To the Class of 1925:

It is hard to realize that you are so soon to leave the University, and that I am to lose the happy intercourse, which I have enjoyed during the four years of your Undergraduate work and play; but, even though you are to be scattered and to take up in widely different fields the work for which you have been prepared, rest assured that I shall always hope to keep in touch with your activities.

I feel sure that you will carry out into the world the same gallant enthusiasm for work and faith in the best things of life, which you have shown as students. I feel sure that you will be helpful to whatever community in which you may live.

Never let any temporary discouragement dim your faith in the ultimate triumph of the higher over the lower. Our little human systems may fail, but honor and justice endure forever.

To the Women of the Class of 1925 Greetings:

You have worked faithfully and well during a period of four years. You attended classes in rooms in various buildings of the University, and you realize through your own experiences that in many respects the institution is not equipped to care for you as you should be cared for. In spite of this fact, and many inconveniences, you have set an example of loyalty and devotion that calls for special praise. It is the intention of the University, as soon as money is forthcoming, to develop a College for Women equal to and parallel to the College for men. Laboratories and libraries will continue to be used in common by all students, but you will, we hope, have adequate classroom facilities, a gymnasium, and other comforts and conveniences that the women students have hitherto lacked. The placing of a special building at the disposal of the women students as a dormitory and the building of Bennett Hall, which is primarily intended for women students, are but the beginning of what we hope will be adequate equipment. To the carrying out of the University's plans loyal and earnest efforts will be needed on the part of all who really care for the University, and believe that it has a duty to perform in educating the daughters as well as the sons of its Alumni and of the great public. Please accept my personal and official thanks for all that you have done and my assurance that we shall rely on you to follow the fine traditions that as a class you have already established. May your happiness be greatly increased as a result of your University associations, and may all good things come to you in your lives as educated women, taking your places in the community.

Foreword

During the four college years which 1925 brings to a close, there has been a marked growth of campus activities at Pennsylvania. As the last of the "Old Guard," the present graduating class has had the unique distinction of having witnessed this development. When Freshmen, there were innumerable obstacles to be overcome. With characteristic vigor the class of 1925 took up the challenge and played a conspicuous part in bringing about the process of change.

A strength and unity of organization has evolved, characterized by Student Government's strong centralizing function.

This book is intended to be a Record of the development of campus organization to its present state, as well as of the unusual rôle which it has been the privilege of the class of 1925 to hold. In this effort to make clear the most productive period of growth which has yet occurred for women at Pennsylvania, may we convey to those who read, the thrill and the joy of the pioneer which has been ours.

Greeting

To have lived happily is to have lived quickly. This, too, we have learned in our college life. Not only have our four years been a period of growth in the things for which we have come to college primarily; but they have been years of happiness through service. We have learned the truth of the sages,—that greater joy comes in giving than in receiving.

Each class at Pennsylvania has greater opportunity for service than those who have gone before. The class of 1925 is happy that it has given its best to its Alma Mater. It is confident that future classes will loyally fulfill their greater responsibilities and that they, as we have, will say "our years at College have been happy."

HELEN STEVENS.

Behind the Scenes with Student Government

HE play is a four-act romance: "Undergraduate Days," the product of the well-known dramatist, Father Time. In the cast are actresses from various companies of which, at regular intervals, new ones are added and old ones dropped. Always, however, there is one actress who prides herself on having remained in this cast for one year longer than the other members, and now it is the famous Twenty-five who claims this distinction. But, withal, Twenty-five is despondent, for the curtain is falling on the last presentation of her rôle in this drama. She has loved not only her rôle, but every setting for it. Furthermore, she has been appearing in her favorite theatre, Pennsylvania, with its lovable old stage, the campus, and she resents the curtain which ends her glory.

However, Twenty-five lingers awhile, and invites us behind the scenes. Through the narrow, dusty wings she leads us, to the cluttered back-stage. Here she brings to our notice discarded, but familiar settings of various episodes in "Undergraduate Days," and dwells at great length on the main rôle, Student Government, perhaps because, having been in the cast so long, she knows this character so well.

"In September, '21, when I was taken on," begins Twenty-five, "the leading character had a different personality and a different name from that which exists today. In those days, Time called his heroine Women's Undergraduate Association, and her chief understudy was Margaret Frankeberger. Undergraduate association formed a basis of organization for the women students, and, through plans made by its officers, who had met at Camp Firefly early in the fall, promised a very interesting year.

"But," says Twenty-five, "look at the setting Time had to give Undergrad then," indicating the various pieces of scenery," a long corridor in a building of classrooms, College Hall. There was one entrance at back, center stage. At left-stage, a doorway led to a two-by-four room called Rest Room, where mobs collected at chapel time (10.30 A. M.) and lunch hour, to eat sandwiches, buy candy and read posters. Right stage presented Room 106, and it was on this side of the stage that most of the action occurred.

"Room 106, or Undergrad Room, certainly made use of every square inch of space! Several small offices partitioned off for various Education professors. (One of these belonged to our faithful friend, Dr. Minnick, who, in the personage of Dean of the School of Education, entered the cast when I did), a large area for the School of Education, and another corner for Miss Snowden's office. Amongst all this mêlée there persevered, opposite the Y. W. C. A. desk, where Mae G. Wright was secretary, Undergrad desk. Can't you picture this conglomeration, with its harassed crowds during registration?" Twenty-five breaks her narrative with a smile of appreciation.

"Nevertheless, great things happened," proceeds our experienced actress. "That October there developed the first Pirates' Ball. How those Ed. professors ever stood the hubbub and confusion of preparations in Room 106, with pictures of bloody buccaneers on all sides, I never could see. At any rate, when the night arrived there was no dearth of evidence that a wonderful committee had worked uninterrupted by the powers that be.

"That same fall another wonderful thing happened. Miss Snowden's untiring efforts had brought fruit in the form of a girls' club house known as Bennett Club. It was opened in an old house at 3326 Walnut Street, with a wonderful house-warming, and with Miss Werner in charge. Bennett made a lovely place to rest or to study, but it was hard, at first, to get all the girls down there; Undergrad office in College Hall was still the centers of action.

"Undergraduate Association played her rôle beautifully that year. First of all, Undergrad Dance no longer struggled along in a dismal arena (Weightman), but was held at the Adelphia Hotel. This was April 22, 1922, a red-letter date in Undergrads' calendar. The next month brought our second May Day, with Dorothy Elcome as Chairman of a superb performance of Alfred Noyes' "Sherwood."

