Keeping Franklin's Promise

In the words of one elegiac tribute, "Great men have two lives: one which occurs while they work on this earth; a second which begins at the day of their death and continues as long as their ideas and conceptions remain powerful."

These words befit the great Benjamin Franklin, whose inventions, innovations, ideas, writings, and public works continue to shape our thinking and renew the Republic he helped to create and the institutions he founded, including the University of Pennsylvania.

Nowhere does Franklin feel more contemporary, more revolutionary, and more alive than at the University of Pennsylvania. His startling vision of a secular, nonsectarian Academy that would foster an "Inclination join'd with an Ability to serve Mankind, one's Country, Friends and Family" has never ceased to challenge Penn to redefine the scope and mission of the modern American university.

When pursued vigorously and simultaneously, the two missions – developing the inclination to do good and the ability to do well – merge to help form a more perfect university that educates more capable citizens for our democracy.

Penn has embodied and advanced Franklin's revolutionary vision for 282 years. Throughout its history, Penn has extended the frontiers of higher learning and research to produce graduates and scholars whose work has enriched the nation and all of humanity.

The modern liberal arts curriculum as we know it can trace its roots to Franklin's innovation to have Penn students study international commerce and foreign languages.

The first medical and business schools in the United States were launched here.

And the first general-purpose electronic, digital computer – ENIAC – was invented right here at the University of Pennsylvania.

The entire Penn family, including our 330,000 alumni world-wide, shares our commitment to grow inclusion by building a diverse community for living, learning, and service; to spark innovation by inspiring inventive thinking across disciplines; and to accelerate impact by sharing the benefits of new knowledge and discoveries through active engagement with our local and global communities.

Today, Penn proudly graduates a class that has shown the intelligence, drive, integrity, and character to become engaged citizens who will serve humanity with distinction. Our Penn graduates are poised to take their place as productive democratic citizens and as just and humane stewards of our world.

In these challenging and perilous times, a world in need of young people who are willing to shoulder the moral responsibilities of leadership can look to Penn.

Franklin wrote: "We may make these times better if we bestir ourselves. The noblest question in the world is 'What good may I do in it?'"

The answer to this question will be furnished by Franklin's newest heirs, the graduates of 2022.

Commencement Seating

Guests will find this diagram helpful in locating the approximate seating of the degree candidates. The sequence in which the candidates are presented for degrees is shown on the next page. The list on page 7, detailing the colors of the candidates' hoods according to their fields of study, may further assist guests in identifying the locations of the various Schools.

In case of emergency, evacuation procedures will be announced.

The National Anthem

Madison Woods, C’22

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn’s early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight’s last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro’ the perilous fight
O’er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming.
And the rockets’ red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O’er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

The Red and Blue

By William J. Goeckel, Class of 1896, and Harry E. Westervelt, Class of 1898

Come all ye loyal classmates now, in hall and campus through,

Lift up your hearts and voices for the royal Red and Blue.

Fair Harvard has her crimson, old Yale her colors too,

But for dear Pennsylvania, we wear the Red and Blue.

(Chorus)

Hurrah! Hurrah! Pennsylvania!

Hurrah for the Red and the Blue;

Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!

Hurrah for the Red and the Blue.

Academic Regalia and Traditions

May 16, 2022 – the University of Pennsylvania’s 266th Commencement. Penn traces its origins to a deed of trust executed in 1740 and is celebrating its 282nd birthday this year. Bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees will be conferred upon some 6,000 graduates of the University’s 12 Schools. Honorary degrees will be awarded to eight individuals of distinction in varied fields, as you will note on pages 11 - 15 in this program.

The practice of sporting signs on caps and gowns as a form of public proclamation at Commencement dates to the early 1760s and recalls an even more ancient tradition, originating in the practice of medieval universities. Penn’s archives contain several 18th century broadsides, printed in Latin, which were distributed to Commencement guests along with the regular programs. The broadsides contain a series of propositions classified under various academic headings. Presumably, the graduating students were willing to defend these theses against any assertions to the contrary. On the eve of the Revolution, however, statements such as “the rights of the people are as divine as the rights of their rulers” must have met with widespread sympathy.

Academic Ceremony and Regalia

Commencement exercises at American universities and colleges traditionally are composed of three essential elements: the Academic Procession, the conferring of degrees, and the Commencement address. This practice has been codified since 1895, when a national conference on academic costume and ceremony was proposed and a plan known initially as the “Intercollegiate System” was formally adopted. The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania incorporated this code into the Statutes of the University in November 1896. Now under the aegis of the American Council on Education, the “Academic Costume Code and Academic Ceremony Guide” was revised in 1932 and 1960.* Throughout the 20th century, and today, Commencement at Penn has, with minor modifications, followed the dictates of the code and its revisions.

