, the team still presented a most creditable showing in every meet. Every score of the last half of the season showed a close fight. The men displayed that indomitable spirit and good sportsmanship that is typical of Pennsylvania teams.

Adrian Teaf, of the class of 1930, was the outstanding man of the team, placing ninth highest in the individual scoring honors of the Intercollegiate League. He carried the brunt of the burden during the season in the 100-yard dash and in the relay.

Walter Grandy, closely followed Teaf by placing tenth in the scoring of the League. He was undefeated in the fancy diving in any of the League meets, and placed third in the National Intercollegiates. Carl Page was another of Pennsylvania's most consistent scorers, placing first in the breast stroke in four meets. In addition, Jack Merriam, besides being a valuable player on the polo team, starred by placing second in the Intercollegiate 300-yard Medley.

The prospects for next year are exceptionally promising. Kaplan, Merriam, Stinson, Redeker, Bates and Lusby—all these, and a strong Freshman squad will produce a team that should go far in the attempt to bring the much prized swimming championship to the University of Pennsylvania.

LAVINE, Captain

THE Tennis team, as it approaches the outdoor season, has reason to feel proud of its present showing. In the Indoor Intercollegiates, Captain "Gabe" Lavine and Emanuel Kardon after defeating Seligson, the winner of the singles, and his running mate, entered the finals with the odds in favor of the strong Dartmouth combination. With a fast attack they defeated them and gave Pennsylvania its first indoor intercollegiate doubles championship. In this same meet Lavine gave a repetition of his last year's performance and reached the semi-final round where he was defeated by Seligson, the Lehigh ace. Pennsylvania as a result of its fine showing in this tournament, finished in second place, two better than last year at which time they finished fourth.

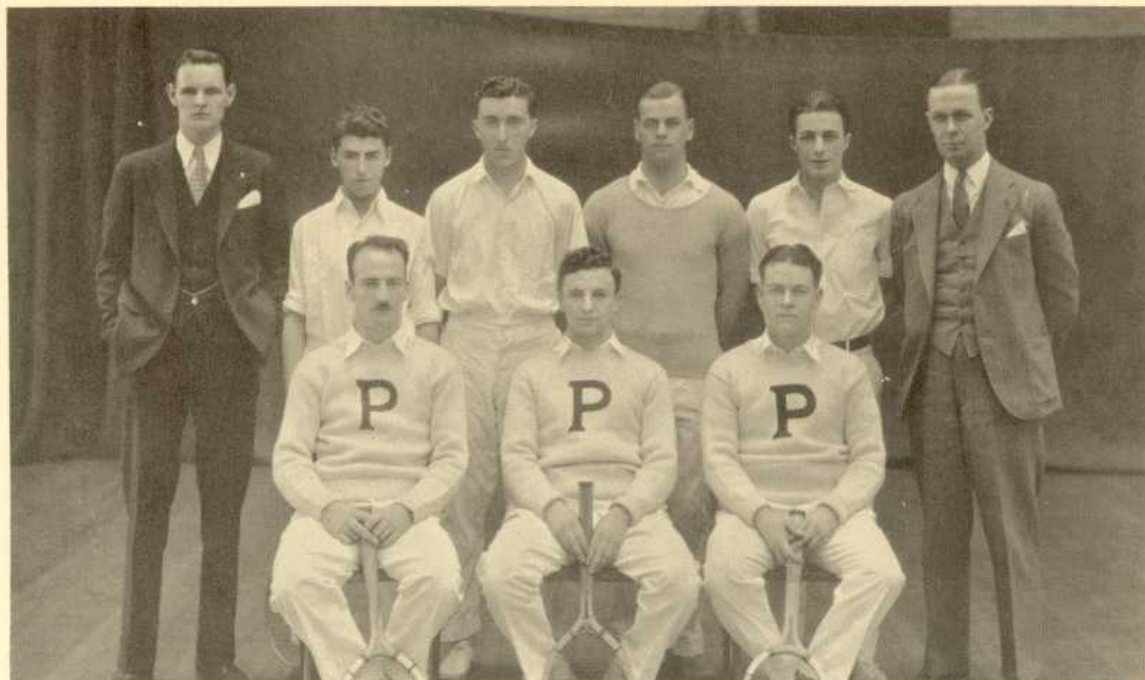

The squad is fortunate this year in having lost only one man by graduation. Wes Stanger, last year's captain, was the senior who was graduated.