"You should have seen the preparations." Room 106 was a riot of excitement when "D" Elcome received that charming letter from Alfred Noyes himself. There were rehearsals everywhere, and, in Miss Snowden's office, Mary Dornan and Betty Cooke sat balancing tickets on one knee and money on another, as they waited on a long line of customers.

"Well, it all ended beautifully"—and here Twenty-five opens a drawer of Undergrad desk, and taking out an official-looking book, tries to point out in the semi-darkness of back-stage, an old program, and a flourishing balance in May Day Fund.

"A little earlier that year," continues Twenty-five presently, "Margaret Frankeberger and Dorothy Elcome were present at the Disarmament Conference at Vassar College, from which, resolutions expressing the opinion of the students were sent to the International Disarmament Conference at Washington. Also Beulah McGorvin was sent to a Women's Student Government Conference at Simmons College, Boston, which resulted in the present character, Student Government. Undergrad was in need of revision, consequently, the playwright, Time, had Margaret Frankeberger, Dorothy Elcome, Beulah McGorvin, Mary Dornan, Elizabeth Humphries, Florence Crush, Viola Alleman and Elizabeth Parsons, act as a committee to draw up a constitution for a student government association, which was adopted in May, 1922, and went into effect the following October.

"Accordingly, the leading rôle of 'Undergrad Days' was then called 'Women's Student Government Association,' and the first chief understudy was Dorothy Elcome. The first thing Student Government did was to institute Freshman Camp. In 1922, it was held at Camp Firefly, in Collegeville, with Sphinx and Key as master of events. About twenty-five Freshmen were there introduced to Pennsylvania spirit, and to the various campus leaders who helped maintain that spirit.

"That first year of the new lead, Student Government, brought with it a trial organization. All the members of the cast were divided into groups of thirty, and each group met with its captain. The captains met with their chairmen, who was responsible to 'Exec.'

"With the revision of the heroine's character came a new setting. No longer was Room 106 to be 'Undergrad Room.' The old guard, wandering there almost by instinct, found themselves in a strange place, for the room was being remodeled into offices for Dr. Minnick and his assistants. Student Government office had been moved to Bennett Club, where, due again to Miss Snowden's efforts, '3324' had been added to the original building. The new setting was decidedly more artistic. And, incidentally, with this addition to Bennett, there was a splendid formal opening on December 7th. It was preceded by an illustrated lecture by Dr. Penniman on the history of the University of Pennsylvania, which was inspiring and delightful. Bennett Club was honored by many distinguished guests, and was well introduced with its new superintendent, Miss Search."

At this point in the narration, one of the listening group breaks in with the question, "Was there no Freshman Reception or Pirates' Ball that year?"

Twenty-five replies, with fine disdain, "Oh, of course, they came along just the same, as they always will, each one better than the last. That is understood. But to go on—in February of that first year of Student Government, since Dorothy Elcome withdrew from the cast entirely, a new understudy, Mary Dornan, was installed for the rest of the year. The big events of the spring term were Pele Mele and May Day again. Pele Mele was quite an occasion, for, instead of the classes presenting their stunts on different dates throughout the year, all four companies held their performances the same night, together with the Song Contest. Then later, with Viola Alleman steering May Day, 'The Forest Princess' furnished the entertainment for the third celebration. How fine it was to have Bennett Club for rehearsals, and a special room with lots of space, for the Finance Committee. The days of crowded Room 106 with its rather pleasant makeshifts had certainly passed.

"That spring (1923) there was created another assistant understudy in our fine old play. This assistant was an organization at first called May Day Board, but later known as Bowling Green. It had a two-fold purpose—first, to honor those who had done especially good work in May Day productions; secondly, to act in an advisory capacity for future productions. This aim is still carried out, as you see, we can always profit by experience.

"Then along came another understudy in the fall of '23," pursues Twenty-five. "Her name was Florence Crush, but she only kept her position until February of '24, when Gertrude Willis succeeded her. Student Government was growing, and growing fast. Freshman Camp was larger and was held at Arcola. So many people came to Pele Mele that they overflowed into the halls outside Room 314, Engineering Building.

"The spring of '24 was famous for several things. First of all, one rainy day, the ground was broken for Bennett Hall; on another occasion a similar ceremony was performed for the new River Field House. Then, too, for the first time in its history, the May Day Committee undertook the making of every costume for that delightful play Justin McCarthy, 'If I were King.' It was quite a blow to have to give this play indoors at the Plays and Players Club. However, the new hot-houses which had been built where we always placed our audience in the Bi-Gardens made it impossible to continue there."

There is a slight pause, but soon Twenty-five continues, "The fourth act of 'Undergraduate Days' started in the fall of '24 with Freshman Camp at Green Lane, and with Helen Stevens as understudy. This last year, with Stevens as understudy, was my last one with the cast of this play, and I felt my seniority very much. To begin with, it was under the leadership of certain seniors that the girls more than reached their quota in an undergraduate endowment drive which they held with the men. Then, Student Government was expanded into the new dormistories at Thirty-fourth and Chestnut. Here Elsie Gerlach made an able head-proctor until February, and Victoria Kazmarck, a competent successor from February until June. Here, also, Mortar Board, Senior Honorary Society, acted as student-advisers in the dormitory government. In addition to all life, wonderful new lockers appeared on the River Field. And then we began, under Grace Haspel's direction, our own girls' newspaper, Bennett News. Pêle Mêle, too, was better than ever, for now Student Government offered a cup for the best stunt, in addition to Miss Snowden's usual cup for the best song.

"Almost the saddest thing that could have happened this last year was the resignation of Miss Snowden as Adviser of Women. A loyal and untiring friend was to be lost. I, who have been in the cast so long, can appreciate fully the services and character of a friend like Miss Snowden, and it grieves me to think that the new members of this cast will never know her in her present capacity."

And now the only thing left to Twenty-five is the thought that perhaps new rôles in future plays may prove even more interesting than that in "Undergraduate Days." With this new hope, she leads us from the dust and drafts of back-stage to her comfortable dressing-room. There, as she appears to leave the theater for the last time, she reassures us with the words, "Soon another actress will have the distinction of having been in the company longest. But she will be only the product of the improved 'Undergraduate Days' with the revised rôle of Student Government. She will never know the original makeshift scenes, nor the thrill of having played in the cast with Student Government so soon after those who created it."

And as the listeners bid farewell to Twenty-five, and close behind them the dingy, weather-beaten door marked "Stage Entrance," they wish that everyone could enjoy this famous romance of Father Time just as Twenty-five has done.

*Philomela, Philomela, lover of song,
I am in despair if we may make us worthy,
A bantering breed, sophisticated and swarthy.
Unto more beautiful, persistently more young,
Thy fabulous provinces belong.*

—JOHN CROWE RANSOME.