By 1896, however, Penn had been granting degrees for nearly 140 years. Like other American colonial colleges, Penn borrowed its 18th century commencement rituals directly from the English universities. In England the history of academic dress reaches back to the early days of the oldest schools. As early as the second half of the 14th century, the statutes of certain colleges prohibited “excess in apparel” and required the wearing of a long gown. It is still an open question as to whether academic dress finds its sources chiefly in ecclesiastical or in civilian dress. It is often suggested that gowns and hoods were the simplest, most effective method of staying warm in the unheated, stone buildings that housed medieval scholars. In any case, academic regalia had evolved to contemporary familiarity by the time Benjamin Franklin was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws by the University of St. Andrews in 1759.

Traditions and Current Practice at Penn

In April 1887, on the recommendation of a committee of the faculty, the Trustees adopted the “‘Pennsylvania’ System of Academic Costume.” The colors and trimmings of hoods and caps were regularized according to faculty and degree. Beginning with the Commencement of 1887, the “‘Pennsylvania’ System” was published in each year’s program and adherence to its rules was expected of trustees, faculty, and students alike. Beginning in 1896, the “‘Pennsylvania’ System” was superseded by the “Intercollegiate System,” which has continued in effect to the present time.

The gowns used in American academic ceremonies vary according to the highest degree awarded to the wearer. The gown for the bachelor’s degree has pointed sleeves; it is designed to be worn closed. The gown for the master’s degree has an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist. The sleeve base hangs down in the traditional manner. The rear part of its oblong shape is square cut and the front has an arc cut away. The master’s gown may be worn open or closed. The doctoral gown is a more elaborate costume faced down the front with black velvet and across the sleeves with three bars of the same; these facings and crossbars may be of velvet of the color distinctive to the field of study to which the degree pertains. The doctoral gown has bell-shaped sleeves and may be worn open or closed. Some institutions have authorized doctoral gowns in colors other than the customary black; holders of the University of Pennsylvania doctorate may wear red and blue gowns.

The hoods are lined in silk with the official color or colors of the college or university which granted the highest degree held by the wearer; more than one color is shown by division of the field color in a variety of ways, such as by chevron or chevrons. The binding or edging of the hood is in velvet, with widths of two inches, three inches, and five inches for the bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees, respectively. The color of the border indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains. University of Pennsylvania graduates wear a hood lined in red with a blue chevron. The mortarboard cap is standard, though soft square-topped caps are permissible. Recipients of doctorates may wear a gold tassel fastened to the middle point of the top of the cap; all others wear black.

Degrees shall be conferred today according to the following order:

Arts & Letters, white
 Science, golden yellow
 Business Administration, mustard
 Nursing, apricot
 Medicine, green
 Law, purple
 Fine Arts (including Design), brown
 Dental Medicine, lilac

 Philosophy, dark blue

Academic Procession

The order for today's Academic Procession is as follows:

Mace Bearer
 Interim President and Interim Provost
 Chair, Board of Trustees
 Commencement Speaker
 Candidates for Honorary Degrees
 Deans
 Trustees
 Officers of the University
 Faculty
 Advisors

University Mace

The Secretary of the University carries the University mace, the symbol of authority of the University, at the head of the Academic Procession. It was a gift of the family of William Murray Gordon, M.D. 1910. It is adorned with the seal and arms of the University, the Penn and Franklin coats-of-arms, a depiction of the Rittenhouse Orrery, and a thistle symbolizing the early ties of the University with Scotland.

President's Badge of Office

The President wears as a badge of office a silver medallion of which one face is engraved, like the mace, with the University seal. The obverse of the President's medal bears the "orrery seal," designed in 1782 by Francis Hopkinson, A.B. 1757, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. The medal, suspended on a chain composed of silver links, was given by the late Trustee Thomas Sovereign Gates, Jr., A.B. 1928, LL.D. 1956, on the occasion of Sheldon Hackney's inauguration as President in October 1981.

UNIVERSITY SEAL AND SYMBOLS

Seal of the Corporation

The Trustees of the University have an official seal that is, in effect, the signature of the Corporation. It had its origin at a meeting of the Board of Trustees in 1755 with Benjamin Franklin as Chairman. Though the seal underwent changes over the years, the most recent design, approved in 1932 and adopted in 1933, returned it to virtually its original form.

The seal is composed of seven books stacked on a slanted desktop, with the books bearing the following titles, representing the curricula of the day: Theolog, Astronom, Philosoph, Mathemat, Logica, Rhetorica, Grammatica. On the periphery of the stack of books appears the University motto, Leges Sine Moribus Vanae, and the whole is encircled with the inscription Universitatis Pennsylvaniensis.

Motto: Leges Sine Moribus Vanae

The motto of the University, Leges Sine Moribus Vanae, means "Laws without morals are useless." It comes from the longer quotation from Horace, "Quid leges sine moribus vanae proficiunt?" the sense of which is "Of what avail are empty laws without (good) morals?"

Penn Coat-of-Arms

The Penn coat-of-arms was derived by combining the coat-of-arms of Benjamin Franklin and that of William Penn's family. The dolphin on the red chief was part of Franklin's coat-of-arms and the three silver plates on a blue chevron were a part of Penn's. The two were combined on a white shield along with two open volumes representing the University's educational purpose.

