KEEPING FRANKLIN'S PROMISE

In the words of one elegiac tribute, "Great men have two lives: one which occurs while they work on this earth; a second which begins at the day of their death and continues as long as their ideas and conceptions remain powerful."

These words befit the great Benjamin Franklin, whose inventions, innovations, ideas, writings, and public works continue to shape our thinking and renew the Republic he helped to create and the institutions he founded, including the University of Pennsylvania.

Nowhere does Franklin feel more contemporary, more revolutionary, and more alive than at the University of Pennsylvania. His startling vision of a secular, nonsectarian Academy that would foster an "Inclination join'd with an Ability to serve Mankind, one's Country, Friends and Family" has never ceased to challenge Penn to redefine the scope and mission of the modern American university.

When pursued vigorously and simultaneously, the two missions – developing the inclination to do good and the ability to do well – merge to help form a more perfect university that educates more capable citizens for our democracy.

Penn has embodied and advanced Franklin's revolutionary vision for 277 years. Throughout its history, Penn has extended the frontiers of higher learning and research to produce graduates and scholars whose work has enriched the nation and all of humanity.

The modern liberal arts curriculum as we know it can trace its roots to Franklin's innovation to have Penn students study international commerce and foreign languages.

The first medical and business schools in the United States were launched here.

And the first general-purpose electronic, digital computer – ENIAC – was invented right here at the University of Pennsylvania.

Taking inspiration from Penn's pioneering legacy, President Amy Gutmann's Penn Compact 2020 advances the University's quest to become continually more inclusive, innovative, and impactful. Its bold strategy reinvigorates Franklin's founding mission at a time of increased global connectedness and rapid technological advancement. The Penn community's extraordinary support of the University's strategic priorities, as expressed in our record-setting Making History campaign, enables Penn to work toward the Penn Compact 2020 goals of expanding access for bright students from all backgrounds, integrating cutting-edge research and teaching across the disciplines to promote revolutionary new discoveries, and sharing the benefits of these discoveries through ongoing engagement with our local and global communities.

Today, Penn proudly graduates a class of men and women who have shown the intelligence, drive, integrity, and character to become engaged citizens who will serve humanity with distinction. Our Penn graduates are poised to take their place as productive democratic citizens and as just and humane stewards of our world.

In these challenging and perilous times, a world in need of young men and women who are willing to shoulder the moral responsibilities of leadership can look to Penn.