There is not one of us is young, as, long ago,
And under sunnier skies and far away,
Where the rose-petal'd air wav'd to and fro,
Lighter-hearted girls danced out the May.

Know'st thou the land, the south-land far and sweet,
Where dreams fly home like swallows, and the heart
Homes like a bird, when winter brings defeat?
. . . So sweet, and so irrevocably apart!

Dreams, dreams! We have fulfill'd our heart's desire
Only with these, because we have put away
In dreams some portion of an ancient fire
That flamed wherever careless youth was gay.

We too have been gay—we have laughed noisily
And opened our hearts to all-embracing mirth.
But underneath has streamed, where none might see,
A tide of sorrow, flowing from our birth.

Some one has called in pain, and one is gone
Quietly from among us where he lies.
And one groans out in sleep: Yea, a new dawn
Must be prepared against his waking eyes.

It is not seemly we should leave these gates
Where we have learned to love life, seeing it whole,
Before we pledge whatever honor waits,
To you that honor as you gave the goal.

FIRST CRUISE

Margaret Schell

September 28, 1921, before the sun was high in the heavens, about ten small girls were seen to walk timidly up the gang-plank of the old ship Pennsylvania. Strange they were in their actions, and an observer would have said they were about to embark upon some strange, hazardous voyage. The observer would have been right, for this group of bewildered souls constituted the first appearance of the 1925 crew for the good ship Pennsylvania. To the ten, throngs were added, and at length no less than two hundred and fifty were aboard when anchor was weighed and we set sail on the vast Sea of Knowledge.

The shores fast retreated from sight, and we went into one of the salons in the middle of the ship to escape the motion of the boat and avoid sea-sickness. We were greeted with blanks! blanks! blanks! The Y. W. wanted to know our religion; the Dean wanted to know our father's name, and whether any relative of ours had ever made a voyage on the Pennsylvania.

Studies began with a vengeance, before we had our sea-legs. We were soon scattered fore and aft on our duties. The rolling of the ship made us all sea-sick. Sometimes we even wished that we hadn't embarked on this troublesome sea.

Pirates Ball gave us more confidence. The lieutenants, captains, commanders abandoned their customary uniform and dressed like the dreaded sea riders of an age little passed. We met our superiors in the various salons of our great ship and entered Weightman for the first time. This is on the men's side of the ship. We had often passed Weightman in our rounds of the vessel, but now saw it for the first time.

Not much later, amid much stealth, the crew chose its commanders in the isolated "Zo" salon. Flo Crush was acclaimed our Skipper, and we guarded her very carefully, but not entirely successfully, against the lieutenants who were hostile to any assertion of power or organization on the part of the newly enlisted crew.

A part of our main deck is called Franklin Field. Every Saturday afternoon found a sister-ship anchored close to ours, and football crews boarding and making their way to our arena. Our willing sailors bought as many season tickets as all the other divisions combined. How we yelled for Penn that year! How wonderful, increasingly wonderful it was, to be a mate on the S. S. Pennsylvania.

We cast anchor and went ashore in the haven of Christmas, but the delight of our days and nights ashore soon passed, for as we put to sea again storm clouds loomed upon our horizon. Somehow we weathered the mountainous seas of examinations and emerged mathless and zoless but otherwise generally intact.

The second leg of our cruise started in a kaleidoscopic jumble of increased Education, eighty requirements and a revelation of the unbelievably hopeless conditions of the World Fleet by Navigator Kelsey, and a series of teams for the February recruiting.

We were now considered to have proven our worth, and were treated cordially by our superiors, the lieutenants, commanders and captains. We co-operated in a celebration named May Day, and were even given parts in it. Our chief work was that of deck hands, who gathered trees ashore turning the Botanical Gardens into a Sherwood Forest for Robin Hood and his merrie men.

Finally, worn by service, battered and a little shaken by the waves of the Sea of Knowledge, we came into the port of "one year," and the Pennsylvania went into drydock for overhaul and repair.

SECOND CRUISE

When we again set forth into the seapaths of the Ocean of Knowledge, we were lieutenants. There was not the sea-sickness, home-sickness, and indecision that had characterized our first cruise. But being a lieutenant was, after all, a snare and a delusion. As sailors we had scrubbed the decks of Languages, and our lot had been made very hard by the lieutenants. We wanted to tyrannize over the new sailors in their own interest, of course. Discipline brings up the morale of the ship. But our new officers—under the leadership of Skipper Siter—forbade the hostility practiced on us to be repeated by us.

Indeed, we found little time to tyrannize over the "boots." We were now located down in the engine room amid the machinery and the boilers. One huge engine, The Economics, gave us a great deal of trouble, and needed constant attention. One of the Boilers, the Education, No. 10, was constantly leaking, would not keep up the required stream to propel the ship, and a great deal of studying on the operation of boilers was necessary to keep it going.

Our inherent superiority began to show towards the end of the year. Several of our members were taken from the engine room and brought to the commanding officers' quarters and given executive duty. Betty Cook was chosen Assistant Financial Chairman of May Day, and also Advertising Manager of Record Book; Flo Crush became the Bursar of the ship.

THIRD CRUISE

Everyone commented on the increased speed the Pennsylvania made this cruise. Some of our members, through preference, continued to spend nearly all their time in the engine room, and the tinkering of the last cruise had made them experts in tuning up the machinery.

But not all cared to spend the entire time in the greasy grind of the machinery down below, and these spent their time keeping the vessel ship-shape, directing its affairs in the aspects of Y. W., A. A., and ship's organization.

The cruise had its high spots and its low ones too, but in the course of time they have come to be blended into each other, until in retrospect there is little else that the mind's eye finds especially to recall. Certainly we had begun to assume our responsibilities as officers, and were getting ready for the full direction of the ship which would be ours the coming year.

FOURTH CRUISE

A strange metamorphosis had taken place during summer leave. It was quite noticeable to the navigators as soon as we boarded the ship for the last cruise. Our mates had all the stateliness of the Captains of 1921 whom we had admired when we were Sailors. We remember the same admiration in the eyes of the new crew that we had for the Captains of 1921. We are still puzzled to account for the change.

At any rate, the Metamorphosed organized Bennett News in October, and constituted the Managing Board, with the exception of one lieutenant.

Quite a number of us took us living quarters on the new deck that was added to the ship during our summer leave, known as Sergeant Hall. Captain Elsie Gerlach assumed the herculean task of organizing the new deck the first leg of the cruise, and Captain Victoria Kasmarek succeeded to command the last term.