School Colors

Eighteenth century American academic institutions did not have colors. The earliest known representation of the combined Penn colors, red and blue, is on the incised lid of the 1871 College Hall cornerstone.

One legend traces their origins to an early track meet at Saratoga, New York, between Penn, Harvard, and Yale. When asked by the officials what colors would be representing the Penn team, the Pennsylvania captain reportedly replied, "We're going to be wearing the colors of the teams we beat," i.e., Harvard Crimson and Yale Blue. We shall assume that Penn was victorious and thus remained loyal to the Red and Blue.

Schools of the University

School of Arts and Sciences (1755)

The School of Arts and Sciences (SAS) is the direct descendant of the College of Philadelphia, where Benjamin Franklin established the first modern arts and sciences curriculum in the English colonies. Undergraduate programs for men date to the chartering of the College in 1755; the College of Liberal Arts for Women was founded in 1933. The Graduate School was established in 1882 with the appointment of a Faculty of Philosophy. The College of Liberal and Professional Studies (lifelong learning) traces its roots to 1892. The School of Arts and Sciences was born in 1974 with the merger of the College of Arts and Sciences, the College for Women, the Graduate School, and four social science departments from Wharton. Today SAS is the largest of the University's 12 Schools, providing a liberal arts education for all Penn undergraduates and supporting graduate studies, basic research, and lifelong learning across the full range of the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences. The School has 27 departments with 509 standing faculty, 30 research centers, four interschool institutes, and 10,000 students.

Perelman School of Medicine (1765)

Established in 1765 as the nation's first medical school, what is now known as the Raymond and Ruth Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania continues a rich tradition of providing the nation's best medical training and education, with service to its community as a cornerstone. Today, the School honors its long standing commitment to advancing knowledge and improving health close to home and across the world through research, patient care, and the education of trainees in an inclusive culture that embraces diversity. More than 780 students are pursuing medical degrees in the Perelman School of Medicine, more than 960 are studying toward doctorates in biomedical sciences, (with over 215 enrolled in joint MD/PhD programs), and more than 680 students are pursuing professional master's degrees. Across the School's affiliated hospitals, 1,490 residents and fellows are completing their medical training. Over the past decade, the Perelman School of Medicine has consistently been ranked among the top recipients of research funding from the National Institutes of Health.

Law School (1790)

Penn's dedication to innovative legal education began in 1790, when Founding Father James Wilson—signer of the Declaration of Independence, framer of the U.S. Constitution, and one of the original U.S. Supreme Court Justices—delivered a series of lectures to President George Washington and his cabinet. In 1850, George Sharswood established a formal legal instruction program, and in 1900, after several years of holding classes in various places across the city of Philadelphia, the School established its current location at 34th and Chestnut. Today, the University of Pennsylvania Carey Law School provides a cross-disciplinary, globally-focused legal education taught by preeminent scholars and internationally renowned experts in their fields. Approximately 70 percent of its faculty hold advanced degrees in fields in addition to law, and many hold secondary appointments at Schools across the University. In the 2021-2022 academic year, the Law School has nearly 1,100 students—many of whom simultaneously also earn joint degrees and certificates of study in fields outside of the law—and 94 full-time faculty. The Law School awards five degrees: Juris Doctor; Master of Laws for internationally trained lawyers; Master of Comparative Laws; Doctor of Juridical Science; and Master in Law for non-lawyers.

School of Engineering and Applied Science (1852)

Founded in 1852 as the School of Mines, Arts and Manufactures, the School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS) is Penn's intellectual home of technology-related teaching and research. For 170 years, Penn Engineering has been a vibrant and collaborative community of innovation. World-acclaimed faculty, state-of-the-art research laboratories, and highly interdisciplinary curricula offer students an unparalleled learning experience. From the time ENIAC, the world's first computer, was developed and introduced on campus in 1946, Penn Engineering has continued a tradition of leadership and cutting-edge research. Innovation and technology drive its every program and Penn Engineers play a critical role in posing and answering the questions that will improve the human condition and transform our world. The Penn Engineering community is robust as it has ever been with 137 tenure-track faculty, 19 Research and Practice Professors, 16 lecturers, 242 staff, approximately 1,872 undergraduates, 1,565 master's students, and 802 doctoral students.

Stuart Weitzman School of Design (1869)

Although the School of Design dates its founding from 1890, architecture courses were first offered at the University of Pennsylvania in 1869, making Penn's architecture program the second oldest in the United States. In 1921, the Department of Architecture joined with the Department of Music and Fine Arts to create an independent undergraduate School of Fine Arts modeled on the French École des Beaux Arts. In 1958, the School was renamed the Graduate School of Fine Arts, reflecting the shift to graduate degree offerings in architecture, city and regional planning, landscape architecture, and fine arts. In the 1980s, a program in historic preservation was added. To more accurately capture the School's sphere of influence, it was renamed the School of Design in 2003. In recognition of both his lifetime philanthropic support of Penn and his active engagement with its academic activities, the School was named for award-winning designer and footwear icon Stuart Weitzman, Wharton Class of 1963, in February of 2019. Today, with a standing faculty of 43, approximately 189 lecturers and associated faculty, and nearly 800 students, the School prepares students to address complex sociocultural and environmental issues through thoughtful inquiry, creative expression, and innovation.