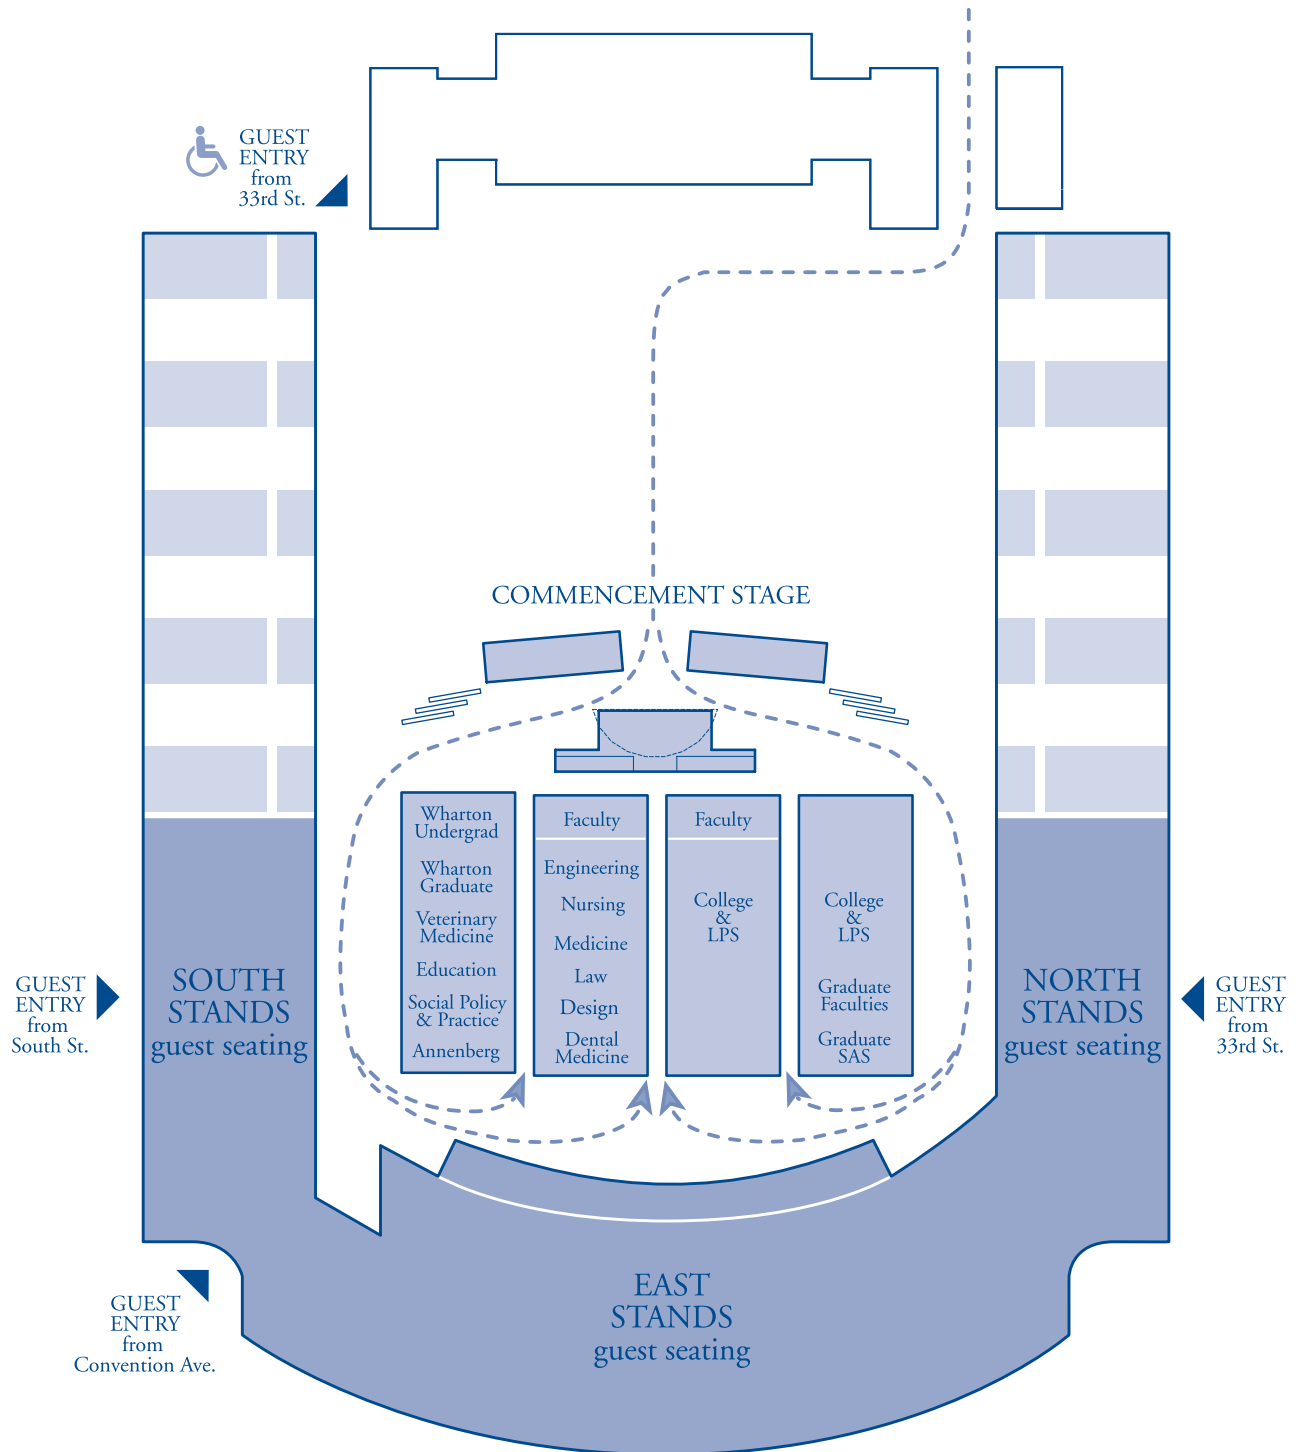

Franklin wrote: "We may make these times better if we bestir ourselves. The noblest question in the world is 'What good may I do in it?'"

The answer to this question will be furnished by Franklin's newest heirs, the graduates of 2017.

COMMENCEMENT SEATING

Guests will find this diagram helpful in locating the approximate seating of the degree candidates. The sequence in which the candidates are presented for degrees is shown on the next page. The list on page 6, detailing the colors of the candidates' hoods according to their fields of study, may further assist guests in identifying the locations of the various schools.

In case of emergency, evacuation procedures will be announced.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Logan Kesel, C'17

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming.
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

THE RED AND BLUE

By William J. Goeckel, Class of 1896, and Harry E. Westervelt, Class of 1898

Come all ye loyal classmates now, in hall and campus through,
Lift up your hearts and voices for the royal Red and Blue.

Fair Harvard has her crimson, old Yale her colors too,
But for dear Pennsylvania, we wear the Red and Blue.

(Chorus)

Hurrah! Hurrah! Pennsylvania!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue;
Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue.

RECESSIONAL

Today – May 15, 2017 – is the University of Pennsylvania’s 261st Commencement. Penn traces its origins to a deed of trust executed in 1740 and is celebrating its 277th birthday this year. President Amy Gutmann will confer bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees upon some 6,000 graduates of the University’s 12 schools. Honorary degrees will be awarded to seven individuals of distinction in varied fields, as you will note on pages 11, 12, 13, and 14 in this program.

The practice of sporting signs on caps and gowns as a form of public proclamation at Commencement dates to the early 1760s, and recalls an even more ancient tradition, originating in the practice of medieval universities. Penn’s archives contain several 18th century broadsides, printed in Latin, which were distributed to Commencement guests along with the regular programs. The broadsides contain a series of propositions classified under various academic headings. Presumably, the graduating students were willing to defend these theses against any assertions to the contrary. On the eve of the Revolution, however, statements such as “the rights of the people are as divine as the rights of their rulers” must have met with widespread sympathy.

ACADEMIC CEREMONY AND REGALIA

Commencement exercises at American universities and colleges traditionally are composed of three essential elements: the Academic Procession, the conferring of degrees, and the Commencement address. This practice has been codified since 1895, when a national conference on academic costume and ceremony was proposed and a plan known initially as the “Intercollegiate System” was formally adopted. The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania incorporated this code in the Statutes of the University in November 1896. Now under the aegis of the American Council on Education, the “Academic Costume Code and Academic Ceremony Guide” was revised in 1932 and 1960.* Throughout the 20th century, Commencement at Penn has, with minor modifications, followed the dictates of the code and its revisions.