Everything on the Pennsylvania was arranged for the pleasure of the senior officers the second week in March, and the period was called Senior Week in our honor. Rose Green gave us the best of the three Pêlè-Mêles which the Pennsylvania has seen. Then there was a Senior Walk, a Senior Tea, a Senior Luncheon, and finally a Senior Banquet and Dance.

And now the cruise has been completed, and our training is ended. The Pennsylvania has returned us as finished officer material. We must disembark and take up our duties on the vessels of the World Fleet, and sail the seas of life which stretch away before us.

Most of us will be pilots on smaller ships. Some of us will embark upon tiny scout planes and it will be our duty to search out unknown paths in the sea, to venture into unexplored waters and then radio back the news. Some of us will search its thousand-sided shores for new and wonderful things never before known. So far we have only traversed beaten courses. But we will never forget the happy days of training when, as the class of '25, we sang our songs to the stars above, the seas below, and the gentle breezes about us.

was Junior-Freshman Party, Captain Braungard and Della Rigby being the outstanding stars; '27 offered keen opposition, but '26 placed first due to the elimination in the final heat of the only surviving Sophomore contestant.

In Field Day, '26 tied with '28 for second place, an unheard of achievement for a Junior team, at the same time continuing their winning streak by defeating '25 in the Junior-Senior Hockey Game.

Then followed the distance event, where the co-operation and indomitable spirit of '26 withstood the long, hard grind and carried them on past the last sprint through Mid-Years.

Heartened by their previous successes, the Junior team is pointing for Pêle-Mêle and May Day and

"Tho' sometimes the sky may turn to gray,
They'll stand and cheer each other on the way,
And tho' it's gray it soon will turn to blue.

From the ridiculous to the sublime—that's the way we felt when we realized that our Freshmen days were over, and that we could assume the traditional rôle of the haughty Sophomore. To prepare ourselves speedily and thoroughly for our new work, we held Sophomore Camp. Freshman Camp had held its delights, but they were pale beside those of Sophomore Camp, when we united after vacation, realizing fully just how much Pennsylvania meant to each one of us. What good times we crowded into the brief space of two days! The evening around the campfire, the swims, and, by no means least, the jolly times at meals gave us just the right start. It was at Camp that our musical gems developed, notably "Oh Frosh, Frosh, grass is green," "Penn-Penn-Pennsylvania," and "Frosh, Frosh, watch your step."

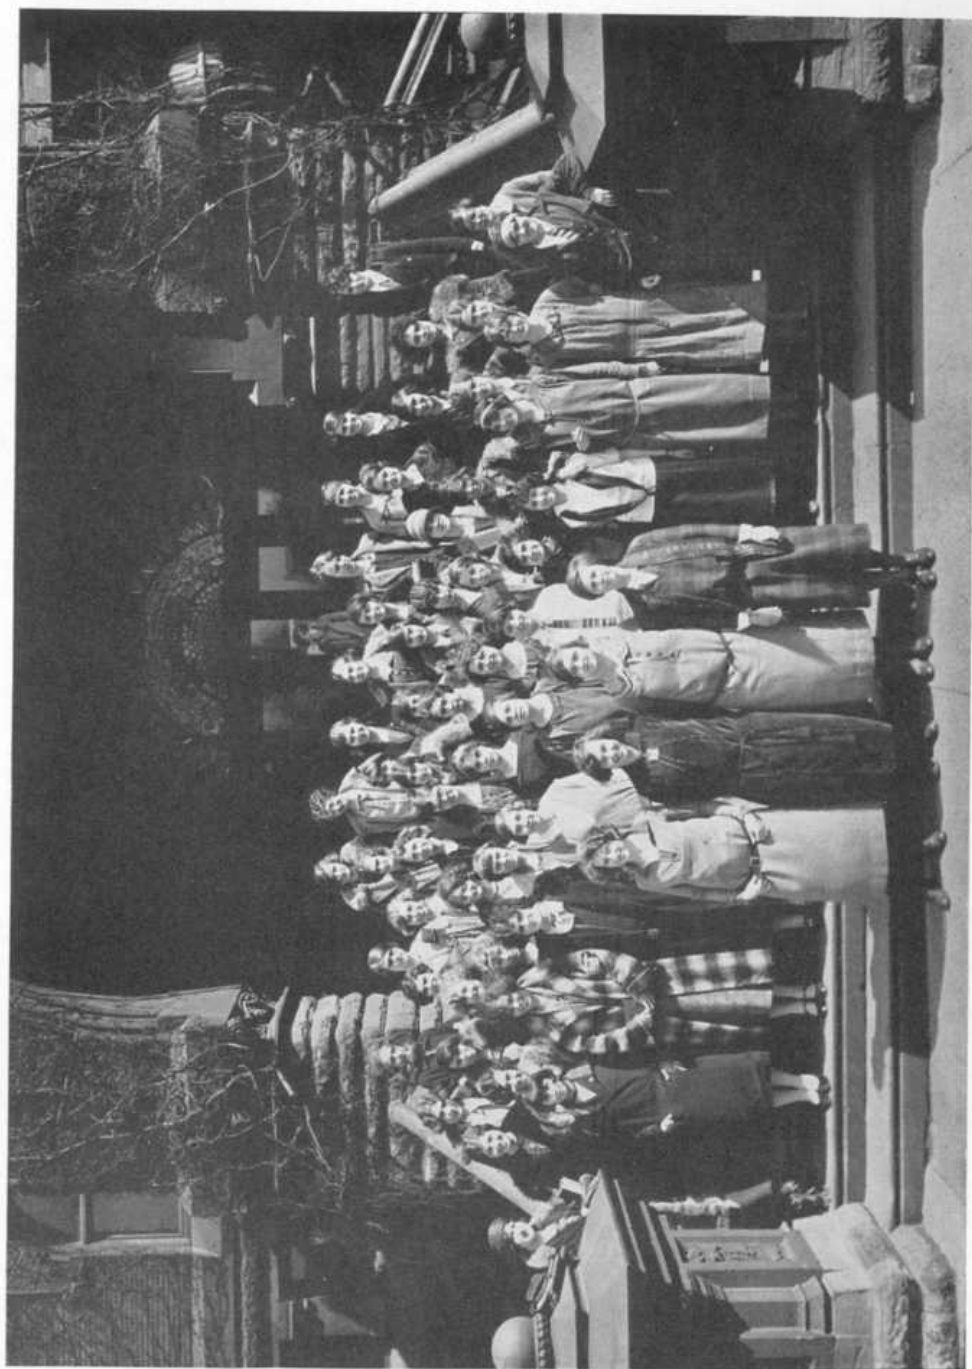

We did our best to haze thoroughly. The slightest deviation from the strait and narrow path (hats, black stockings and buttons) brought Sophomorical vengeance upon Freshmen heads. Nickels accumulated to swell the treasury. The Freshmen will not soon forget the bloodthirsty Sophs who waylaid them on the way to Botany and extracted rules or money with relentless vigor. Then, on October tenth came Pirates' Ball. As Sophomores, we made ourselves as gory and piratical as possible, and we felt amply rewarded when Lois King carried off the prize for the fiercest Pirate of them all.