School of Dental Medicine (1878)

Established in 1878 as the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, the School of Dental Medicine is among the oldest university-affiliated dental institutions in the country with a history deeply rooted in forging precedents in dental education, research, and patient care. In 1897, Thomas W. Evans, a Philadelphia native and clinician who spent most of his life in France as the dentist to European nobility, left his estate to create a dental school that was "second to none." Evans' bequest would become one with the University, creating the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Dental Institute, which opened in 1915. Today, the Evans Building remains the site of much of the School's clinical instruction. The dental campus also includes the Robert Schattner Center and the Leon Levy Center for Oral Health Research, home to the basic sciences and extensive research activities.

Penn Dental Medicine is a major provider of care in West Philadelphia and through outreach clinical programs, students completed 65,289 hours in 2021 providing clinical care at PDM clinics in the surrounding Philadelphia neighborhoods.

Penn Dental Medicine offers the degrees of Doctor of Dental Medicine, Master of Science in Oral Biology and Doctor of Science in Dentistry, and trains postdoctoral students in endodontics, oral medicine, oral and maxillofacial surgery, orthodontics, pediatric dentistry, periodontics, periodontics/orthodontics, periodontal/prosthesis, and prosthodontics.

In the 2021-2022 academic year, Penn Dental Medicine has 674 DMD students, 139 in the Graduate & Advanced Dental Education programs: 127 in the specialty programs, 12 in the DScD plus certificate program, eight in the DScD stand-alone program, 40 in the MSOB plus certificate program, and four in the MOHS programs.

Penn Dental Medicine has 490 faculty members, including 99 full-time faculty.

Wharton School (1881)

Founded in 1881 as the world's first collegiate business school, the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania is shaping the future of business by incubating ideas, driving insights, and creating leaders who change the world. With a faculty of more than 241 renowned professors, Wharton has 5,063 undergraduate, MBA, executive MBA, and doctoral students. Each year 13,000 professionals from around the world advance their careers through Wharton Executive Education's individual, company-customized, and online programs. More than 100,000 Wharton alumni form a powerful global network of leaders who transform business every day.

School of Veterinary Medicine (1884)

Ranked among the top ten veterinary schools worldwide, the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine (Penn Vet) is a global leader in veterinary education, research, and clinical care. Founded in 1884, Penn Vet is the first veterinary school developed in association with a medical school. The School is a proud member of the One Health initiative, linking human, animal, and environmental health.

Penn Vet serves a diverse population of animals at its two campuses, which include extensive diagnostic and research laboratories. Ryan Hospital in Philadelphia provides care for dogs, cats, and other domestic/companion animals, handling more than 34,600 patient visits a year. New Bolton Center, Penn Vet's large-animal hospital on nearly 700 acres in rural Kennett Square, cares for horses and livestock/farm animals. The hospital handles more than 6,200 patient visits a year, while Field Services made more than 5,500 farm service calls, treating some 18,700 patients at local farms. In addition, New Bolton Center's campus includes a swine center, working dairy, and poultry unit that provide valuable research for the agriculture industry.

Graduate School of Education (1914)

The University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Education (Penn GSE) is one of the nation's premier schools of education, consistently producing top-ranked researchers and educational leaders. The University of Pennsylvania created its first professorship in education in 1894 and established the full-fledged School of Education in 1914. The School's first graduating class in 1915 comprised three women and three men, who received the School's first Bachelor of Science in Education degrees. In 1961, the School was restructured and renamed the Graduate School of Education. Penn GSE launched an Administrative Leadership Program in 1971 to prepare school administrators for creative and dynamic leadership. This was the first in a long line of successful leadership programs. Today, Penn GSE offers 37 programs leading to the PhD, EdD, MPhil Ed, and MS Ed degrees in more than 30 fields of education. Reflecting a deep commitment to urban education, Penn GSE's students and researchers are involved in schools across every catchment area of the School District of Philadelphia, including robust partnerships with two West Philadelphia schools. Penn GSE is also home to the Milken-Penn GSE Education Business Plan Competition, intended to spark innovations that improve education by bringing together entrepreneurs and funders for sustained collaboration. No other education school enjoys a university environment as supportive of practical knowledge-building as Penn GSE.

School of Nursing (1935)

Nursing education at Penn began in 1886 when the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania started a nurse training program. In 1935, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania established a nursing degree program within the School of Education, and in 1950 the School of Nursing was established. The Master of Science in Nursing program was instituted in 1961, the Doctor of Nursing Science program in 1978, the Doctor of Philosophy program in 1984, and the Doctor of Nursing Practice program in 2016. These innovations and a curriculum which progressively reflects changing health care delivery patterns have advanced the School into the first rank of American schools of nursing. The School has two departments, Biobehavioral Health Sciences and Family and Community Health. It is widely recognized for its leadership in nursing research in the areas of health outcomes and policy research, nursing history, biobehavioral health sciences, global women's health, health equity, aging, and transitions in health. It also has a global reputation for innovations in nurse-managed clinical practice and is a World Health Organization Collaborating Center for Nursing and Midwifery Leadership. The School of Nursing has 56 standing faculty and 1,269 students.