By 1896, however, Penn had been granting degrees for nearly 140 years. Like other American colonial colleges, Penn borrowed its 18th century Commencement rituals directly from the English universities. In England the history of academic dress reaches back to the early days of the oldest schools. As early as the second half of the 14th century, the statutes of certain colleges prohibited “excess in apparel” and required the wearing of a long gown. It is still an open question as to whether academic dress finds its sources chiefly in ecclesiastical or in civilian dress. It is often suggested that gowns and hoods were the simplest, most effective method of staying warm in the unheated, stone buildings which housed medieval scholars. In any case, academic regalia had evolved to contemporary familiarity by the time Benjamin Franklin was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws by the University of St. Andrews in 1759.

TRADITIONS AND CURRENT PRACTICE AT PENN

In April 1887, on the recommendation of a committee of the faculty, the Trustees adopted the “‘Pennsylvania’ System of Academic Costume.” The colors and trimmings of hoods and caps were regularized according to faculty and degree. Beginning with the Commencement of 1887, the “‘Pennsylvania’ System” was published in each year’s program and adherence to its rules was expected of trustees, faculty, and students alike. Beginning in 1896, the “‘Pennsylvania’ System” was superseded by the “Intercollegiate System,” which has continued in effect to the present time.

The gowns used in American academic ceremonies vary according to the highest degree awarded to the wearer. The gown for the bachelor’s degree has pointed sleeves; it is designed to be worn closed. The gown for the master’s degree has an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist. The sleeve base hangs down in the traditional manner. The rear part of its oblong shape is square cut and the front has an arc cut away. The master’s gown may be worn open or closed. The doctoral gown is a more elaborate costume faced down the front with black velvet and across the sleeves with three bars of the same; these facings and crossbars may be of velvet of the color distinctive to the field of study to which the degree pertains. The doctoral gown has bell-shaped sleeves and may be worn open or closed. Some institutions have authorized doctoral gowns in colors other than the customary black; holders of the University of Pennsylvania doctorate may wear red and blue gowns.

The hoods are lined in silk with the official color or colors of the college or university which granted the highest degree held by the wearer; more than one color is shown by division of the field color in a variety of ways, such as by chevron or chevrons. The binding or edging of the hood is in velvet, with widths of two inches, three inches, and five inches for the bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees, respectively. The color of the border indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains. University of Pennsylvania graduates wear a hood lined in red with a blue chevron. The mortarboard cap is standard, though soft square-topped caps are permissible. Recipients of doctorates may wear a gold tassel fastened to the middle point of the top of the cap; all others wear black.

Degrees shall be conferred today according to the following order:

- Arts & Letters, white
- Science, golden yellow
- Business Administration, mustard
- Nursing, apricot
- Medicine, green
- Law, purple
- Fine Arts (including Design), brown
- Dental Medicine, lilac
- Veterinary Medicine, gray
- Education, light blue
- Social Work, citron
- Philosophy, dark blue

ACADEMIC PROCESSION

The order for today's Academic Procession is as follows:

Mace Bearer
 President and Provost
 Chair of the Board of Trustees
 Commencement Speaker
 Candidates for Honorary Degrees
 Deans
 Trustees
 Officers of the University
 Faculty
 Overseers
 Visiting Dignitaries

UNIVERSITY MACE

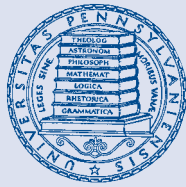

The Secretary of the University carries the University mace, the symbol of authority of the University, at the head of the Academic Procession. It was a gift of the family of William Murray Gordon, M.D. 1910. It is adorned with the seal and arms of the University, the Penn and Franklin coats-of-arms, a depiction of the Rittenhouse Orrery, and a thistle symbolizing the early ties of the University with Scotland.

PRESIDENT'S BADGE OF OFFICE

The President wears as a badge of office a silver medallion of which one face is engraved, like the mace, with the University seal. The obverse of the President's medal bears the "orrery seal," designed in 1782 by Francis Hopkinson, A.B. 1757, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. The medal, suspended on a chain composed of silver links, was given by the late Trustee Thomas Sovereign Gates, Jr., A.B. 1928, LL.D. 1956, on the occasion of Sheldon Hackney's inauguration as President in October 1981.

UNIVERSITY SEAL AND SYMBOLSSEAL OF THE CORPORATION

The Trustees of the University have an official seal that is, in effect, the signature of the Corporation. It had its origin at a meeting of the Board of Trustees in 1755 with Benjamin Franklin as Chairman. Though the seal underwent changes over the years, the most recent design, approved in 1932 and adopted in 1933, returned it to virtually its original form.

The seal is composed of seven books stacked on a slanted desktop, with the books bearing the following titles, representing the curricula of the day: Theolog, Astronom, Philosoph, Mathemat, Logica, Rhetorica, Grammatica. On the periphery of the stack of books appears the University motto, Leges Sine Moribus Vanæ, and the whole is encircled with the inscription Universitatis Pennsylvaniensis.

PENN COAT-OF-ARMS

The Penn coat-of-arms was derived by combining the coat of arms of Benjamin Franklin and that of William Penn's family. The dolphin on the red chief was part of Franklin's coat-of-arms and the three silver plates on a blue chevron were a part of Penn's. The two were combined on a white shield along with two open volumes representing the University's educational purpose.

MOTTO:
LEGES SINE MORIBUS VANAE

The motto of the University, Leges Sine Moribus Vanæ, means "Laws without morals are useless." It comes from the longer quotation from Horace, "Quid leges sine moribus vanæ proficiunt?" the sense of which is "Of what avail are empty laws without (good) morals?"

SCHOOL COLORS

Eighteenth century American academic institutions did not have colors. The earliest known representation of the combined Penn colors, red and blue, is on the incised lid of the 1871 College Hall cornerstone.