Sophomore Supper, however, gave us ample opportunity to show our power. Greatly refreshed by Field Day and our prospects for the cup, we put on our severest scowls and prepared to receive our victims at Weightman. Penny, with an icy glare, froze the very souls of the over-jocular Freshmen, while the rest of us, by sheer brute force, prevented outbursts of I-Ikey-Ikus. Our careful plans, crafty subterfuge and desperate speculation resulted in the discovery of the Freshman President. We were also further cheered by the announcement that we had won the cup for Field Day. Sophomore Supper, which ended hazing, was as great a success as hazing itself. (We know that hazing was a success by the results.)

With the advent of the February Freshmen we felt very staid and responsible—a foretaste of Junior sensations. As we gave them a party of welcome and saw "'29" decorating the wall, we realized that our Sophomore days were drawing to a close.

INFANCY

Screams and cries could be heard all over the ward. They resented the protecting care proffered by their nurses whom they knew were only on their first cases. They hated those tags which they made them wear. But after a few days their protests were rewarded, for kinder and more experienced nurses took them on their first airing to Freshman Camp at Green Lane, Pennsylvania. Here, among those who had tasted a little more of life, they learned what was to be expected of them, of the opportunities which were to be theirs, and the fundamentals of a balanced life of which Doctor Minnick spoke. Out on the rocks their "I-Iky-Ikis," that famous "I-Iky-Ikis," was introduced into their repertoire.

And then, in the second month of their lives, they came to know that there was wickedness in the world—the PIRATES! But they were not frightened by those evil looking darkmen for they danced with them and were merry. A little later they knew that life was kind for their "big sisters," led by Marion Braungard, freed them for a few hours from their ever-watchful nurses.

On the memorable eve of the first day of the third month of their infancy, they felt instinctively that a great change was about to occur in their lives—the fetters were to be removed and with their unbinding would come—Childhood! A formal dismissal was issued by the head nurse, Helen Pennypacker, at a great festive supper in the Ward. And that evening the baby who had been awarded first prize, was presented to her playmates as "Pretty Kitty Kevin."

CHILDHOOD

As they grew toward maturity, they found the need of inquiring into the more profound problems which they questioned. Freshman Commission group was organized with Isabel McCaughan to guide them. They began to realize the part that Commission was to play in their lives and then, wishing to instill some of the ideas which they had learned in part the meaning of, a class supper, followed by discussion, was held with the result that "honor" was adopted as the ideal of the class of twenty-eight.

On the night of Pêle Mêle they made their debut and won renown by being awarded the silver cup for their class song.

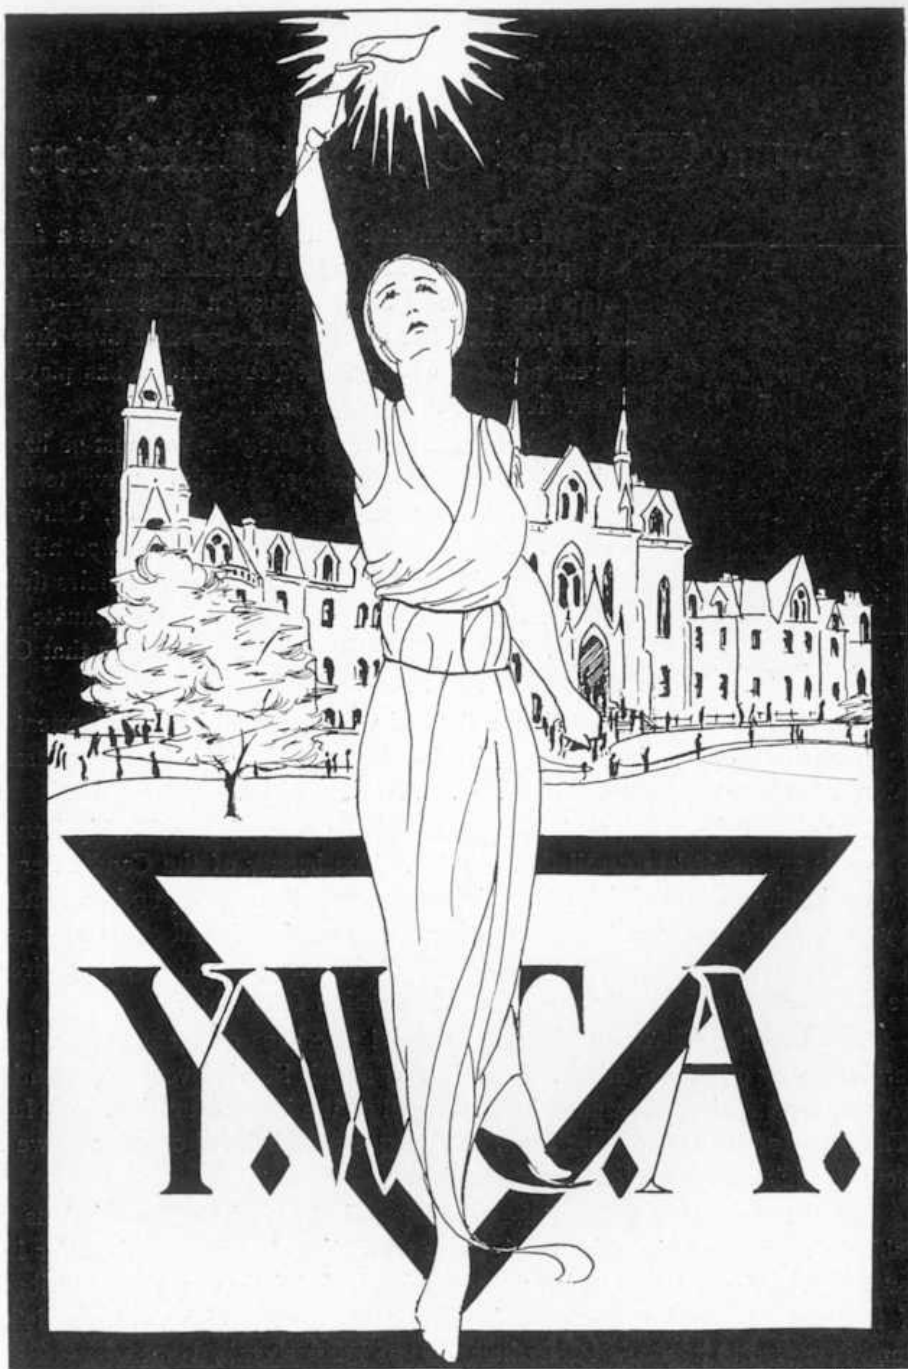

And now they live in anticipation of that glorious day when they are no longer children but can take their places in the ranks of—

Young Women's Christian Association

Mary Siter

It has been said that the Y. W. C. A. is a fellowship of students seeking the Christian way of life. Is this too theoretical, too broad a statement—or is it really true? Let us look back together over the past year and see what part the Association has played in our life here at Pennsylvania.