Wallace Johnson, of Davis Cup fame, is starting his second year as coach of the squad, and through his influence tennis interest at Pennsylvania has reached a high ebb. Under his guidance the team has made a fine showing considering the fact that he had the problem of building a team around Captain Stanger of last year and captain-elect Lavine, and Kardon as a nucleus. Last year's team won eight out of the twelve matches scheduled.

The 1930 schedule is one of the heaviest the tennis team has ever tackled, consisting of fifteen matches with the leading teams in the East and Washington and Lee representing the South. Princeton and Harvard will be met in the coming season, and Captain Lavine and his team-mates are desirous of evening up the defeats of last year.

THE 1930 Water Polo team was one of the most successful Pennsylvania has had in years, repeating its performance of taking fourth place in the Intercollegiate League. The game record of five victories and three defeats was better than last year's of four and four. The defeats were suffered at the hands of Navy, for two years Intercollegiate Champions, and Yale and Columbia. The Yale game was the first of the season. Pennsylvania showed great strength keeping the ball in their opponent's defensive zone during most of the game. The experience of Rappaport, Poore, Loeser, and the speed of Johnny Howland, Captain of the Yale Swimming team, proved too much for us and Yale won fifty-one to thirty-one. Princeton, the second game, resulted in a fifty to four victory for Pennsylvania; Princeton scoring only four fouls. Playing Navy in their own pool, we were defeated fifty-five to seventeen.

Rutgers, handicapped by the lack of good practice conditions because of the burning of their gymnasium, was easily defeated.

In this game Captain Jack Merriam scored thirty-one points, more than enough to win without the additional goals of Dolgin and Fretz. Meeting C. C. N. Y. in New York, Coach Merriam's Team won thirty to ten. The New York boys scored one touch goal and five fouls, Pennsylvania's goal being threatened only twice during the entire game. Coach Allen brought a strong Syracuse team to the Hutchinson Gym on March 8th but the Red and Blue, playing brilliant polo, added another victory to make a string of three. On the following Wednesday, the Columbia team led by Ray Ruddy defeated the varsity thirty-three to twenty-eight. A victory in this game would have placed Pennsylvania in a triple tie for second place in the league, but the strategy of the Kennedy coached team, which defeated Yale, again proved its superiority and Columbia won by the scant margin of a single touch goal. At Dartmouth, where Pennsylvania closed the season with a victory, Jack Merriam collected forty-two points to win the individual scoring title of the League with a total of one hundred seventy-nine points.

Ed Kassel, the varsity goal, is the only regular to graduate. Jack Merriam, who was reelected captain for 1931, and seven other letter men will return next year. In addition to this, there is a wealth of material coming from the Freshman team. Combining strength, speed, and ability, the yearlings defeated the Navy Plebes for the first setback the Middies have met in five years. From this large squad of experienced men Coach "Bill" Merriam expects to pick a team that will place Pennsylvania high in the League standing.

GABRIEL
Captain

WRESTLING has had a very disappointing season this year but the team is to be congratulated for the splendid showing they made under very serious handicaps. Owing to illness, Coach "Bunny" Servais was unable to be with his team much of the time, but his place was capably filled by the Assistant Coach "Bill" Heilman.