One legend traces their origins to an early track meet at Saratoga, New York, between Penn, Harvard, and Yale. When asked by the officials what colors would be representing the Penn team, the Pennsylvania captain reportedly replied, "We're going to be wearing the colors of the teams we beat," i.e., Harvard Crimson and Yale Blue. We shall assume that Penn was victorious and thus remained loyal to the Red and Blue.

SCHOOL OF ARTS AND SCIENCES (1755)

The School of Arts and Sciences (SAS) is the direct descendant of the College of Philadelphia, where Benjamin Franklin established the first modern arts and sciences curriculum in the English colonies. Undergraduate programs for men date to the chartering of the College in 1755; the College of Liberal Arts for Women was founded in 1933. The Graduate School was established in 1882 with the appointment of a Faculty of Philosophy. The College of Liberal and Professional Studies (lifelong learning) traces its roots to 1892. The School of Arts and Sciences was born in 1974 with the merger of the College of Arts and Sciences, the College for Women, the Graduate School, and four social science departments from Wharton. Today SAS is the largest of the University's 12 schools, providing a liberal arts education for all Penn undergraduates and supporting graduate studies, basic research, and continuing education across the full range of the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences. The School has 27 departments with 504 standing faculty, 18 research centers, four interschool institutes, and 10,000 students.

PERELMAN SCHOOL OF MEDICINE (1765)

Established in 1765 as the nation's first medical school, what is now known as the Raymond and Ruth Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania continues a rich tradition of providing the nation's best medical training and education, with service to its community as a cornerstone. Today, the School, which has been named to the top five medical schools in the nation by U.S. News & World Report for the past 20 consecutive years, honors its longstanding commitment to advancing knowledge and improving health close to home and across the world through research, patient care, and the education of trainees in an inclusive culture that embraces diversity. More than 780 students are pursuing medical degrees in the Perelman School, and over 600 are studying toward doctorates in biomedical sciences, with nearly 200 more enrolled in joint MD/PhD programs. Across the School's affiliated hospitals, 1,300 residents and fellows are completing their medical training. Over the past decade, the Perelman School of Medicine has consistently ranked among the top recipients of research funding from the National Institutes of Health.

LAW SCHOOL (1790)

Penn's engagement in legal education began in 1790 with a series of lectures to President Washington and his cabinet by James Wilson, the University's first law professor, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and one of the original justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. A formal program of instruction in law was established in 1850 under George Sharswood, and innovative legal education has been part of the Penn fabric since that time. Today, Penn Law provides a cross-disciplinary, globally-focused legal education taught by preeminent scholars, approximately 70 percent of whom hold advanced degrees in fields in addition to law. Students augment the teaching provided by Penn Law faculty with classes taken — and certificates of study and joint degrees earned — in sister schools and departments throughout the University. Penn Law has 912 students and 66 full-time faculty. Penn Law awards five degrees: Juris Doctor; Master of Laws for internationally trained lawyers; Master of Comparative Laws; Doctor of Juridical Science; and a Master in Law for non-lawyers.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING AND APPLIED SCIENCE (1852)

The School of Engineering and Applied Science is one of the oldest in the United States, tracing its beginnings to the establishment of the School of Mines, Arts and Manufactures in 1852. The first graduate of the School received a Bachelor of Science degree in 1854. Since that time, the School has grown into a center of excellence in the creation of technology and in technology education. Its spirit of innovation led to the creation in 1946 of ENIAC, the first all-electronic, large-scale, general-purpose digital computer, making Penn Engineering the birthplace of the computer age. Today, Penn Engineering offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate programs, including the first alternative liberal arts program based in an engineering school. Penn Engineering is particularly distinguished by its interdisciplinary, cross-school programs such as Management and Technology, Digital Media Design, Biotechnology, and the Singh Program in Networked & Social Systems Engineering. Penn Engineering currently has 120 standing faculty, approximately 1,600 undergraduate students, 1,700 graduate students, and 15 research centers and institutes.

SCHOOL OF DESIGN (1869)

Although the School of Design dates its founding from 1890, architecture courses were first offered at the University of Pennsylvania in 1869, making Penn's architecture program the second oldest in the United States. In 1921, the Department of Architecture joined with the Department of Music and Fine Arts to create an independent undergraduate School of Fine Arts modeled on the French École des Beaux Arts. In 1958, the School was renamed the Graduate School of Fine Arts, reflecting the shift to graduate degree offerings in architecture, city and regional planning, landscape architecture and fine arts. In the 1980s, a program in historic preservation was added. To more accurately capture the School's sphere of influence, it was renamed the School of Design in 2003. Today, with a standing faculty of 43, approximately 160 lecturers and associated faculty, and more than 700 students, the School prepares students to address complex sociocultural and environmental issues through thoughtful inquiry, creative expression, and innovation.

SCHOOL OF DENTAL MEDICINE (1878)

Established in 1878 as the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, the School of Dental Medicine is among the oldest university-affiliated dental institutions in the country, with a history deeply rooted in forging precedents in dental education, research, and patient care. In 1897, Thomas W. Evans, a Philadelphia native and clinician who spent most of his life in France as the dentist to European nobility, left his estate to create a dental school that was “second to none.” Evans’ bequest would become one with the University, creating the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Dental Institute, which opened in 1915. Today, the Evans Building remains the site of much of the School’s clinical instruction. The dental campus also includes the Robert Schattner Center and the Leon Levy Center for Oral Health Research, home to the basic sciences and extensive research activities. Penn Dental Medicine is a major provider of care in West Philadelphia and through outreach programs students log nearly 12,500 hours each year serving approximately 14,300 residents in the surrounding Philadelphia neighborhoods. The School offers the degrees of Doctor of Dental Medicine, Master of Science in Oral Biology, and Doctor of Science in Dentistry, and trains postdoctoral students in endodontics, oral medicine, oral and maxillofacial surgery, orthodontics, pediatrics, periodontics, periodontics/orthodontics, periodontal/prosthesis, and prosthodontics. Penn Dental Medicine has 574 DMD students and 107 Post- Doctoral Students. The School has 413 faculty members, including 40 standing faculty.