For a true history of the year we must go back in imagination to last summer. We must travel to Green Lane and see where, for the first time, University women held a summer-long Camp that was all their own. Theirs was the responsibility, and theirs the joy of service gladly given to those less fortunate than they. The bond of fellow-councillorship in that Camp is one that will not be forgotten soon.

Next we come to Registration, a time of weariness and of bewilderment for the in-coming students, but a time which is made more bearable by upperclassmen sisters and the badges marked—"Y. W. C. A., ASK ME."

For those of us who were able to attend the Annual Membership Banquet no words are needed to recall that evening. The beauty of the Candle Service, and the inspiration that Miss Holmquist gave cannot be summed up in a sentence. It was an experience that had a deep and a true meaning for all of us, and as we lit our candles we resolved "to keep that light in our eye, and to go up directly thereto"—and the light was the Light of Christian fellowship.

Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter Chapels! Perhaps of these the Christmas Service stands out in our minds. It was a very simple Service, very unpretentious. We met together in the evening, in the Chapel of the Transfiguration. We heard "The Story of the Other Wise Man," we sang the old beloved carols, and we felt anew the joy and peace of Christmas-tide.

Of the discussion groups, the meetings of the various Commissions and Cabinets much could be said, much more than there is space or time for here. But one thing has evolved which we can point to definitely as a new contribution of the year—a growing sentiment in the student body which favors a definite stand in regard to honor and the scholarship of Pennsylvania women.

Service and love. Are not these the very essence of true fellowship and of the Christian way of life?

University Camp for Girls

One of the institutions at Pennsylvania which has become a cherished tradition almost over night is University Camp. For several years now the children from Philadelphia's most congested districts have enjoyed ten days of invigorating outdoor life camping on the banks of the Unami near Green Lane. For periods of ten days each, boys held camp through the summer, but in the last ten days of August at the end of each season girl counsellors and campers invaded the spot and carried on their own camp.

Every year the need of an adequate girls' camp has been strongly felt, and last year the long dreamed-of, but hardly hoped-for camp materialized into a very real thing. A rich farm property, consisting of about a hundred acres, and including an old white farmhouse, rolling meadows, woods, stream and a glorious view, was left to us last spring for the sole purpose of establishing a girls' camp just when we needed it most. Late in June a group of counsellors set up the first girls' camp, about five miles from the old site, and there followed a successful summer for campers and counsellors. The first foundations of a new camp were laid, built of all the songs and traditions of the old camp, but designed to meet the spiritual, educational and recreational needs peculiar to girls.

This second season we hope to do great things and carry on the work begun under difficult conditions by the few pioneers last summer. With new buildings, more counsellors, and all the old enthusiasm and inspiration freshened up in a new beginning, there is no limit to the possibilities for our far-reaching work.

University Camp does not come to one in the first day spent there. It comes only after hours of close companionship with one's own tent; hikes, swims, telling an endless number of stories, and settling every conceivable question, from blanket ownership to the finest point of table etiquette. After such experiences as these, one really begins to "feel" camp. Probably for the first time comes the experience of having your time and self belong completely to other people, to people who need all that you can possibly give them and drink it in eagerly.

The days are all lights and shadows. No two are the same. Most of the children are Irish-American or pure Irish, coming from among the poorest quarters in Philadelphia, and with such temperament and background can reveal in one short afternoon, heights and depths of soul that are breath-taking in their vividness and swift change.

It is from these children that we receive the biggest part of our university education for they teach us in the ways of humanity. No student can leave the campus of Pennsylvania after four years of study and consider her education complete until she has taken advantage of the great human lesson to be learned at University Camp.

1925 Class Song

Heave! Ho! Classmates, we're gathered here
To raise a song and cheer our year;
Though Juniors, Freshmen, and Sophomores, too,
They think they know what we can do.
We'll soon show them that 1925
Can man her ship and keep her sails alive.
So here's to '23, who rigged our ship so well,
And to all the other classes may their sails 'ere swell.

CHORUS—

Sailing, sailing through Pennsylvania,
The class of 1925 shall bravely steer its way,
Through squall or calm sea our course will 'ere be true,
And worthy of Alma Mater and
Her colors, Red and Blue.

Tune—"Sailing"

Women's Athletic Association

Elizabeth Rhodes

To the class of 1925, who witnessed the birth of the Athletic Association in their Freshman year, its growth seems little short of miraculous. No one who has not worked in the building up of any organization can realize the thrill which comes with the knowledge of something really big accomplished. Our own "A. A." gives us this thrill, for from absolutely nothing it has expanded until now our teams are known in intercollegiate games. We are looking forward to a "gym" all our own, too, in Bennett Hall, which the class of '26 will be the first to use.

This year, in recognition of our growth in the world of sports, a cup will be presented to the class having the highest number of points gained in interclass competition, in addition to regular numerals and letters to individuals. These will be more numerous this year than ever before, because of the increased interest in athletics which has been fostered by the splendid co-operation of the Physical Education Department—especially of Florence Crush, the wearer of the first Varsity "P", who now heads it.

To Dr. Minnick the Athletic Association wishes to express its gratitude for the continued support and backing he has given.

Hockey

Last Fall witnessed the third series of intercollegiate Hockey games played by the women of the University of Pennsylvania. Almost the entire team spent a week at Miss Applebee's Hockey Camp before the season opened, but in spite of this preliminary advantage, our bad luck was phenomenal. Perhaps, however, bad luck is good for the team, because never before was such absolute clean playing and good sportsmanship witnessed.

On field day, for the first time, two hockey games were played. The Seniors were defeated by the Juniors by one goal, and the Freshman-Sophomore game was a tie, so there was no lack of enthusiasm.