At the beginning of the season the team was disappointed to learn that Captain Richard Knepper was ineligible. An election was held and Phillip Gabriel last year's Captain was named as the successor to Captain Knepper. Other ineligibilities confronted Coach "Bill" Heilman with the task of training an almost new group of boys to replace last year's varsity. In this Coach Heilman succeeded to a far greater extent than is shown by the final scores of the meets. Pennsylvania presented a team who only winning one meet, gave many splendid exhibitions of wrestling and sportsmanship. Although the point scores of our opponents were high in many cases, the matches were closely contested, many of them were won on time advantages, and at no time was Pennsylvania outclassed.

The prospects for next year are very bright. Coach Heilman spent much of his time in developing prospects for next year's varsity, and was very successful in this endeavor. The men who are returning will knit together into a strong and experienced team. The Freshman team won three out of its five meets, and will give the varsity several exceptionally good men next year. Sokolis the Freshman football star wrestled heavyweight and gives promise of becoming a dependable winner next year. Mann, who wrestles at 165 pounds, and Roberts at 115, are two other men who it is expected will be members of next year's varsity team. Other Freshmen who gave good accounts of themselves are Tagart at 175 pounds, Green and Chapman at 145 pounds, and Jamison at 135 pounds.

FRATERNITIES

FRATERNITIES are logical and natural institutions which have grown up to meet a very natural and human need in every young man, the need of comrades, of fellowship. The idea of fraternal association is as old as the race. We find examples in all tribal councils of wandering peoples, in the Lyceum of Athens, and in the pupils who gathered about Socrates and Plato for the benefit of mutual knowledge and association. Everywhere we find groups of men bound together in their search for certain elemental truths and ideals, gleaning from one another inspiration and knowledge.

The great essential aims of fraternities are to achieve scholarship, to promote a consideration and a love for the beautiful, and to cultivate the highest type of fellowship and brotherly love. Fraternities strive to inculcate faith in God, in goodness, as the one goal of man's destiny. They aim to guide and direct the college man into the most fruitful paths of endeavor, and to try to help him to develop into the finest, most intelligent, most cultured and tolerant of gentlemen. No fraternity attempts to remake a man's nature to conform to its own standards, but it tries to select in each man those traits which are best, and to cultivate these, and to gradually eradicate undesirable traits. Through living together in constant association, fraternities hope to make each man tolerant and broad-minded, to make him realize that he has an interest in his brother, and his brother in him, and to teach these men the beauties of fraternal association.

An Account at the First National Is an Asset

From the man in college, and to the man who has graduated

As Benjamin Franklin said, "The use of money is all the advantage there is in having money."

The Centennial has served the University for over fifty years, and the character of its service and its complete banking facilities have earned for it many customers among the faculty and student body.

While the Centennial Office is conveniently near the University, it may be more convenient after graduation for the student to use another of our centrally located offices.

What a place to tone up

COME down to Chalfonte-Haddon Hall for a few days. Snooze on the Ocean Deck. Breathe the tonic ocean air. Ride. Golf. Play squash. Swim in the sea. Lie on the beach. You can even take an all-over sun-bath, or a health-bath under the hands of an expert . . . You will be amazed at your new capacity for food. And a little ashamed of your capacity for sleep . . . New Haddon Hall is bright and modern. Here you will find that informality that makes perfect relaxation possible, that air of things well done that produces a sense of perfect well-being. Haddon Hall is the sort of temptation it is profitable to indulge in. We will be glad to send you literature. There is a place for your car in the Motoramp garage.

There is a reason why ♦ ♦ great Eastern Colleges choose to “Give it to Schilling” ♦ ♦

TO successfully portray in word and picture the events of a momentous college year . . . the high spots of a victorious season of football . . . the brilliance of ensuing social occasions . . . the plays . . . the debates . . . the everyday life of the campus . . . is a task that demands the best of skilled workmanship and the benefit of many years' experience.

That we do render such service is amply attested to by the fact that over forty colleges and schools . . . including both Government Academies . . . have repeatedly entrusted to us the making of their annuals.