WHARTON SCHOOL (1881)

The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, founded in 1881, is recognized globally for intellectual leadership and ongoing innovation across every major discipline of business education. The most comprehensive source of business knowledge in the world, Wharton bridges research and practice through its broad engagement with the global business community. The school has more than 5,000 undergraduate, MBA, and doctoral students; nearly 10,000 participants annually in its executive education programs; and a network of 95,000 alumni in 140 countries.

SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE (1884)

Penn Vet is a global leader in veterinary medicine education, research, and clinical care. Founded in 1884, Penn Vet is the only veterinary school developed in association with a medical school. The School is a proud member of the One Health initiative, linking human, animal, and environmental health. Penn Vet serves a diverse population of animals at its two campuses, which include extensive diagnostic and research laboratories. Ryan Hospital in Philadelphia provides care for dogs, cats, and other domestic/companion animals, handling more than 31,000 patient visits a year. New Bolton Center, Penn Vet’s large-animal hospital on nearly 700 acres in rural Kennett Square, PA, cares for horses and livestock/farm animals. The hospital handles more than 4,000 patient visits a year, while the Field Service treats nearly 36,000 at local farms. In addition, New Bolton Center’s campus includes a swine center, working dairy, and poultry unit that provide valuable research for the agriculture industry.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION (1914)

The University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Education (Penn GSE) is one of the nation’s premier schools of education. Penn GSE has a long history of excellence in qualitative research, language and literacy studies, practitioner inquiry, and teacher education, and has more recently developed remarkable strengths in quantitative research, policy studies, evaluation, higher education, and psychology and human development. The School is also notable for its entrepreneurship, developing custom degree programs for practicing professionals and unique partnerships with local educators.

SCHOOL OF NURSING (1935)

Nursing Education at Penn began in 1886 when the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania started a nurse training program. In 1935, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania established a nursing degree program within the School of Education, and in 1950 the School of Nursing was established. The Master of Science in Nursing program was instituted in 1961, the Doctor of Nursing Science program in 1978, and the Doctor of Philosophy program in 1984. These innovations, and a curriculum which progressively reflects changing health care delivery patterns, have advanced the School into the first rank of American schools of nursing. The School has two departments, Biobehavioral Health Sciences and Family and Community Health. It is widely recognized for its leadership in nursing research in the areas of health outcomes and policy, nursing history, biobehavioral health sciences, global women’s health, health equity, aging, and transitions in health. It also has a global reputation for innovations in nurse-managed clinical practice and is a World Health Organization Collaborating Center for Nursing and Midwifery Leadership. The School of Nursing has 51 standing faculty and 1,310 students.

SCHOOL OF SOCIAL POLICY & PRACTICE (1948)

The School of Social Policy & Practice began in 1908 as a private school that opened its doors to five students in the field of child welfare. The School affiliated itself with the University in 1935 and became a formal school in 1948. In 2005, it changed its name from the School of Social Work to the School of Social Policy & Practice. The School offers the Master of Social Work, Master of Science in Nonprofit Leadership, Master of Science in Social Policy, Doctor of Philosophy in Social Welfare, and Doctor of Social Work degrees. The School is devoted to advancing human welfare, promoting social justice, and developing effective societal responses to global human need. Building on the School's century-long commitment to social work and social change, the School educates clinicians, policymakers, scholars, researchers, and leaders who work to advance the human welfare of local, national, and global communities. The School houses a number of research centers and programs, including: the Field Center for Children's Policy, Practice, and Research; the Center for Mental Health and Aging; the Center for Social Impact Strategy; the Center for High Impact Philanthropy; the National Center on Homelessness Among Veterans; Actionable Intelligence for Social Policy; the Center for Curiosity; Critical Policy Studies; Sexgen Policy Lab; the Social Impact of the Arts Project; the Program for Religion and Social Policy Research; SP2 Penn Top 10; the Evelyn Jacobs Ortner Center on Family Violence; the Goldring Re-entry Initiative; the Ann Nolan Reese Penn Aging Concentration; the Child Well-Being & Child Welfare Specialization; the Criminal Justice Specialization; the Social Work in Healthcare Specialization; and the Cohen Veterans Network MSW Scholars Program. The School has 25 standing faculty and 494 students.

ANNENBERG SCHOOL FOR COMMUNICATION (1959)

Founded through the generosity and vision of diplomat and philanthropist Walter Annenberg, the Annenberg School for Communication (ASC) at the University of Pennsylvania is devoted to furthering our understanding of the role of communication in public life through research, education, and service. At the School's founding, Ambassador Annenberg identified its unique mission: "Every human advancement or reversal can be understood through communication. The right to free communication carries with it responsibility to respect the dignity of others — and this must be recognized as irreversible. Educating students to effectively communicate this message and to be of service to all people is the enduring mission of this school." With strengths in health communication, political communication, culture and communication, media institutions, digital media, and global communication, ASC is ranked as the top Communication school in the nation. The Annenberg School has 23 standing faculty members, 30 additional research and teaching faculty and associates, more than 80 graduate students, and nearly 200 undergraduate students. The school offers the degree of Doctor of Philosophy as well as a Bachelor of Arts major run through the College of Arts and Sciences. The School is home to the Annenberg Public Policy Center, the Penn Tobacco Center of Regulatory Science, the Center for Global Communication Studies, the Scholars Program in Culture & Communication, the Project for Advanced Research in Global Communication, the Communication Neuroscience Lab, the Network Dynamics Group, the Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics, the Center for Health Behavior and Communication Research, and the Institute for Public Service, among many other projects pursuing innovative communication research and teaching.

HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

ISABEL ALLENDE

For over three decades, your passionate and deeply personal writing has drawn countless readers into lush stories that entwine the mystical and the historical. Your own story has its roots in the brutal reality of a military coup. Born in Peru, you had spent nearly your entire life in Chile when, in 1973, the overthrow and death of your close relative, President Salvador Allende, left the country under a regime of repression and upheaval. In aiding those affected, your family became targets as well, forcing you to flee to Venezuela, where you remained a political refugee for 13 years.

It was there, separated from home and extended family, that you penned a farewell letter to your dying grandfather. That missive grew to become your first novel, the 1985 worldwide bestseller, The House of the Spirits. Fiercely independent and with remarkable success as a feminist voice in Latin America's male-dominated literary world, you gave up your vocation in print and television journalism. Today, you are recognized as one of the world's most widely read Spanish-language authors. Your more than 20 fiction and nonfiction books and memoirs have sold over 65 million copies translated into 35 languages and have been adapted for film, theater, opera, and ballet.

Your highly regarded works, including Of Love and Shadows, Maya's Notebook, Ripper, and your latest, The Japanese Lover, evoke shared themes of love and loss, mortality, emotional healing, social justice, and freedom. They take place in settings as varied as an 18th century Haitian slave revolt, the California gold rush, and the 1960s guerrilla movement in Venezuela.

Eventually, you were able to make your way to a new life in the United States and, in 1993, citizenship. California has been your home for many years, but always, as you have said, with one foot remaining in your beloved Chile. The tragic loss of your daughter, Paula, led you to establish the Isabel Allende Foundation in her honor. The Foundation seeks to serve women and girls worldwide through reproductive services and health care, education, and protection from violence and displacement.

Your international acclaim is reflected in the many tributes paid to your work. The first woman to earn the Chilean National Prize for Literature, you are also a member of the U.S. Academy of Arts and Letters, and recipient of France's Chevalier de L'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres, the Library of Congress Creative Achievement Award for Fiction, and the Hans Christian Andersen Literature Award. In 2015, you received the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Through public speaking and in print worldwide, you continue to lend your voice to matters of women's rights, Latin American and world politics, and the spiritual life.

For your consummate and compelling storytelling bearing faithful witness to enduring themes of life across cultures and history, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Isabel Allende, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

CORY A. BOOKER

The Oath of Office for a United States Senator is a solemn vow of faith and allegiance to the Constitution. By compelling example and with inspiring eloquence, you uphold your oath. But as a U.S. Senator and for many years before, you have lived and worked by an additional creed, recounted in your book, United: "If we want more connection, we must work harder to connect with others. If we want more unity, we must work to be uniters. If we want more leadership, then we must lead." Your unshakable belief that each of us can and must be a catalyst for lasting change in our communities, our country, and the world inspires us all.

From your earliest years, you were keenly aware of the legacy that you carried as the child of parents who broke down racial barriers to achieve professional success and ease your path to pursue your own dreams. You have spoken often of your debt to the sacrifices of so many before you in the fight for social justice and equality. It has been your guiding light that such opportunity must never be squandered, but instead paid forward for those who follow.

Your aspiration for activism and public service became evident during your time at Stanford University. While working toward undergraduate and master's degrees, you led a peer counseling center and organized community outreach. It found momentum in your study as a Rhodes Scholar and in your years at Yale Law, when you offered assistance to those needing legal services. And after graduation, you were drawn to return home to New Jersey and the struggling city of Newark, making your home in its most distressed neighborhoods, and building coalitions to aid low-income families and improve living conditions.

Your entry into public office began in 1998 at age 29 with your election to the Newark City Council. After your 2006 election as mayor, the city saw economic growth unmatched in decades along with a decline in crime. Your initiatives, grounded in careful pragmatism and planning, found sources of support to improve education and public services.

Then in 2013, New Jersey elected you in a special election to the U.S. Senate, and re-elected you the next year to a full term. The first African American to serve New Jersey in this role, you are a positive across-the-aisle leader working in partnership on priorities such as common-sense criminal justice reform, support and resources for local law enforcement, comprehensive immigration reform, and fostering economic opportunity for all Americans.

Your 2016 book United: Thoughts on Finding Common Ground and Advancing the Common Good advances your deep conviction in the lasting impact and understanding to be gained by working together with compassion and generosity. Two award-winning documentaries have chronicled your efforts. An influential speaker, you encourage others to know the power of personal agency and extending kindness and generosity to all. In recognition of your untiring efforts on behalf of others, you are also the recipient of the John Heinz Award for Greatest Public Service by an Elected or Appointed Official.

For your unwavering faith in the power of compassion and empathy and for your untiring efforts for social justice and better lives for all, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Cory A. Booker, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

CLARA FRANZINI-ARMSTRONG

To harness the power of the electron microscope requires meticulous planning and unending patience. Specimens are painstakingly chosen and preserved, utilizing techniques perfected through years of practice. Scientist and instrument work at a careful remove from any vibration or electromagnetic distraction as high voltage sends a beam of charged particles hurling toward its object. The resulting image, the micrograph, opens breathtaking new worlds of discovery.