Basketball

The Basketball team this year has a squad twice as large as ever before to draw from. A Southern trip was taken to Washington, where George Washington University was played. The rest of the games were played in or about Philadelphia. Practice will be facilitated next year because we will be able to use our own floor instead of being handicapped by the necessity of going to the Armory, four blocks away.

Inter-class games were most interesting, for at times strange and unusual basketball was played, occasioning great mirth and adding to the enthusiasm of the spectators.

Swimming

Most of our efforts this year have been directed toward the encouragement of our infant sport, Swimming. Last year we entered our first intercollegiate meet, totally unprepared, and won the cup. So great was the interest aroused that Swimming was organized at the very beginning of the year, and every possible advantage given it. The Hebrew Pool was secured for the use of the Varsity Squad, and the faithful practice of its members has shown marked improvement in the whole team, and the winning of two meets this year.

May Day

*Children of France, behold your fleur-de-lis!
Thou, Louis, stay, and when thou shalt have seen
This banner touch the English walls—thy horn!
Blow it at Orleans' gate: the siege is raised!
"Vive la France: Victoire: La France sauvee!"*

The legendary figure which has always fired the imagination, the girl in armor, bearing on the lilies of France to victory with a vision in her eyes, stepped out of the pages of romance, and lived again for us on May 8th and 9th. Indeed, for the cast, Jeanne the Maid lived for months before, at every rehearsal. It was not Carol Cummings who played by the Ladies' Tree in Domremy, but the peasant girl Jeannette who heard her voices and saw her visions.

But we are telling secrets when we name our characters as they really are, for they caught so well the spirit of fifteenth century France, that peasant and courtier, soldier and priest were unrecognizable as the girls with whom we go to class. Who would have dreamed that Jeanne's "bonnie duke," D'Alencon, was Mary Siter, or that the blustering swearing Marshall, La Hire, was Kathryn Steed? No less surprising was Betty Cooke in the rôle of the superstitious, fickle, Charles VII, with Eleanor Choate as his favorite La Tremouille, trickster and villain. How well did Elizabeth Vaughan deceive us as Lady Catherine de la Rochelle, by her mask of sophistication and courtly charm! Connie Rementer, too, was completely changed into kindly, brusque Jacques d'Arc, father of Jeanne.

Although the main characters were excellently portrayed, the spirit of the play was due to the mobs, to the peasants, gay in their holiday sport, the courtiers, versed in subtlety and intrigue, the soldiers, loyal to their country and The Maid.

In seeing a play, we seldom think of the work behind it—the months of planning of endless details which help to make it a success. Without the work of Helen Roberts and her committee, "Jeanne d'Arc" could never have been staged. Of as great importance, however, was the splendid direction which assured its success. "Robin Hood" of three years ago returned to us, not in his Lincoln Green, but in his real person—that of Dorothy Yockel. Dorothy's dramatic experience has been of great service to us. We most sincerely wish to express our appreciation of her painstaking work and her inspiring direction, which has made "Jeanne d'Arc" as dear to our hearts as was "Sherwood."

The Olympics

BY "THE RECORD'S" SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

As dawn broke in the chilly east, a few gray forms could be discerned moving swiftly across the campus. Soon these few were engulfed in a vast stream of humanity, and these in turn were lost in great milling hordes. At half-past ten, the gate-keeper announced that there was no more room in the Field, and the disgruntled crowds had to content themselves with a bird's-eye view from the South Street Bridge, where traffic was discontinued for the day.

At one o'clock the Freshmen, with neat white middies and chic green tams, marched onto the field, to be greeted with roaring ovations from the expectant crowd. At one-fifteen, the Sophomore lassies rivalled their crimson jackets with their blushes, as once more the crowd thundered forth its greeting. At one-thirty the Juniors appeared with the University Band in their van, and at one-fifty-nine the Seniors charged up the terrace in the wake of their standard, the Bennett Rain Flag.

Not to our pen be the glory of describing that stupendous conflict! Acclaimed by millions of lusty lungs and husky throats, the undying fame of the contestants has no need of our feeble voice to sing its renown.

Suffice it to say that the Junior-Senior hockey game was the occasion for a Junior triumph, while the Sophomores grappled so closely with the Freshmen that to this day their score remains a tie. But the aspiring Sophomores, by dint of filling second and third places in nearly all events, and winning the hundred-yard dash, succeeded in carrying off the victory for the day, and also the silver cup. And tired but happy, every one limped home.

Pirates' Ball

It is the tenth of October, and Weightman Hall is once again the hold of the "Jolly Rover." A lurid light gleams through the sinister port-holes. Presently, comes swaggering along the dock one of the bloody crew. His fair companion is trembling, yet she seems confident of receiving adequate protection. The weather-beaten face of her escort is hard, and seamed with many a saber cut, yet it relaxes into a not unpleasing smile as, with rough courtesy, he helps his lady across the gang-plank.

Within the hold an hilarious jamboree is under way. The charm and beauty of the guests is inspiration to the pirates, for they dance with the renowned grace of the gazelle,—cases of stumbling over daggers and moustachios are merely incidental. Now a group raises husky voices in song. The beauty of the sea and its cruelty and grandeur is ever their theme, and few eyes were dry when the manly voices ceased.

The pirate chief, however, remembers having heard his grandmother say to his mother, "The best way to a man's heart is through his stomach"; so he commands that the Treasure Ship shall be brought from the offing and despoiled.

The magic hour approaches; fair ladies and their swaggering escorts join in a farewell song. The next moment the pirates have disappeared, and the sails of the phantom ship are sinking in a ruddy mist below the horizon;

Yo, ho, ho, and a bottle of rrrrum!

MARGARET THORPE.

Women's Graduate Club

The general purpose of the Women's Graduate Club is the stimulation of good fellowship among the women—over four hundred in number—doing graduate work at the University. As their official organization, it provides an opportunity for the discussion of matters of common interest. Its monthly meetings combine the scholarly with the social, and speakers are chosen from varied fields, as an expression of the graduate's attempt to broaden her intellectual interests.

Part Time Students' Organization

This is the third year of the existence of the Part Time Students' Organization. While we cannot say that every part time student belongs to our group, the number of new members is constantly increasing. At the February Valentine Party the membership increased with a bound. For the first time the girls from the Wharton Evening School joined us. It was their first visit to Bennett. Many of them had not even known of its existence. The "part-timers" now include the girls from the School of Education, C. C. T., V. T. T., and the Wharton Evening School.