School of Social Policy & Practice (1948)

The School of Social Policy & Practice began in 1908 as a private school that opened its doors to five students in the field of child welfare. The School affiliated itself with the University in 1935 and became a formal school in 1948. In 2005, the name was changed from the School of Social Work to the School of Social Policy & Practice. This was to reflect the addition of master's degree programs in Nonprofit Leadership and Social Policy to the Master of Social Work, as well as Doctor of Philosophy in Social Welfare, and Doctor of Social Work degrees.

The School is devoted to advancing human welfare, promoting social justice, and developing effective societal responses to global human need. Building on the School's more than century-long commitment to social work and social change, the School educates clinicians, policymakers, scholars, researchers, and leaders who work to advance the human welfare of local, national, and global communities.

The School houses a number of research centers and programs, including: Center for Guaranteed Income Research; Center for High Impact Philanthropy; Health Equity Lab; Center for Social Impact Strategy; Field Center for Children's Policy Practice & Research; Ortner Center on Violence & Abuse; Center for Social Mobility and Prosperity; Center for Carceral Communities; Actionable Intelligence for Social Policy; Goldring Reentry Initiative; and the Institute in Critical Quantitative, Computational & Mixed Methodologies. The School has 26 standing faculty and 660 students.

Annenberg School for Communication (1959)

Founded through the generosity and vision of diplomat and philanthropist Walter Annenberg, the Annenberg School for Communication (ASC) at the University of Pennsylvania is devoted to furthering the understanding of the role of communication in public life through research, education, and service. At the School's founding, Ambassador Annenberg identified its unique mission: "Every human advancement or reversal can be understood through communication. The right to free communication carries with it responsibility to respect the dignity of others—and this must be recognized as irreversible. Educating students to effectively communicate this message and to be of service to all people is the enduring mission of this school." With strengths in health communication, political communication, culture and communication, media institutions, digital media, visual communication, and global communication, ASC is one of the top communication schools in the nation. The Annenberg School has 21 standing faculty members, 30 additional research and teaching faculty and associates, 70 graduate students, and more than 150 undergraduate Communication majors. The School offers the degree of Doctor of Philosophy as well as a Bachelor of Arts major offered through the College of Arts and Sciences. The School is home to the Addiction, Health, and Adolescence Lab; Annenberg Public Policy Center; Center for Advanced Research in Global Communication; Center for Media at Risk; Center on Digital Culture and Society; Communication Neuroscience Lab; Computational Social Science Lab; Health Communication and Equity Lab; Institute for Public Service; Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics; Media, Inequality and Change Center; Network Dynamics Group; the Peace and Conflict Neuroscience Lab; and the Social Action Lab, among many other projects pursuing innovative communication research and teaching.

Honorary Degree Citations

Mary Frances Berry

For as long as you can remember, speaking out against injustice has come naturally. You have said that perhaps a hardscrabble childhood in Nashville—marked by poverty and racism—fueled your intolerance of unfairness, no matter the consequences. This intrinsic need to take a stand has been a defining aspect of your remarkable career as both a preeminent scholar of legal and constitutional history and a foremost champion of social justice.

After earning a bachelor's degree from Howard University, you went on to the University of Michigan, where you earned doctoral degrees in history and law. You served as Provost of the University of Maryland and, as Chancellor of the University of Colorado at Boulder, were the first woman to lead a major research university. In 1987, you joined the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania where you are the Geraldine R. Segal Professor Emerita of American Social Thought and Professor of History and Africana Studies.

Your 13 books have explored many subjects, from the history of constitutional racism in America to the causes of the Equal Rights Amendment's failure. You have addressed gender equity, the politics of parenthood, and most recently, the importance of political protest: History Teaches Us to Resist: How Progressive Movements Have Succeeded in Challenging Times was published in 2018.

Protest and persistence are fundamental to social change, you believe, and your leadership of the Free South Africa Movement (FSAM) embodied this tenet. You co-founded the group, steering protests at the South African embassy and around the nation while waging a legislative battle that would last two years and survive a presidential veto. In the end, FSAM was victorious, pushing the U.S. Congress to establish trade sanctions against South Africa—a win that marked the beginning of the end of apartheid.

You have served your country with distinction under five presidents, as a member and then Chair of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, and as Assistant Secretary for Education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare during the Carter administration.

Your scholarship and political endeavors alike have garnered recognition. You are a Fellow of the Society of American Historians and of the National Academy of Public Administration, and a Distinguished Fellow of the American Society for Legal History. Among numerous honors, you have received the 2021 Lewis Award for History and Social Justice from the American Historical Association, the South African government's Nelson Mandela Award, and the NAACP's Roy Wilkins Award.