With a career spanning more than five decades as a pathbreaking scientist and educator, you are recognized as the world's leading electron microscopist in your field. The micrographs and concepts of your research are part of all major physiology and cell biology textbooks. With seminal contributions to our deeper understanding of muscle biology, you've devoted your life's work to study of the triadic junction, the complex structural system responsible for excitation-contraction coupling, the messaging of signal to muscle activation.

Your childhood in Firenze, Italy, with an atomic physicist father and mother trained in physics prepared you for a lifetime of scientific exploration. As a post-graduate in biological sciences at the University of Pisa, you were charged with learning to use the university's newest acquisition: an electron microscope. These nascent instruments and techniques would form the foundation for the modern study of cell biology and chart the path for your career.

You completed your training at Harvard University, the National Institutes of Health, and with Nobel-winning biophysicist Sir Andrew Huxley in London. Following faculty appointments at Duke University and the University of Rochester, you joined Penn in 1975, becoming an integral member of the extraordinary Pennsylvania Muscle Institute.

You were instrumental in designing foundational "hands on" coursework for medical and doctoral students to better integrate molecular and clinical aspects into their work. And through the decades, your inspirational collaboration, training, and mentorship have empowered women in science at Penn and beyond.

Today, you are Professor Emerita of Cell and Developmental Biology at Penn's Perelman School of Medicine, continuing your active research and mentorship of new scientists. Together with Penn physiologist Clay Armstrong, you are one of only a few husband-wife couples both named to the National Academy of Sciences. In 2014, the Society of General Physiologists established a lecture series in your names. You have received the K.C. Cole and Founder's Awards from the Biophysical Society and are a member of the European Academy of Sciences, the Royal Society of London, and Rome's Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei.

For your decades of dedication to expanding our understanding and appreciation of the intricate mysteries of muscle biology, and thereby the human machine, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Clara Franzini-Armstrong, the degree of Doctor of Sciences, honoris causa.

TERRY GROSS

Following your 1973 graduation from the State University of New York at Buffalo, your career trajectory was, as you later recounted, "unsettled." There may even have been a few disconcerting false starts. Then, as chance would have it, you tuned into a broadcast by the university radio station WBFO – and found your calling. A mere year after signing on at the station as a volunteer, you were made host of the daily three-hour magazine program, This is Radio. In 1975, you made the move to Philadelphia, joining station WHYY to host and produce a local program called Fresh Air. The program, which began to reach a national audience in 1985, is now in its 42nd year and is the recipient of the Peabody Award, which has been called the Pulitzer Prize for radio. With over five and a half million listeners, Fresh Air is broadcast on 624 National Public Radio stations each week across the country and in Europe. It has been ranked as the most downloaded podcast on iTunes.

Across a varied landscape of arts and music, literature, and public life, Fresh Air embraces thoughtful commentary and enlightening stories to explore some of the most pressing and relevant issues of our time. Your distinctive voice, employed with empathy, a measured pace, and unflinching patience, has elicited undeniably real and unforgettable moments in your interviews of thinkers, doers, and creators. Born from meticulous preparation and your own curiosity, your perceptive and straightforward queries frame fascinating conversations and offer space for your subjects to reveal both their striking individuality and the universal commonality of our lives. Your guest list, now over 13,000 and counting, includes notables as diverse as Lou Reed, Audrey Hepburn, Bill O'Reilly, Mel Brooks, Lena Dunham, Maurice Sendak, Johnny Cash, and Dennis Hopper. Some have likened the experience of being interviewed by you as part confessional and part therapy. The results, so lively, entertaining, and informative, lead us to acknowledge that you are indeed the good listener that we all wish we could be.

The author of All I Did Was Ask: Conversations with Writers, Actors, Musicians and Artists, you have received a great many awards in recognition of your work, including the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's Edward R. Murrow Award for outstanding contributions to public radio, the Literarian Award from the National Book Foundation, and the Authors Guild Award for Distinguished Service to the Literary Community. In 2012, you were inducted into the Radio Hall of Fame, and last year, President Obama presented you with the National Humanities Medal in recognition of your "artful probing of the human experience."

For your unbounded curiosity and fearless inquiry, and for your tireless efforts to enrich knowledge and understanding of ourselves and others, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Terry Gross, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

ADA SUE HINSHAW

In an extensive career bridging scholarship and government service, your perseverance, pioneering research, and collaborative style have earned you distinction as one of the most influential leaders of modern nursing.

You were one of the very first to apply quantitative research to your field. For more than five decades, your work has informed far-reaching and fundamental policy and practice advances that have ranged from crafting positive nursing work environments that ease “burnout” risk for practitioners, to the design of health care delivery systems that optimize quality of care to improve patient outcomes.

As Director of the National Center of Nursing Research at the National Institutes of Health, you worked assiduously to convince skeptics that nursing research held sufficient scientific rigor. You secured a change in designation and significantly greater independent funding for a new National Institute of Nursing Research at NIH and in 1993 became its first director. These changes propelled the acceptance of nursing research in the mainstream of peer-reviewed medical science. Within this evolving multi-dimensional approach, transformative fields of study gained footing, including palliative and end-of-life care, symptom control during challenging medical treatments, and the effects of chronic illness on patients and their families.

A graduate of the University of Kansas, Yale University, and the University of Arizona, you have nurtured the education and careers of thousands of nursing professionals. Your many appointments include service on the faculty of the University of Arizona’s College of Nursing, the University of California, San Francisco, and the University of Kansas, and as dean of the University of Michigan’s School of Nursing.