The Pro and Con Club

President, Bessie S. Grossman

Secretary, Dorothy Drake

Though organized late in the term and with apparently little support, the Pro and Con Club has finally taken its place among recognized campus activities. In response to a challenge from the Philomathean Society, a team composed of Esther Greenberg '25, Edith MacDougald '26, and Margaret Wettlin '28, met the men in a heated debate on the Honor System, and came out victorious. Challenges were received from outside colleges, and other challenges extended. The Pro and Con Club will have for its aim, the encouragement of inter-class as well as inter-collegiate debates. Already the response of the women students has more than justified the society's existence, and has proved that the need for such an activity on campus has long been sorely felt.

The Newman Club

Thos. P. Fox, President

Joseph F. Gaughan, Secretary

Margaret Esmonde, Vice-President

Carl J. Schaeffer, Treasurer

The Newman Club inaugurated its activities for 1924-25 with an All-University Tea, held at Newman Hall, October 16th. At this social gathering, while old acquaintances among girls on campus were renewed, a special effort was made to welcome the newly-arrived Freshmen. In the months that followed these Freshmen manifested their willingness to co-operate in the work of Newmanism by their active interest in the social and religious work of the Club.

But the efforts of the girls at Newman Club have not been confined to social events alone. They have likewise undertaken social service work at the Madonna Settlement House, Tenth and Christian Sts.

The Newman Club at Pennsylvania was the host at the general meeting of the Pennsylvania Province of Newman Clubs, on March 13th, when the girls of the Club assisted in receiving and entertaining the delegates from the various colleges in the Federation.

It is customary that the members of Newman Club close the year's activities with a play. This year "The Thirteenth Chair" was successfully produced at the Bellevue-Stratford, on Friday evening, May 1st. The girls in the cast were: Miss Eleanor Monaghan, Miss Frances Dougherty, Miss Kathleen McIlvaine, Miss Katherine Herman and Miss Ella Fillemeyer. The other girls of the Club aided in making the play the great success that it was by their work as aides on the night of the performance.

The Menorah Society for the study and advancement of Hebrew culture has had an exceptionally successful year, crowded with forum meetings, discussion groups, musicales and debates. Prominent men of the city, among them rabbis, lawyers, social workers and laymen, have appeared before the Society.

The lunch-hour discussion groups have been increasingly popular, particularly since they have been held in the Jewish Students House.

The Menorah Society has had a larger membership this year than ever before. The unusual opportunities that Menorah offers for cultural and social contacts of the finest sort are being recognized by more and more students on the Pennsylvania Campus.

Classics Club

President, Elmer Christie
Vice-President, Adolph Gorr

Secretary, Martha Zeeb
Treasurer, Arthur Eichelberger

The aim of the club is to further the appreciation and love of the classics among students at the University and to give those interested an opportunity to become better acquainted with each other.

At its meetings, the members of the Latin and Greek departments have supported the Club by giving informal talks.

Once or twice a year a tragedy or comedy is worked up by ambitious members. Last year the performances of "Dido and Aeneas" and "The Cyclops" by Euripides were very successful. This year we are planning to give a play by Plautus or Terence.

Women's Glee Club

Jean Masland, President
Ruth Johnson, Vice-President

Mary Carter, Secretary
Diane Martindell, Treasurer

The members of the Glee Club have shown a marked enthusiasm in their work this year. By their efforts the Club was able to give its first concert and dance of the season at the New Century Drawing Rooms on February 24th. One of the most successful numbers of the evening was "The Minuet," which was given by four members in costume, and was accompanied by the singing of the Club.

We are hoping to give a repetition of the concert somewhere else in the near future from time to time. In the spring there will be other smaller concerts.

William Seward, Treasurer
Adelaide Kuder, Secretary

Le Cercle Français has always been noted for the good times which it affords its members. This year the fame of these good times has become more widespread than ever, for new features have added to the interest of the meetings, and to the membership of the Club. Everyone has been enthusiastic about the speakers—some of whom have been from the University, and others from outside. The musical "specialties" also have been enjoyed.

One of the features of the year is the annual play, "Le Monde ou l'on s'ennuie," involving a cast of twenty. The Club is open to all who have an interest in the French language; and we are hoping for an ever-increasing membership.

Adeline L. Kuder, Ed. '25,
Vice-President

Harold Busser, Wh. '28, Treasurer
Mazie A. Leigh, Ed. '25, Secretary

The Spanish Club has had some difficulty in getting organized this year, but since the election of officers, in January, considerable progress has been made. There is always a speaker at the meetings who addresses the Club in Spanish. This year several of the speakers have been consuls from the Spanish-speaking countries of South America.

The Club has musical programs, also. Some singer entertains with songs in Italian, English or Spanish. The Club joins in the singing of the Spanish songs. After the formal part of the meeting there is dancing.

The German Club

President, Ralph Cox Busser, Jr.
Secretary, Claus G. Jordan
Asst. Secretary, Otilie Fleischman

Vice-President, Elsie Doernenburg
Treasurer, Paul Scherer

This year the German Club has been very active, a large number of the department's students showing a great interest in its activities. Very interesting talks are given at the monthly meetings by the professors and students. Musical programs, the singing of German folk songs, and dancing are a part of every meeting.

This year the Club is giving the well-known comedy, "Die Jugendfreunde," by Fulda. This will be their annual spring production and will be followed by a dance, on the evening of April 22, at the Philomusian Club, Fortieth and Walnut Streets. William Alfredo, a well-known producer of the city, has been secured as our coach. So far the Club has been very successful and we hope that the play will be the crowning event of the year.

The University Dramatic Club, open to all members of all departments, was organized for the purpose of keeping alive an interest in the best drama. The fifth annual spring production presented this year was "Dear Brutus," by J. M. Barrie.

The Club has included among its former productions, "The Yellow Jacket," "The Admirable Crichton," "The Tragedy of Nan," "R. U. R.," "The Sin," and is famous for its presentation of "Pantaloon" which won the Three Hundred Dollars cash, the prize given by the Philadelphia Forum in 1923 for college dramatics.

The regular activities of the Naturalist Field Club, during the present academic year, include semi-monthly meetings, at which naturalists of far repute, and students of the University, have presented papers. The excursions for field work have consisted of visiting nearby places several times each month, and of a longer trip to the lower Susquehanna Valley, during the Thanksgiving Recess.

The President has prepared a list of the wild flowers of the locality, with the times of their blooming; he has also undertaken a movement to bring about the union with us, of clubs of a similar nature in other colleges. This movement will also aid and encourage the Science Clubs in the High Schools.

A tablet is to be placed on the famous rostrum in the Macfarlane Hall, in memory of the many distinguished lecturers who have spoken there.