For your inspirational career as an historian, educator, and leader of social change, founded on a lifelong dedication to equality and justice and guided by a firm belief in the ultimate triumph of right over wrong, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Mary Frances Berry, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

Ken Burns

As one of the most prolific documentarians of our time, you have presented a through-the-lens view of America's heart and soul like no other. With boundless curiosity, you have for decades chronicled our nation's past, with each new film inviting your audience to consider this country from yet another perspective. "If I were given 1,000 years to live, I would not run out of American history," you have said.

From your sweeping, epic documentaries—The Civil War, Baseball, and Jazz—to your more precisely focused films, such as Defying the Nazis: The Sharps' War, The Central Park Five, and The Dust Bowl, you have dissected American life with intelligence, truth, and humanity. Your art has mined the essence of American luminaries, including Mark Twain, Muhammad Ali, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, Jackie Robinson, and, most recently, the University of Pennsylvania's founder, Benjamin Franklin.

For millions of viewers, you bring history to life with an unmistakable style that employs archival footage, third-person narration, and what you have called perhaps the most crucial ingredient—music—to tell America's story.

It is a narrative both triumphant and tragic, and although you tell it from many angles, your films consistently pose the elemental question: Americans, who are we? Time and again, through your thoughtful examination of a union still striving to be more perfect, you provide fresh insight into where we have been, and just as important, what the past may portend for our future.

Born in Brooklyn, as a boy you received for your birthday an 8 mm camera that set fire to your passion. Your mother died when you were only eleven—a profound loss that you have said most certainly drives you to resurrect historical figures and tell their stories. You studied filmmaking at Hampshire College and found your mentors in still photography—an art that you have used to great effect as one of your films' most distinguishing features.

The significance of your work drew praise from the beginning. Your first documentary, 1981's Brooklyn Bridge, was nominated for an Academy Award. You would go on to garner a second Oscar nomination, for The Statue of Liberty in 1985, and win two Grammy Awards and 16 Emmy Awards, among many other major prizes. In September 2008, the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences honored you with a Lifetime Achievement Award at the News & Documentary Emmy Awards.

In recognition of your accomplishments as a preeminent storyteller, and as the creator of a rich and compelling tapestry of films about America that shines a light on what connects us as a people, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Ken Burns, the degree of Doctor of Arts, honoris causa.

Atul Gawande

Early in your career, you were drawn to the surgeons with whom you trained. In them, you saw “ordinary, flawed human beings, with imperfect skills, incomplete knowledge, and yet the confidence to nonetheless act, and to take accountability for whatever outcome resulted.” This mindset—a willingness to take risks to accomplish extraordinary feats—is one to which you have aspired in your life as a surgeon, writer, and public health leader.

The art of healing, perhaps, was bound to be your destiny. Your parents, both immigrants from India, met in medical school in New York City and settled in rural Ohio where they practiced medicine and raised you and your sister. After studying biology and political science at Stanford University, you went on to Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar.

You attended Harvard University and earned degrees in medicine and public health, launching your career as a practicing general and endocrine surgeon at Brigham and Women’s Hospital and a professor at Harvard Medical School and the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health. As a teacher and mentor, you passed your knowledge and skills to the next generation.

You have long had a passion and talent for delving into systems to understand how they work—and how to make them better. As one of the most innovative thinkers in health care delivery, you have translated your ideas into action, spearheading ventures such as Ariadne Labs, to revamp global health systems; Lifebox, to make surgery safer around the world; and CIC Health, to expand access to COVID-19 tests and vaccines.

A long-time writer for The New Yorker, you have examined countless medical issues with great empathy and insight. Your article, Letting Go, earned one of your two National Magazine Awards, and was a precursor to one of your four best-selling books, Being Mortal: Medicine and What Matters in the End. Inspired by your work as a physician and the loss of your father, it contains lessons you learned about helping people make the most of each day when the end of life is near.

As a public health leader, you lent policy expertise to the Clinton administration, and later, to President Joe Biden’s transition team’s COVID-19 Advisory Board. Now, you have accepted his call to serve again. In January 2022, you took the helm of Global Health for the U.S. Agency for International Development, where your leadership is improving the health of those most in need.

For your compassionate dedication to individuals everywhere who benefit from your creative approach to health and medicine and your tenacious pursuit of humanity’s well-being, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Atul Gawande, the degree of Doctor of Sciences, honoris causa.

Amy Gutmann

On a warm August night nearly four years ago, you welcomed the undergraduate Class of 2022 with a challenge. Citing Franklin Delano Roosevelt’s famous “rendezvous with destiny” speech—delivered on Franklin Field in 1936—you urged them to not only meet destiny, but to make destiny.

Today, you stand alongside these same young scholars—Penn’s 266th graduating class—having blazed a brilliant trail of your own as the University of Pennsylvania’s eighth, and longest-serving, president.

Your career in academia began at Radcliffe College of Harvard University from which you graduated magna cum laude. You went on to earn two advanced degrees in political science—a master’s from the London School of Economics and a doctorate from Harvard. In your 28 years at Princeton University, you were the Laurance S. Rockefeller University Professor, founded the University Center for Human Values and, ultimately, served as Provost.