In 2008, you left a much-deserved retirement to serve as dean of the Daniel K. Inouye Graduate School of Nursing at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. There, you expanded degree programs and launched the Faye Glenn Abdellah Center for Military and Federal Health Care Research, utilizing research and evidence-based practices to address care for the deployed, the wounded, and their families, and to assure preparedness for military and global humanitarian health care.

Deemed a Living Legend by the American Academy of Nursing in 2011, your many accolades include the Distinguished Leader Award from the National Institute of Nursing Research and the Walsh McDermott Award from the National Academy of Medicine. A member of the American Nurses Association, the National Academy of Medicine, and the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences, you also served as a past President of the American Academy of Nursing. In recognition of your signal work, the Friends of the National Institute of Nursing Research established in your name an award recognizing those who improve health care for all.

For your tireless dedication and leadership in transforming the understanding, policy, and practice of nursing for the benefit of both practitioners and patients, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Ada Sue Hinshaw, the degree of Doctor of Sciences, honoris causa.

ROBERT PARRIS MOSES

You never sought the spotlight, saying instead: “Leadership is there in the people. If you go out and work...then the leadership will emerge.” And it is through your diligent commitment to the power of the individual as a catalyst for social change that you are recognized as one of the most influential proponents of the American civil rights movement.

A native of Harlem, you received degrees in philosophy from Hamilton College and Harvard University. It was when you started as a teacher in 1961 that your interest in activism led you to the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee’s Mississippi Voter Registration Project. Just seven percent of eligible African Americans were registered to vote in Mississippi at that time. With this most foundational element of democracy impeded by poll taxes, means and literacy tests, and intimidation, you nurtured political engagement and grassroots activism in spite of arrests, threats, and the violent deaths of peers.

In the years following, as co-Director of the Council of Federated Organizations, a civil rights cooperative, you organized the Mississippi Freedom Summer Project and were instrumental in origination of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party. The Party initiated a statewide infrastructure of community services and governance, elected delegates, and challenged that state’s all-white delegation to the 1964 Democratic National Convention. Though the effort did not prevail, you captured the attention of a nation awakening to the call for equal civil rights for all citizens.

After years abroad, many spent teaching mathematics in Tanzania, you returned to the United States and founded the nonprofit Algebra Project using your 1982 MacArthur Fellowship award as seed funding. The Project utilizes mathematics as an instrument of both student empowerment and community-based educational advocacy, preparing the most disadvantaged students to graduate from high school ready to take on college mathematics. Beginning in one school in Jackson, Mississippi, the Algebra Project grew to a presence in over 200 schools across the country. As its president, you have advocated for high-quality schooling and an effective curriculum for every child so they can develop the skills required for full economic participation.

An author and editor of books on civil and educational rights, you continue to work with students and prepare educators to further these critical efforts. Your diverse appointments include a lectureship at the NYU School of Law, serving as Cornell University's Frank H.T. Rhodes Class of '56 Professor, and as a Distinguished Visitor for Princeton's Center for African American Studies. Among your many honors are the Heinz Award for the Human Condition and the Puffin/Nation Prize for Creative Citizenship. In 2014, the National Civil Rights Museum bestowed on you its prestigious Freedom Award in recognition of your efforts laying the foundation for present and future human rights leaders.

For the example of your enduring faith and steadfast efforts on behalf of equality and opportunity for all citizens, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Robert Parris Moses, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

PAUL MULDOON

When speaking about your art, you have said that you are most drawn to misbehavior – to those poems attempting to do things that the “best, most well-brought up poems shouldn’t be doing.” With irresistible brilliance, uncanny wit, and a beckoning “let’s have a go” approach, you draw us in for an adventure of exploration and unexpected discovery. Building on traditions in rhythm and form but never bound by them, your poetry spans worlds both fantastical and earthly, engaging and provoking us to insight and reflection. Your work has been praised as “the textual equivalent of a high-wire act, with juggling.” You yourself have been described as “the most formally ambitious and technically innovative of modern poets.” It is no wonder then that you are often invoked as one of our “great poets of the past 100 years.”

Born in County Armagh, Northern Ireland, you were just 21 and a student at Queen’s University, Belfast, when your first volume, New Weather, was published. Through years as a radio and television producer for the BBC in Belfast and a Professor of Poetry at the University of Oxford, where you are an honorary Fellow of Hertford College, you continued to publish to great critical regard. Since 1987, you have taught and mentored new generations of poets and scholars at Princeton University as the Howard G. B. Clark '21 Professor and Founding Chair of the Peter B. Lewis Center for the Arts. For over a decade, you have served as the poetry editor of The New Yorker and host of its popular poetry podcast. You have also offered your guidance to young artists in the National Student Poets Program.

You have authored a dozen major collections of poetry, including Moy Sand and Gravel, for which you won the 2003 Pulitzer Prize, and One Thousand Things Worth Knowing, Horse Latitudes, Hay, Mules, and Quoof. You have also published a great many smaller collections, works of criticism, opera libretti, children’s books, song lyrics, and radio and television drama. Your work has been translated into 20 languages.

In addition to the Pulitzer, you have been recognized with a multitude of international honors, including the T. S. Eliot Prize, the Griffin International Prize for Excellence in Poetry, the Shakespeare Prize, the Aspen Prize for Poetry, and the European Prize for Poetry. A Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Academy of Arts and Letters, you are in high demand as a reader and lecturer. It is a mark of your acclaim that audiences enjoy your work on occasions ranging from collaborations with rock stars and a televised recitation with Stephen Colbert to celebrations of the arts at the White House.

For your courageous, enchanting works of open-hearted honesty and for your faithful stewardship on behalf of the art of poetry, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Paul Muldoon, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student's name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student's transcript is the official record of the University.