Then came the Penn presidency, which you began in 2004 with a towering vision: The Penn Compact, you vowed, would elevate the University “from excellence to eminence in all its core endeavors.” Calling on the Penn community to join this ambitious journey, you set out to increase access for all talented students, integrate knowledge across academic disciplines, and build bridges between Penn and its neighbors far and wide.

The University’s transformation was sweeping and profound. Knowing first-hand the challenges of first-generation, lower-income students, you established an all-grant policy for financial aid, still the nation’s largest such program. Thanks to you, these students find economic and social support through Penn First Plus. Long a believer in collaboration across academic fields, you started the Penn Integrates Knowledge Professorships, attracting some of the world’s brightest scholars to hold joint appointments and work with partners across disciplines on the most leading-edge research.

Befitting the excellence of Penn faculty and students, the University campus was completely renewed, with spectacular green spaces and productive new facilities that soon will include Amy Gutmann Hall at the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences. But perhaps nowhere will your legacy more deeply endure than in the lives of the students you so eagerly championed throughout your nearly 18 years as Penn's leader.

And now, you serve your country as the United States Ambassador to Germany—from which your father fled the Nazis many decades ago—continuing the long-standing Penn tradition of going forward with purpose to make a meaningful difference in the world.

With gratitude for your exceptional stewardship of our great University, expanded in its commitment to inclusion, advanced in its capacity for innovation, and strengthened in its impact on the greater good, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Amy Gutmann, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

Carla D. Hayden

You have always believed in the transformational power of words. In fact, those of Frederick Douglass – “Once you learn to read, you will be forever free” – inspired your groundbreaking journey to becoming the United States’ 14th Librarian of Congress, the first woman and first African American to assume this important title. His words have served as a beacon in your distinguished career as a librarian and educator, devoted to the pursuit of knowledge as a means of elevating the lives of all people.

The child of two gifted musicians, you enjoyed a youth steeped in culture, including treasured trips to the library where your love of books took flight. At age seven, you were introduced to Bright April, a 1946 children’s book about an African American girl whose image reflected yours and whose story teaches lessons about racial prejudice. It quickly became your favorite.

While earning master’s and doctoral degrees from the Graduate

Library School of the University of Chicago, you began your career as a children’s librarian for the Chicago Public Library, later lending your talents to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago. Academia soon beckoned, and you became Assistant Professor of Library and Information Science at the University of Pittsburgh. You returned to the Chicago Public Library as Deputy Commissioner and Chief Librarian, where you helped curate a special memorial exhibit for a new library named for Harold Washington, the city’s first African American mayor.

For 23 years, you were Chief Executive Officer of Baltimore’s storied Enoch Pratt Free Library, founded in 1882 “for all, rich and poor without distinction of race or color.” You demonstrated your understanding of its deep importance to patrons when—aided by the community—you made sure the library was protected and its doors remained open during a period of civil unrest following the death of Freddie Gray.

As President of the American Library Association, you stood up against a section of the Patriot Act that allowed the federal government to investigate library records without patrons’ knowledge. Calling it a violation of the covenant of trust between librarians and the public, you spoke out and succeeded in changing the law.

Since becoming the nation’s head Librarian under President Barack Obama in 2016, you have prioritized and modernized access for every American to the resources of the Library of Congress. Under your leadership, the Library launched “Of the People: Widening the Path,” an initiative to connect to underrepresented communities, ensuring our oldest federal institution reflects the diversity of American culture.

In recognition of your pioneering career in librarianship, your conviction that literature changes lives, and your dedication to providing equal access to the riches of reading, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Carla D. Hayden, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

George Emanuel Lewis

“I am interested in nonlinearity, rupture, instabilities—things that keep people on their toes.” Your words describe a passion for music that reaches beyond the expected—a passion that has imbued your creative achievements in the world of experimental music as a renowned musicologist, trombonist, and American composer.

You first picked up a trombone at the age of nine as a student at the University of Chicago Laboratory School. There, you enjoyed the good fortune of influential teachers, with towering musical talents among them. At Yale University, you studied the branch of philosophy known as phenomenology, or the philosophy of experience. Integrating your music with your studies, you wrote about the experience of improvisation, which has been a major part of your prolific and innovative career.

As a young professional musician, you toured with the Count Basie Orchestra and studied and played with the Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians, a collective of groundbreaking African American musicians who exposed you to new avenues of musical expression. Their influence stayed with you. In 2008, you published A Power Stronger Than Itself: The AACM and American Experimental Music, which won the American Book Award and the American Musicological Society’s first Music in American Culture Award. Later, the book would inspire the libretto of your opera, Afterword.

You are a pioneer in the use of artificial intelligence and programming computers to improvise with human musicians in concert. You have also explored improvisation beyond music, addressing it as a concept that touches everyday life and offering fresh perspectives on its meaning. The two-volume Oxford Handbook of Critical Improvisation Studies, which you co-edited in 2016, is an anthology of scholarship on improvisation conducted by academics across a range of disciplines.

Your numerous honors include election to the Akademie der Künste Berlin, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Academy of Arts and Letters. You are a Corresponding Fellow of the British Academy, as well as the recipient of a MacArthur Fellowship (2002), a Guggenheim Fellowship (2015), and a Doris Duke Artist Award (2019). The American Musicological Society counts you among its honorary members.

Today, as the Edwin H. Case Professor of American Music at Columbia University, you share your distinctive point of view with students, teaching composition, computer music, and histories of 20th century music and experimentalism.

For a life dedicated to testing the boundaries and defying the definitions of what music can be, and for the contribution of your art and your insight to students and lovers of music all around the world, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, George Emanuel Lewis, the degree of Doctor of Music, honoris causa.

Margaret Hilary Marshall

In a country strengthened by immigrants, your life as a United States citizen stands out as a perfect example of those who have so richly enhanced our nation. Born in South Africa under apartheid, you grew up in a small town. As a university student, you protested the government and were elected President of the National Union of South African Students, then a leading anti-apartheid organization. It was from this beginning that your remarkable career as a trailblazing lawyer and jurist took shape in your beloved, adopted country.

Following undergraduate studies at the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, you earned a scholarship to pursue a master's degree at Harvard University. It was the 1960s and your arrival in Cambridge coincided with changing times—the Vietnam War, civil rights, the women's movement—which fed your interest in politics. You remember traveling the country, talking with Americans about issues of the day, and developing “a love affair with this country,” as you have called it.

Upon graduation from Yale Law School, you practiced law in Boston for 16 years and then served as Vice President and General Counsel at Harvard University, the first woman to hold the post. In 1996, you were appointed to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, the nation's oldest court and first to end slavery in 1783. Three years later, you became the first woman to serve as Chief Justice and wrote numerous groundbreaking decisions, most famously 2003's Goodridge v. Department of Public Health. With your opinion, Massachusetts became the first state to legalize gay marriage, paving the way for the U.S. Supreme Court to follow suit in 2015.

As Chief Justice, you were a noted champion of court reform, leading innovations to promote efficiency, cost savings, and equal access. After stepping down from the bench, you returned to private practice, and today, in retirement, you continue to advocate for deeply held principles, including gender equity, independent courts, voting rights, and equal access to justice.

Among your many professional honors, you are a Fellow and member of the Council of the American Philosophical Society, a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and a member emerita of the Council and Executive Committee of the American Law Institute. You were the first woman to hold the position of Senior Trustee at Yale University and the first woman to lead the Boston Bar Association.

In recognition of your devotion to the rule of law as the bedrock of democracy, your belief in the power of citizens striving as one to achieve justice for all, and for your bearing as an exemplar to future generations of legal minds, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Margaret Hilary Marshall, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

Edward Witten

Your vast contributions across the field of theoretical physics—particle theory, quantum field theory, and general relativity—have transformed our understanding of the foundational laws of nature. Your many breakthroughs have secured your position alongside the most brilliant minds to have explored the material world—earning you the moniker, “Einstein's successor.”

Two and a half decades ago, you created a stir in the world of physics with a revelation about string theory by proposing the unification of five theories into one that brings together all the forces of nature. Today, your “M-theory” is considered the best explanation for the fundamental composition of the universe.

And while string theory still holds many secrets, the challenge of discovery for its own sake remains paramount. As you have said, “What's great about science is that the frontiers are still there. Even though they are different from what they were in the past because we know so much more, there are frontiers that are every bit as exciting as the frontiers of the past.”

Your love of science began early. Growing up in Baltimore, you dreamed of being an astronomer. Later, your interests expanded to include subjects such as history and linguistics, which you studied as an undergraduate at Brandeis University. But it was your passion and talent for math and physics that set you on course for Princeton University where, in the mid-1970s, you earned master's and doctoral degrees in physics.

Today, as the Charles Simonyi Professor in the School of Natural Sciences at the Institute for Advanced Study, you are the most cited scientist in the physical sciences. In 1990, you became the first and only physicist to win the Fields Medal—the most prestigious award bestowed in mathematics research—a distinction you hold to this day.

Your unparalleled scientific achievements have garnered numerous awards, including a MacArthur Grant in 1982, the National Medal of Science in 2002, the Henri Poincaré Prize in 2006, the Crafoord Prize in 2008, the Lorentz Medal and the Isaac Newton Medal in 2010, and the Fundamental Physics Prize in 2012.

Outside of science, you are a devoted advocate for peace in the Middle East, a life-long interest that began when you lived in Israel for a year with your family as a child. You champion the cause by serving on the Board of Directors of Americans for Peace Now and on the Advisory Council of J Street.

In recognition of your creative genius in physics and mathematics, your unwavering enthusiasm for exploration, and your considerable contributions to humankind's knowledge of the universe, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Edward Witten, the degree of Doctor of Sciences, honoris causa.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student's name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student's transcript is the official record of the University.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student's name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student's transcript is the official record of the University.
